THE END OF THE RAINBOW IS HERE

Officer Leroy White, a California Highway patrolman from Petaluma, ogles a pot of gold left at the end of the rainbow. It has always been assumed that the leprechaun's pot was just a legend, but Officer White found it at the end of Marin's resident rainbow. The leprechaun had the last laugh, however, as the pot of gold was only a cooking pot loaded with gold-painted rocks left last night near one of the rainbows painted by the Division of Highways on the Waldo Grade tunnels.

Details On Nixon Talk With Soviet

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon welcomed President-elect Luis Echeverria of Mexico to the White House today for a meeting aimed at building "a personal relationship."

Echeverria was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Maria Ester. President and Mrs. Nixon greeted them on the White House steps and ushered them inside for a private luncheon followed by talks between the American and Mexican leaders.

The greeting was brief and informal.

The White House stressed that Echeverria's visit was intended mostly to "allow them to get acquainted and build a personal relationship."

Nixon returned late Thursday from a quick trip to Paris to attend memorial services for Gen. Charles de Gaulle. While there Nixon chatted briefly with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny and conferred for 41 minutes with French President Georges Pompidou at the Elysee Palace.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon exchanged "pleasantries" with Podgorny as the two leaders mingled with other guests in the gold and blue Elysee salon.

They edged toward each other and shook hands, and Nixon asked Podgorny where

Downtown Mill Valley Restaurant Loses Out

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Mill Valley City Council, after very brief discussion, last night turned down a controversial plan for a restaurant-bar in downtown Mill Valley.

Discussion wasn't needed, however, since numerous reasons against the 400-seat facility had been brought up by members of a capacity audience during a two-hour public hearing.

The decision came on a 4-0 vote to uphold an appeal filed by persons objecting to the city planning commission's issuance of a use permit for the restaurant.

Although many points were raised against the application of Michael Lerner and Philip Needleman by the crowd of about 350 who filled the auditorium at Park School, one allegation was repeated many times and echoed by councilmen —the restaurant would be out of character with the tranquil atmosphere of Mill Valley.

Councilman Robert H. Andresen abstained from discussion and voting, explaining that his law partner, Lawrence A. Meyer, at one time represented Lerner and Needleman.

The appeal before the city council was filed after the planning commission, by a 4-2 vote on Oct. 13, granted the use permit.

Attorney Robert E. Capron explained the appeal on behalf of four clients: Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Rodman, Normand Black and Charles W. Murney.

Capron cited three main issues: the zoning ordinance requires 160 off-street parking spaces, but the applicants provide for only 60; the din of rock bands and noisy cars would disturb nearby residents, and the restaurant would be "out of character with the residential village atmosphere of Mill Valley." His remarks were applauded for about 30 seconds by the partisan crowd before Mayor George E. Wickham pounded his gavel for silence.

At Wickham's request, each speaker against the restaurant was followed by one for it, although midway through the hearing speakers for the applicants ran out and only those against it remained.

Attorney Arnold M. Greenberg, of 81 Coronet Avenue, contended that no one ever said the restaurant would feature continual loud rock music, and in fact it would not.

"The use permit can be revoked; it has strings attached," he said. "If the restaurant operates to the deteriment of the community, the permit can be pulled back."

Conditions put on the permit by the planning commission included: a stipulation that the building be soundproofed so that noise would not intrude on the neighborhood; hiring of private policemen; valet parking for 60 cars; operations to cease at 2 a.m., and a maximum capacity of 400 persons.

"I believe the applicants want a chance to show they can be an asset to the community," Greenberg said.

He was followed by Rod-

U.S. Opposes Red China's Admission

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United States said today it still opposes admission of Communist China to the United Nations —a statement that seemed to water down its apparent move toward a "two China" policy in the U.N.

U.S. Ambassador Christopher H. Phillips told the General Assembly Thursday "the fact of the matter is, the United States is as interested as any in this room to see the People's Republic of China play a constructive role among the family of nations."

But he said, "we do not see how the purposes of this organization can be served by expelling any member which has long and faithfully observed the obligations set forth in its charter." This was a reference to Nationalist China.

Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House spokesman, said today in Washington the United States still opposed Red China's admission and that "Peking has never indicated any interest in joining the U.N. unless it is coupled with expulsion of Nationalist China."

He also said the United States hoped to see Peking play a "constructive role" in the

Parks Off Limits To Expansion

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The State Park and Recreation Commission yesterday firmly drew the line against growing pressure for large-scale recreational development within state parks.

Many conservationists have accused the state Department of Parks and Recreation of favoring increasingly intense development within the parks in recent years, an accusation fired in part by department plans for restaurants and a hotel on Angel Island. These plans for the island park were toned down last year by the commission, but conservationists generally have regarded the commission as prone to go along with what the staff of the department recommends.

Yesterday's sharp turnabout was led by the commission's newest member, Thomas M. Bonnicksen of Berkeley, a 28-year-old graduate student in forestry ecology. All nine members were appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, including two holdovers from the Brown administration reappointed by Reagan.

The commission voted, 6-2, on the policy drafted by Bonnicksen. Commissioner Harry E. Sokolov of Beverly Hills, a movie company executive, abstained because he missed the long, occasionally hot debate that preceded the vote.

The two negative votes were cast by commissioners who bitterly assailed the policy as a slap at the director of the department, William Penn Mott Jr. They were Lowell Berry of Oakland, a fertilizer manufacturer, and Mrs. Leah F. McConnell of Redding, operator of a ski lodge.

Berry argued the policy was "a move to embarrass and harass our department, particularly the director." Bonnicksen, however, insisted that "issues, not personalities, are at stake here."

The only other criticism of Bonnicksen's policy came from commissioner Ian I. McMillan, a rancher from Shandon, San Luis Obispo County. McMillan said it should have been even more restrictive against tinkering with the natural state of the parks.

McMillan, 62, said Reagan had appointed Bonnicksen "to represent the students and young people, and he was a very fine choice. He certainly doesn't represent the revolutionary, and he's doing more than most of the youth to make the system work."

Bonnicksen's policy declared that all development within state parks must be "consistent with the preservation of natural, scenic and ecological values for present and future developments." It called for confining to designated park roads all vehicles such as trail bikes, dune buggies, four-wheel drive vehicles and snowmobiles.

Playgrounds, golf courses, swimming pools, ski facilities and other recreational developments "are not encouraged within state parks," his policy declared. Its original draft "prohibited" such developments, but Mott argued successfully for more flexible language so his department could consi-

UC Chancellor Heyns Resigns

ROGER HEYNS
Reluctant resignation

Says No Political Pressure Applied

BERKELEY (UPI) — Chancellor Roger Heyns, who steered the Berkeley campus of the University of California through five years of violence and turmoil, resigned today.

Heyns said he was leaving "with utmost reluctance" to return to the University of Michigan faculty.

The 52-year-old educator suffered a heart attack last July but told newsmen this was not his primary reason for resigning.

He said "many considerations" led to the decision, but did not elaborate except to say that "there has not been any political pressure."

University President Charles J. Hitch issued a statement saying he accepted Heyns' resignation "with a feeling of sadness." Chairman of the University Regents William French Smith said he also regretted Heyns' decision to leave.

The chancellor said he would like to be relieved as soon as possible but no later than next June.

During the five years he has been at Berkeley, the campus administration has been under repeated criticism from Gov. Ronald Reagan and others for being too lenient towards demonstrators.

Heyns came to Berkeley from the University of Michigan in 1964 following the "Free Speech Movement" demonstrations which resulted in hundreds of arrests and the dismissal of University President Clark Kerr by the Regents.

During the following years his administration was under constant pressure from radical students on the one hand and a conservative Board of Regents on the other. Major riots occurred on the campus over the "People's Park" and other issues. Heyns' administration called in outside help from the National Guard on several occasions and undertook disciplinary action against student agitators.

Reagan on several occasions praised Heyns' administration for handling certain incidents, but on many occasions he said campus troubles at Berkeley were the fault of weak administration.

Approval To Single Sausalito Terminal

The proposed site is alongside Bridgeway, between Locust and Litho streets and just south of the property recently brought by the city for a municipal complex and waterfront park.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said he had discussed the proposal with Sam Zakessian, owner of the property, and that Zakessian had "indicated a willingness" to consider the proposal. Luehring offered no estimate of the cost of the parcel.

The district has been operating a downtown terminal since August, and had promised the city, under the terms of its conditional use permit to operate the ferry, to shift the main ferry operation to a north Sausalito terminal.

Spaulding, however, strongly objected that a north terminal would confront the district with very high costs to dredge and maintain a channel. A north terminal also would require the ferries to run at slow speeds because of small craft traffic and to minimize damage to the channel.

The board's action authorized Luehring, in cooperation with the city and Zakessian "to begin the necessary preliminary planning toward the development of

Thurber Case Witness Declines Key Questions

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The murder trial of Frank J. Thurber, 45, of San Bruno, stopped abruptly today when prosecution witness, Larry G. Rutherford, refused to answer many questions concerning the Fourth of July shooting of Allan W. Daly.

Rutherford, also of San Bruno, has already confessed his role in the murder of Daly, an I-J employee, and has been sentenced to long term commitment with the California Youth Authority.

Visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor of Alpine County recessed the superior court trial until Monday after only one hour of testimony today.

Yesterday Daly's widow, Stephanie, now of Novato, recounted the events of July 4 when two young men invaded the Daly's San Francisco home and fatally shot her husband.

She said Rutherford, now 17, did the shooting.

Under examination today by Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre F. V. Merle, Rutherford admitted going to the Daly home July 4 with Richard A. Wamsley, 17, also of San Bruno because Wamsley had said Daly would have a couple of hundred dollars at the house.

After asking for money and learning Daly had none, Wamsley and Mrs. Daly went into the kitchen to get grocery money, Rutherford said.

"Where were you?," asked Merle.

"I was with the dude, Mr. Daly," the youth answered.

"That's when he got shot," Rutherford said.

Rutherford admitted firing the shot, but he refused to answer questions about who was with him and Wamsley driving to San Francisco from San Bruno, where he got the gun, where the car was parked and who was in it while the youths were in the Daly house.

Merle read Rutherford's testimony to the San Francisco Grand Jury which indicted Thurber on charges of murder, conspiracy, robbery and burglary.

In the grand jury testimony,

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Chile Defies OAS

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Marxist President Salvador Allende announced establishment of full relations with Havana Thursday night in defiance of an Organization of American States (OAS) quarantine of Cuba.

In a national television broadcast on his ninth day in office, Allende said Chile was re-establishing diplomatic, consular, commercial and cultural relations with the Fidel Castro regime. He said the OAS sanctions were illegal and unjust.

Secrets To Reds

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Arab guerrillas passed on to Moscow secret North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) documents aboard a plane they hijacked to the Middle East, NATO officials said today.

The officials said although they had no definite proof, it was safe to assume that "once the guerrillas got their hands on the documents they finished up in a hostile capital."

The secret documents, which were aboard a Trans World Airlines jet hijacked to Jordan by Arab guerrillas on Sept. 6, contained full details of NATO command exercise "Wintex" scheduled for next winter, NATO officials said.

The documents were bound for the Pentagon, the officials said.

Celibacy Attacked

DETROIT (UPI) — A 1,500-year-old rule that priests of the Roman Catholic Church must remain unmarried has come under new attack as nearly half of all diocesan priests in Michigan went on record in favor of ending "mandatory celibacy" in the church.

Of the 1,545 priests in Michigan's five Roman Catholic dioceses, 972 responded to questions submitted by an ad hoc group of 10 priests.

More SALT Talks

HELSINKI (UPI) — The fourth meeting of the resumed U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) today were marked by serious approaches by both sides to the questions involved, conference sources said.

The formal meeting lasted 45 minutes and was followed by 25 minutes of informal chat over drinks.

Sino-Soviet Talks

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets have begun trade negotiations with Communist China, the official Tass news agency said today.

The brief agency item indicated the two nations had taken another step toward reconciliation. The Soviets sent an ambassador to Peking last month to fill a post vacant since 1967.

100 Die In Floods

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—State Gov. Jose Antonio Murgas says 100 persons have been confirmed dead and more than 1,000 are missing after floods brought on by heavy rains swept a 50-square-mile area of Colombia earlier this week.

Onassis Pressured

ATHENS (UPI)—The Greek government warned today that unless shipping owner Aristotle Onassis pays $5 million guarantee toward his promised investments in Greece the deal between them will be off.

The warning followed a threat by Onassis, husband of Jacqueline Kennedy, that he would not keep his end of the contract signed two months ago unless the Greek government gave him a better deal.

The contract called for Onassis to make $600 million in investments in Greece ranging from a new oil refinery to an aluminum plant, electric energy plan, petrochemical industry complex and several tourist projects.

Argentine Strike

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Heavy police contingents patrolled the streets in Argentina's major cities today on the second day of a nationwide general strike that shut down practically all business, industrial and transportation facilities.

The 36-hour strike which ends at midnight tonight, was called by the 2.5 million member General Confederation of Labor (CGT) to protest the government's economic policies. It is the third nationwide stoppage in five weeks.

Rubin Arrested

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Police today arrested "Chicago Seven" defendant Jerry Rubin, who defied government demands he leave England and flew instead to Northern Ireland.

Special branch detectives took Rubin into custody immediately after the self-proclaimed leader of the Youth International Party (Yippies) Belfast.

"You have no authority to arrest me," Rubin protested. "This is Ireland, not England."

Northern Ireland is under British control.

WALTER CRONKITE
Communication crisis

A Dim News Media Report By Cronkite

CHICAGO (UPI)—The United States is hanging "on the brink of a communications crisis," bounded on one side by disappearing newspapers and on the other by federally regulated broadcast news outlets, Walter Cronkite said Thursday.

This crisis, Cronkite told the 61st national convention of Sigma Delta Chi professional journalistic society, "could undermine that foundation of our democracy which is a free and responsible press."

'ARE NOT FREE'

Cronkite, managing editor of the CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite said broadcast journalism can provide a check on the print media "if we are left alone to perform that essential journalistic function. The trouble is that we are not free, we are government licensed.

"The power to make us conform is too great to forever lie dormant. The ax lies there temptingly for the use of any enraged administration, Republican, Democrat or Wallacite. We are at the mercy of the whim of politicians and bureaucrats and whether they choose to chop us down or not, the mere existence of their power is an intimidating and constraining threat in being."

BRUNT OF ATTACK

Today, Cronkite said, television news "finds itself carrying the brunt of the attack against our freedoms . . . not, I am convinced, because of our performance but mostly because of our impact . . .

"I don't think it is any of our business what the moral, political, social or economic effect of our reporting is," Cronkite said.

Cronkite said it is true television news faces "immense" problems. "They are new and they are unique," he said.

Podgorny Homage Paid To De Gaulle

Marshal Vassili Tshuikov, victor at Stalingrad, placed a wreath of gladioli with the inscription, "To Gen. Charles de Gaulle. N.V. Podgorny," at the tomb where De Gaulle was buried Thursday in a day of national mourning.

Tshuikov told De Gaulle's eldest son, Capt. Philippe de Gaulle, "I have come to honor the memory of the great Frenchman, this great patriot of France, General de Gaulle who, all his life, defended the interests of his country."

Philippe de Gaulle and his brother-in-law, Army Gen. Alain de Boissieu, accompanied Tshuikov and Simon Kozyrev, Soviet Deputy Foreign minister, to the churchyard. After placing the wreath, the four men snapped into salutes which they held for three minutes.

The lights went out in the De Gaulle mansion Thursday night for the first time since Monday when Madame de Gaulle began her nightly candlelight vigils at the side of her husband's body.

But a new vigil was mounted by two, blue-uniformed gendarmes who stood at De Gaulle's graveside in the little country cemetery here that has become France's newest national shrine.

Late into the night, a silent procession of anonymous Gaullist pilgrims filed past the late statesman's tomb, some pausing to make the sign of the cross and say a brief prayer for the repose of De Gaulle's soul, others placing a wreath or a single flower near the grave marked only: "Charles de Gaulle 1890-1970."

The tiny village of Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises began its return to normal. The iron grill barriers that were used to control the tens of thousands of people who showed up for the De Gaulle funeral were mostly removed.

And just after dawn, the handful of children who attend the school in Colombey began to file past the graveside that few of them could approach during Thursday's funeral because of the crush of outsiders who invaded their village.

In Paris, a million people demonstrated on the Champs Elysee for De Gaulle Thursday night.

Ky Visit Date

WASHINGTON (UPI)—South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky will arrive Nov. 15, probably at New York, for an unofficial visit to the United States.

Power Ploy In Syria Is Settled

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A power struggle in Syria's ruling Baath party has been settled with a compromise that will keep Dr. Noureddin Atassi as head of state and party chief, the Beirut newspaper An Nahar said today.

The newspaper said the agreement was reached at a national congress of the Baath party in Damascus Thursday night. The emergency congress was called when Atassi quit as president and pirme minister.

Persistent reports have said the power struggle developed when a military faction and a civilian faction of the party came into direct confrontation over Syria's intervention role in the Jordan civil war.

The London Daily Express said Thursday that Israel has devised a new Middle East peace plan in which it would pull its troops back from the Suez Canal far enough to permit Egypt to reopen the waterway and reoccupy Suez towns.

Express writer Chapman Pincher said the withdrawal would nullify the effect of the buildup of limited range Soviet missiles on the west side of the canal.

He said King Hussein of Jordan has privately approved the plan and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan will fly to Washington next month to discuss the military implications.

Unarmed U.S. Spy Plane Shot Down

SAIGON (UPI) — North iVetnamese gunners today shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance plane 105 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), U.S. spokesmen reported.

The plane, an RF4C Phantom, was shot down 42 miles south of the coastal city of Vinh and the two crewmen on board "are presumed dead," the spokesmen said.

The flareup of the air war followed a resurgence of Communist activity in South Vietnam after a two-day lull. Communists killed nine Americans, six of them in a single booby trap incident Thursday—the highest one-day death toll in a month, spokesmen said.

The tempo of fighting also increased in Cambodia, and reports from Phnom Penh said hundreds of Cambodian troops including elite infantry today began a sweep along Route 7 toward the town of Troeung.

Heath-Nixon Talks

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Edward Heath will visit Washington for wide-ranging policy talks with President Nixon on Dec. 17-18, an official announcement said today.

Soviet Author Guilty Of Slander

MOSCOW (UPI) — Andrei Amalrik was convicted Thursday of slandering the state in his book "Will the Soviet Union Survive Until 1984?" and sentenced to three years in a labor camp, friends reported.

In his book, which was published in the West, Amalrik predicted war with China that would lead to the collapse of the Soviet state.

He said the Soviet Union already is "distending itself and disintegrating like sour dough," and said that sometime between 1980 and 1984 it would explode in "anarchy, violence and intense national hatred."

Novato High Ballots For Queen To Reign At Tomorrow's Events

The candidates, all seniors, had been chosen by members of the varsity football squad, but the entire student body voted for the queen, whose name will be announced at 1 p.m. tomorrow before the football game with Redwood High School. She will reign at the game and at the homecoming ball from 9 p.m. to midnight at the new gymnasium, said Edward W. Kraft, activities director.

Tiburon Asking 2-way Highway

Tiburon residents want a safe two-lane highway where Tiburon Boulevard now stands, rather than a four-lane expressway proposed by the California Division of Highways.

This was the consessus of a public hearing held Wednesday by the Tiburon Boulevard and Shoreline Study Committee, reported chairman Alvin R. Kuhn.

About 65 persons attended the session, called by the committee to consider alternate alignments of the road from "the knoll" to the Belvedere Tennis Club.

Kuhn said most spectators favored enlarging Tiburon Boulevard into a wide, safe two-lane road with stacking lanes and elevated pedestrian overcrossings.

They were unanimous in their desire that the knoll, a small hill near the Pine Terrace subdivision, be preserved by building the road inland, away from the knoll. The highway division had proposed removing about half of the hill for its four-lane expressway, Kuhn said.

The alignment requested by residents would necessitate cutting into some private property on the north side of the highway, but would not require demolishing any houses.

Several persons, Kuhn said, wanted to see the highway built on the ridge above Tiburon Boulevard since future expansion of the city will take place there.

Kuhn said the division of highways believes Tiburon needs a four-lane road to meet expansion needs, but is not committed to that plan.

"If the community is willing to live with a higher level of congestion to maintain certain ecological aspects, the division of highways has said it would cooperate" by building the smaller road, he said.

The committee will meet again Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to consider alternative plans in the section from the Belvedere Tennis Club to downtown Tiburon. These proposals will be discussed at another public meeting Nov. 25, Kuhn said.

The committee hopes to have its recommendations before the city planning commission in early December and the city council the following month.

Shakespeare Festival Plans Drive For Funds

Directors of the deficit-plagued Marin Shakespeare Festival have tentatively decided to split the duties hitherto performed by its executive director and to launch a special drive for funds.

According to festival president Colin J. Ranwsley, the board proposed Wednesday to name a full-time business manager and a director of theater production.

The plan is expected to be adopted at the board's next meeting.

The board had hoped to persuade John Brebner, who resigned last month, to return to the exective director's job, but failed. Brebner quit because of the burden of dual responsibilities.

Although 1970 box office receipts were the highest in festival history — nearly $50,000 — a deficit of $3,100 was created by an arsonist's fire, vandalism, thefts and a falling tree limb which ruined much of the theater's lighting.

In addition, a deficit of $10,738 remained from prior years.

The board plans to mail out 6,000 requests for donations to festival supporters and proposes special fund raising events.

Contributions may be sent to Barbara Young, administrative assistant, Marin Shakespeare Festival, Box 2306, San Rafael.

Siskiyou Vote Count Delayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Secretary of State's office said today that transportation problems in three remote precincts in northernmost Siskiyou County have caused a delay in the final vote count for the Nov. 3 election.

Officials said election night rainstorms in the precinct areas caused the transportation problems. However, they pointed out, county officials promised that the ballots would be here by Dec. 8—the deadline for the reporting of all results.

Without the results from the three precincts, the latest Secretary of State figures were 99.9 per cent complete.

The latest figures showed Gov. Ronald Reagan defeating challenger Jess Unruh 3,382,203 to 2,878,896; Rep. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., beating Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., 3,425,984 to 2,828,127; and Proposition 18, on the use of gas tax monies for antipollution measures and rapid transit systems, being defeated 3,121,611 to 2,648,287.

Girls Smarter

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — A university survey shows that the failure rate for girl students — up to 34 per cent — is considerably lower than that for men. Almost 50 per cent of all students at Denmark's three universities, Copenhagen, Aarhus and Odense, fail their final examinations, according to the survey.

End Asked To Jet Fuel Dumping

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Air Pollution Control Administration (NAPCA) said Thursday it has asked airlines to stop pollution caused by dumping jet fuel into the air after take-off.

The castoff fuel is a residue that seeps into holding tanks when jet engines are stopped after a flight. The holding tanks are emptied automatically within minutes after the next takeoff.

NAPCA commissioner John T. Middleton said in a letter to airline officials that planes are dumping an estimated 6,700 tons, or two million gallons, of fuel a year.

"This not only adds to air pollution but is wasteful of essential fuel resources at a time of shortage," he said.

The Air Transport Association of America (ATA) responded that airlines are investigating alternatives to the practice.

"If there is a way of stopping it, it ought to be stopped," said William G. Osmun, ATA director of technical information. "Now that it is brought to focus we are going to do something about it."

Asked why the airlines had not acted before, Osmun replied, "We have worked on the bigger aspects of pollution and have neglected this in favor of them ... When the jet engines were designed environment was not as big an issue as it is now."

Middleton said that at Washington's National Airport alone about 110 tons of fuel are dumped each year.

"This could have significant effects on the health and welfare of people who live and work near the airport," he said.

Middleton asked the airlines to report to him by Nov. 30 on plans for halting the practice. A NAPCA spokesman said the agency has no authority to require a halt.

However, the airlines agreed voluntarily to reduce the amount of black smoke emitted by jet engines, after an earlier NAPCA request.

Veteran pilot William Lane Guthrie of Eastern Airlines was fired last month for emptying fuel residue while his aircraft was on the ground.

Osmun said draining the fuel while the aircraft is grounded would cause schedule delays and require more manpower.

Some airlines say the castoff fuel dissipates in the air. But some pilots say it causes slick runways, stains buildings and pollutes swimming pools near airports.

Castro Conducting Labor Voting To Hike Production

MIAMI (UPI)—Cuba watchers here are following with interest the latest effort by Premier Fidel Castro to boost the island's lagging productivity and cut down on absenteeism in industry.

Radio Havana broadcasts monitored in Miami have announced a month-long process of electing local labor leaders in factories and other places of employment throughout Cuba.

The process began Monday Nov. 9 and is expected to continue through Dec. 9. The Cuban radio has hailed the elections as the beginning of "democratization" of the Cuban Workers Confederation (CTC), as outlined in Castro's Sept. 3 speech to a special CTC congress in Havana.

The speech came at a time when the Cuban economy was suffering from the massive disruption caused by an all-out effort to harvest 10 million tons of sugar. The harvest fell 1.5 million tons short of the goal and Castro admitted July 26 that the effort had badly damaged other sectors of the economy.

One result was apparently worker apathy, because the regime has since launched a major campaign against absenteeism in the factories.

It is not yet clear how the election process will work, or whether it signifies any real change in the Cuban labor movement, at present rigidly controlled from above.

As in the past, the "elections" will involve only one slate of candidates for each CTC local. However, Castro promised that all workers would be given a voice in choosing the slate.

"We are going to trust in our workers and rapidly carry out elections in all the union locals, that is, in all the factories," Castro said in his CTC address. "And we are going to carry them out in an absolutely free manner, in which the workers can nominate anyone they want."

In an apparent reference to past practice, Castro said that "a worker truly elected by a majority of the workers will carry (moral) authority, he won't be just a mister nobody, he won't be some guy shoved into office from above by an unseen hand.

"We want to build a strong, a very powerful labor movement. For the movement to be strong, for it to be powerful, for it to be a labor movement at all, it must be 100 per cent democratic," Castro said.

The words sound strange coming from Castro, whose revolution destroyed the independent unions existing in Cuba when he came to power in 1959, and replaced them with a Communist-dominated C T C. The labor movement became a monolithic apparatus handing down government policies from above and urging the workers on to more zealous fulfilment of production quotas.

Insignia-Blazer Growing Favorite

NEW YORK (UPI) — The solid-color blazer with breastpocket insignia, once largely limited to the campus, is fast becoming an image-builder for business and industry, says Richard M. Volpe, vice president of Meinhard-Commercial Corporation factoring firm.

The demand for blazers is on the rise because corporations and businesses are becoming more conscious of the need for favorable public awareness of themselves, Volpe says.

Tossed Bottle Breaks Window

An overenthusiastic reveler tossed his empty champagne bottle through a door window at Leo and Wolf Garage, 136 Front Street, San Rafael, Tuesday night, police reported yesterday.

The missile damaged the fender of a car parked inside, police said, but there was no estimate of damage.

Sausalitans Air City Complaints

By PAT ANGLE

Approximately 110 Sausalito "hill people" turned out last night to air their complaints to city officials and ask questions about such concerns as the downtown scene, panhandling, traffic, hitch hiking and groups of people living in single-family homes.

No firm conclusions were reached at the town meeting, sponsored by the Sausalito Citizens Council, but those officials who attended tried to alert residents to some of the difficulties faced in solving the city's problems.

Discussion topics were based on a recent questionnaire which the citizens council sent to 400 residents. Carl W. Spring of the council said 140 surveys, representing the opinions of approximately 420 residents were returned.

Panhandling, hitchhiking, group living in single-family homes and the "deteriorating" downtown scene seemed to be most objectionable both to those who attended the meeting and those who replied to the questionnaires.

Panhandling has no place in Sausalito, according to 135 residents who answered the questions and 113 wanted stronger controls over hitchhiking and 127 said they would not want groups of unrelated people living in the house next door.

One man thought the city should enforce an antiloitering law, to solve the panhandling problem. "The average panhandler is standing still outside a store; very few will walk alongside you," he explained.

Mayor Alexander Imlay explained the courts have ruled "you can't take persons and throw them into jail because they are standing around. A person with a large bank account may be sitting enjoying what Sausalito has to offer and he would be loitering," the mayor added.

Imlay and Councilmen Wyman Hicks and Robin Sweeny said effective control of begging would be possible only with full cooperation from the residents. Because it is a misdemeanor offense, a policemen can make an arrest only if he sees the incident or if a person makes a citizen's arrest.

Mrs. Sweeny quieted the fears of some who were afraid they would be hurt in making such an arrest. She said an individual need only keep the offender under surveillance, call the police, wait until they arrive and then identify the panhandler. "You don't have to grab them and hold them," she explained, "but you do have to be willing to go to the police department and make a formal complaint and then go to court and testify against the individual."

Most residents agreed they wree "sick and tired" of hitchhikers. Jean Sorf felt most of the city's "bad element" gets into Sausalito by using their thumbs.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said the state has preempted laws on hitchhiking. He said the law states the hitchhiker must keep off the road and not block traffic.

Mrs. Sweeny said a resolution asking the state for a law prohibiting hitchhiking has been referred back to committee for two years by the League of California Cities and expressed disappointment over the league action. She suggested the mayors and councilmen of Marin County may have to get together and go to Sacramento to plead for stronger laws, which some persons feel may not be constitutional or may be impossible to enforce.

Enforcement will also be a problem in enacting any city regulation of the number of unrelated people who can live in a single house, H. Eric Borgwardt, city planning director, said. "It's not the function of the city to conduct a doorbell survey of each dwelling unit," he said, "and even if there were a bonafide complaint and the city went to court, the defendant could suggest the additional people were houseguests and have the case dismissed."

Although parking on Bridgeway was not discussed last night, since the city council recently voted to continue and expand the parking ban, 41 residents favored no parking, 39 favored leaving a few spaces for cars and 33 thought there should be parking on both sides of Bridgeway.

About 100 of the respondents said they shop downtown, but 44 said they shopped less than before the ban on parking was put into effect.

Most persons, both in the questionnaires and the audience cherred the ferry service, although only 20 said they used it to commute and 43 said they rode the boat for pleasure. Many residents (74) indicated they favored the ferry's encouragement of tourists, while only 35 thought the additional tourists "bad."

A ferry stop in downtown Sausalito, even after the main terminal is built in the Marinship area, would be a necessity, most Sausalitans agreed, if the ferry is to be convenient for residents.

On the downtown scene, 122 said they didn't like it as it is now, 135 thought the police should strongly discourage public drinking, exhibitionism and narcotics and 106 wanted more dog control.

The city's downtown foot patrol is a good idea, accrding to 122 persons and many persons in the audience thought it had improved conditions.

Ninety-six persons said they would shop more downtown if conditions were improved.

No Business

The City-County Services Committee of Marin, which would normally meet next Monday, will not meet this month because there is no business to undertake, Assistant County Administrator John F. Barrows announced today. Next regular meeting date is Dec. 21. The time and place will be announced later.

Petaluma Lumber Yard Robbed

Redwood fencing valued at $150 was stolen last night from Oberg Lumber, 5000 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma police reported today.

Employees said a man in a station wagon loaded the supplies from the rear of the lot.

Del R. Ross told police that burglars had stolen change from a washer and dryer at his apartments at 201 H Street. He said the coin boxes contained under $50.

North Korea To Free Japanese Ship Crew

TOKYO (UPI)—North Korea today said it will release the crew of a Japanese "espionage" ship and send them back to Japan aboard the vessel, but will keep the captain and one other crew member to "punish them under the relevant law."

The Korean Central News agency said in a broadcast monitored here the ship, the Mitsu-Maru, was detained Sept. 8 when it "had illegally intruded deep into the territorial waters of our country . . . and committed espionage acts."

Terrorists Engineer $6 Million Bank Heist

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Leftist Tupamaro terrorists robbed the government's Savings and Discount Bank of 1.5 billion pesos —$6 million — in jewels and cash Thursday night in one of the greatest armed thefts in modern history.

The theft was carried out under the nose of authorities. The Interior Ministry (police headquarters) flanks the bank building on one side and the presidential communications office on the other. Both offices are under heavy round-the-clock guard.

Police said the five men and four women involved in the theft apparently included jewelry experts who went through the bank's vaults and picked out the most valuable jewels, deposited as security for loans by bank customers. The thieves were aided by a bank employe, Daniel Camilo Guinovart, 23, who let them in and showed them where the valuables were stored. He later escaped with them.

The robbers struck at 8:45 p.m., seizing three high bank officials to get them past six bank guards. They used three stolen cars, police said. The Tupamaros bound and gagged the watchmen and the bank executives and then proceeded at their leisure to go through the vaults. The entire operation took nearly four hours, police said.

Larkspur Youth Pleads Innocent

Daniel Raymond Christian Prince, 20, of Larkspur, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing a Larkspur residence on Oct. 14.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. denied a request by Prince's lawyer to waive a preliminary hearing and send the case im memdiately to Superior Court.

A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 24.

Prince was arrested on a warrant charging that he was the person who fled the home of Virginia Ann Schryver of 108 Ardmore Road after she surprised him in the house.

Crime Rate Drops

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The number of major crimes in San Francisco decreased in October by 11 per cent from the same month a year ago, Police Chief Alfred Nelder said Thursday.

Rubella Campaign Will Start Monday

Marin's one-month campaign to immunize children against rubella, the crippler and killer disease, will start Monday morning at St. Raphael's School in San Rafael.

A team of doctors, nurses and volunteers is all set to make the rounds of the county's elementary schools in hope of immunizing about 40,000 children from age 1 through 11. The campaign will run from next Monday through Dec. 15.

Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, county health officer, announced that one change in schedule is being made for next week. The immunization clinic, set for 1:45 p.m. next Wednesday at St. Hilary's School in Tiburon, has been canceled and re-set for Dec. 14.

"Parents with pre-school children should take their youngsters to the nearest school where immunizations will be given," said Dr. Albrecht. However, if a youngster has received another type of immunization within the past month, he will not get the rubella vaccine, she added.

Here is the first week's schedule:

Monday — 9 a.m. at St. Raphael's school; 1 p.m. at Del Mar School; 2:45 p.m. at Reedland Woods School.

Rubella, or German measles, caused 20,000 infants to be born with congenital defects and another 30,000 to be stillborn after the nationwide epidemic of 1964-65. Another major rubella epidemic is expected early next spring, said Dr. Albrecht.

Freeways May Be Economic Boost

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — An economic and engineering study is under way to determine the effectiveness of the proposed Delaware-St. Lawrence Expressway in helping economic growth in a 200-mile corridor of New York state.

The area under study extends from the Route 17 expressway near the Pennsylvania border north to the St. Lawrence River Valley. When other conditions necessary for development are present, highways can serve as catalysts for economic growth.

The new study by URS Systems Corp. of San Mateo will determine if the Delaware-St. Lawrence Expressway will be such a catalyst.

Roof Squatters

LIMA (UPI) — Peru has its squatters, even in downtown Lima. They are families without homes who frequently move onto the roof of a downtown office building and erect crude shelters. Some of them are discovered only after they have lived there for months.

Einstein Upheld In New Tests

PASADENA (UPI) — Albert Einstein's 54-year-old theory of relativity has been upheld through recently-conducted radio tests with two Mariner spacecraft by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, it was announced Thursday.

The tests, designed to measure the maximum delay of radio and light signals, showed that Einstein's predictions are right to within two to four per cent. According to Dr. John D. Anderson, chief investigator of the JPL experimental team, the best measurements thus far available show a maximum delay of about 204 microseconds for Mariner VI, as compared with an expected 200 microseconds using Einstein's theory.

Other theories, such as that of Drs. Charles Brans and Robert H. Dicke, hold that Einstein's formulations about the effects of gravity could be in error by seven per cent.

The JPL team has taken several hundred measurements to date using the satellites as relay point.

Research Ships Turn Bay Into Classroom In Science

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A unique marine science program is giving the new ecology-minded generation in the San Francisco Bay Area an intimate knowledge of that celebrated body of water.

The ship is now devoted full-time to taking junior high school through college level science and oceanography classes out on the bay to study firtst hand the chemistry, biology, currents and water life of that fragile natural resource.

The Inland Seas, operated by the Marine Ecological Institute of Palo Alto, carried more than 4,000 student passengers last year and has already had amost 1,000 young scientists aboard so far this year.

Among groups on the vessel this week were classes from Orinda and a group of teachers from the Urban Studies Center in Oakland.

"This isn't an outing on the bay," said Robert E. Rutherford, head of the institute. "It is a scientific marine field trip."

As the clean and comfortable Inland Seas pulls away from port it drops its trawling nets to catch fish and a net to collect plankton.

The fish are taken into the ship's aquarium where the students identify, measure and classify them. The plankton is taken to the shipboard biology laboratory for study by another group.

In the ship's chemistry laboratory a group of students take samples of the bay water and bottom mud, measure its temperature, study chemical content and other qualities.

In the navigation room they plot the location of their research in relation to the bay's geography, sewer outfalls and other environmental characteristics.

Teachers as well as the students find it a "very exciting experience," said Rutherford.

"One teacher pointed to a boy avidly studying water chemistry in the ship's laboratory and told me he had been trying for six months without success to overcome that student's apathy in the school lab.

"The difference was that here he had taken the water sample himself and was doing it all himself," said Rutherford.

The institute has its own staff of marine scientists who guide the shipboard research of the students. Pre-trip and post-trip materials are provided the teacher to make the outing a significant part of the regular curriculum.

"Requests on hand indicate we will take 12,000 to 15,000 students out this year if we can keep operating," said Rutherford, a businessman and educator devoting his time to the non profit institute.

The institute charges a small fee for a high school class to cover some of the costs. It hopes to receive a grant from the National Science Foundation next year but not is dependent on gifts to cover most of the operating expenses of $575 a day.

"We are trying to get a few ecology-minded foundations and corporations to help us keep going," Rutherford said. "I have a $2,400 insurance premium to pay this week."

Stan Ostling, a California state education consultant, took several trips with classes which include some youngsters who had never been on a boat before.

"I have never seen so many learnings packed into so short a period for so many youngsters," he observed afterwards.

The institute, at 200 California Ave., Palo Alto, has dozens of letters from teachers in the schools of 37 districts around the bay who have put their students aboard the Inland Seas. All of them attest that the experience will give the students a realistic sense of what is meant by all the talk about saving the bay.

New Judge

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — James E. Kleaver, 37, a Yreka lawyer, has been appointed a Superior Court judge for Siskiyou County by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Language Testing Workshop Planned

A workshop on "language testing and a realistic curriculum" will be offered Wednesday at 4 p.m. in Ives Hall, Sonoma State College.

The workshop will be directed by Donna Ilyin, an instructor at Alemany Adult Day School in San Francisco. Reservations must be made with the college department of foreign languages.

Knowledge of God

We were always meant to know God . . . to be deeply aware of His infinite nature and power . . . and to follow where this knowledge leads in working out our salvation. The Bible speaks of it often. It's the most fundamental knowledge there is, and it requires prayerful study and consistent practice. Christian Science church services offer assistance to those who seek this knowledge. You are always welcome, any Sunday or Wednesday.

SAN RAFAEL STREET SCENE

Officer Joseph V. Leonard of the San Rafael police found this an odd situation to describe yesterday. The MG sports car driven by Peter G. Ballantine, 19, of 123 Canal Street was stopped on Fourth Street near Court Street behind the Coupe de Ville Cadillac driven by Ruth L. Jowett, 53, of 42 Mount Whitney Drive, when a car driven by Jerome C. Corbett, 53, of 50 Buena Vista, Fairfax, pushed the sports car under the cadillac at 12:31 p.m., police said. A fourth car driven by Virginia M. Rowley, 59, of 245 Bayhills Drive was hit by the Cadillac. No one was injured in the accident, police said.

Prosecution Calls Fifth Riot Witness

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — The prosecution's fifth witness took the stand today as the trial stemming from the Feb. 14 riot outside the Independent-Journal resumed after a two-day recess.

Douglas J. Barrett, a Marin County sheriff's deputy, testified in Solano County Superior Court at the trial of seven men arrested during the demonstration called in support of striking printers.

Barrett, one of more than 125 officers summoned to the demonstration, said he helped arrest one of the defendants, Alvis Dean Bailey, 43, of San Francisco.

The officer said Bailey struck several fellow officers with a picket sign handle. Bailey, a truck driver for the San Francisco Examiner "resisted violently," Barrett said, and had to be subdued by several officers.

Novato's New Attempt To Boot Math Teacher

The Novato School District board made a new attempt yesterday in Marin Superior Court to get rid of Wyman W. Kunzler, Hill Junior High School mathematics teacher accused of teaching over his pupils' heads.

The board has been shot down in an earlier attempt to fire Kunzler when Judge E. Warren McGuire ruled that the charges of alleged incompetence were not specific enough.

In a new suit filed yesterday, the board sought to comply with the state Education Code by accusing Kunzler of such actions as teaching "binomial theorem" to beginning algebra students and presenting pupils with 20-digit multiplication problems.

After Judge McGuire ruled against the board in September, trustees again voted on Oct. 5 to fire Kunzler. On Oct. 22 he asked for a hearing on the matter.

The vote to give Kunzler notice of intent to dismiss was made after a 45-minute closed hearing and was a unanimous decision of the board.

Kunzler is not presently teaching but is still being paid by the district.

Board Due Outline On Retarded Plan

Marin County's program for the mentally retarded will be outlined to county board of education members at their meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Oak View School at Terra Linda.

The workshop session will handle no regular business actions, and only a brief list of special actions including award of contract for the Magnolia Park occupational training shop.

Government Probe In Crude Oil Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration said Friday it will investigate a crude oil price increase by two large U.S. firms that could cost American motorists a penny more a gallon for the gas they buy.

As other companies reported they were considering following the lead of Gulf and Atlantic-Richfield, the White House's office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) informed the two companies that the inquiry was being started into "the national security implications of a price increase at this time.

Gulf and Atlantic-Richfield increased crude oil prices, effective Friday, by 25 cents a barrel to $3.35 and ordered an accompanying hike of 0.7 cents a gallon in the wholesale price of gasoline to dealers.

'Inner-Colleges' Eyed For Novato

College of Marin trustees reviewed plans for the future Novato campus last night, under pressure from deadlines that could sink the projected 1974 opening date for the campus.

Dale A. Fleming, planning director for Marin Junior College District, said he hoped to have figures on the number of classroom, laboratories and other facilities ready for trustees by or before Dec. 1. The next set of figures must be submitted to the state before Dec. 31 to keep to the 1974 goal, he said.

Last night's workshop session reviewed the concept of three semi-specialized "inner colleges" capable of handling 2,200 students to start. The proposal included extensive use of sophisticated teaching techniques such as computer access stations for students, open, multi-purpose laboratories, electronic carrels for individual and group foreign language study, and many other learning devices.

Trustee chairman Elizabeth M. Deedy said she was "extremely concerned" about the lack of time for Fleming to prepare figures on the number of rooms, amount of space and expected enrollment in various classes to obtain state matching funds for eventual construction.

The speakers last night shunned mention of how the district would finance its share of the cost in light of the Nov. 3 defeat of a 16.9 million bond issue by a hair-thin margin.

That is to be taken up at next Thursday's regular board meeting.

Fleming reported that he envisages a total of 10 assorted laboratories, some combining equipment for geology, anthropology and geography for up to 45 students at a time, others combining art, engineering and drafting facilities, and others biology and chemistry.

Each of the "inner colleges" would have its own classrooms, lecture hall, and individual study facilities. Fleming envisioned a single library to serve all colleges, and possibly a single food service center for all the colleges.

Mrs. Deedy and others were quick to warn that this could be a trouble source. They urged extensive consultation before any decision is reached, because they were unhappy with the food situation on the Kentfield campus.

Michael Hanson, a member of the faculty committee that has been investigating the "inner college" idea for more than a year, said Fleming's plans have not yet resolved such questions as whether the Novato campus should offer intercollegiate sports, a campus newspaper separate from the Kentfield campus, and other facilities.

"We're going forward with this inner college plan without justification in terms of cost compared to conventional campuses," warned Trustee Robert E. Rogers.

"There are no physical problems — except food services — that would be different," replied Fleming. As for the study carrels and other sophisticated equipment, "it may cost more, but it extends more service to the student. It's more value per dollar spent," Fleming said.

Bay Area Charity Drive Exceeds Goal

SAN FRANCISCO — The United Bay Area Crusade today announced that its 1970 five-county campaign had raised $17,038,951. That is 101 per cent of its goal, according to Stephan A. Girard, UBAC campaign chairman.

The announcement was made at UBAC's annual awards luncheon here, for more than 700 leading volunteer fund-raisers and representatives of major contributor groups.

The Bay Area crusade raised more than one-half million dollars more than last year's campaign, which met its goal by taking in $16,515,800, Girard said. He said awards for this year's effort would go to more than 2,000 employee groups and labor organizations for their support to the campaign.

Direct recipients of crusade funds in Marin County will include scouting activities, Red Cross, Big Brothers, Catholic Social Service, Jewish Community Center, St. Vincent's School for Boys, Sunny Hlils, Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Marin Mental Health Association, YMCA and YWCA and other agencies.

Display Could Be Crash Cause

An attention-grabbing display window may have been the cause of a traffic accident in which one persons received minor injuries Tuesday, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Colleen Y. Kane, 25, of South San Francisco declined treatment for a cut on her forehead after the car in which she was a passenger hit the rear of a car driven by Maragret D. Houston of 57 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo, near 1444 Fourth Street at 5:27 p.m., police said.

The other driver, Ernest R. Higgins, 22, of South San Francisco told police he was distracted by a store display and did not see the Houston car stopped ahead of him.

Settlement Of Suits Against Frouge Made

Suits totaling $40,490 and filed in Marin Superior Court by former Marin County Supervisor Vera Schultz and architect Edmund C. Heine Jr. against the Frouge Corp. and the estate of the late Thomas Frouge have been settled.

Mrs. Schultz had claimed $29,425 for public relations work done for the firm in connection with the controversial Marincello project.

Heine had asked $11,065 for architectural fees. Both wanted 7 per cent interest on the sums for the period since August 1968.

Their attorney, William Mahaffey, declined yesterday to disclose the amounts they settled for.

Marincello was to be a planned community in the Marin Headlands which has never been built. The property is now owned by Gulf-Reston, and a new plan will probably be presented for the project, since courts have ruled the one approved by the board of supervisors in 1965 to be void.

$5 Million Suit Filed Against City

I.J. Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A disc jockey sued the City of San Rafael and several other parties yesterday for $5 million in damages as a result of a school yard fight in which his son was seriously hurt.

David Niles of San Francisco, a disc jockey for radio station KNBR, contended in the suit that his 11-year-old son, Kelly, suffered disabling brain damage and other injuries.

The suit, filed by attorney Bruce Walkup in superior court, named the City of San Rafael, the San Rafael Board of Education, Mount Zion Hospital of San Francisco and two physicians at Mount Zion.

It alleged that Kelly got into a fight with another boy at Bahia Vista School in San Rafael during a city-sponsored recreational program on June 26.

The boy reportedly was playing softball when the fight erupted.

The suit said Kelley was taken to the hospital after the fight and released. It says the school district and the city failed to provide proper supervision over the school yard.

The boy is now in Stanford Hospital. The suit says he has "extensive brain damage, essentially total paralysis from the neck down, loss of functions of his body, muteness or the inablility to speak and other injuries presently undiagnosed. all of which have rendered him totally unable to care for himself." Costs of his hospitalization are $3,000 a month, the suit said.

Before the suit was filed, $5 million claims were submitted to both the San Rafael Board of Education and City Council, but rejected. The school board said the recreational program was the city's responsibility and the council referred the claim to its insurance carrier.

Sirhan Conviction Appealed; 18 Issues

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sirhan Bishara Sirhan's death sentence for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has been appealed on 18 issues his defense attorney claims are grounds for a reversal of the conviction.

Attorney Luke McKissack told a news conference thursday the appeal was based in part on prejudicial publicity; the failure of the trial judge to accept a negotiated plea with the prosecution; psychiatric testimony at the trial; and the entire issue of capital punishment.

The 740-word brief filed with the California Supreme Court said that based on psychiatric testimony, Sirhan should have been guilty of manslaughter and not murder.

It also said that the presiding judge, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker, refused to allow Sirhan to plead guilty in exchange for a life sentence, as agreed by the defense and the prosecution.

Walker refused to permit the "plea-bargaining" because he wanted to prevent the possibility of lingering speculation over the case, as occurred after the assassination of the late President John F. Kennedy.

McKissack said the prosecution in the Sirhan case "pulled the rug out" from under the defense. He said the defense and state previously had agreed there would be no death penalty and the defense had no knowledge of the change in plans until the final prosecution summation.

Sirhan, who has been on death row in San Quentin for almost two years, was convicted of the 1968 assassination of Kennedy on the night of Kennedy's primary election victory in California as Democratic presidential candidate.

McKissack said the direct appeal to the state Supreme Court, which is automatic in California for persons condemned to death, would cost about $50,000, which he said he was personally financing.

Judge Upholds Statute On Flag

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A superior court judge Thursday upheld the constitutionality of the state law against defiling or destroying the American flag.

The law was challenged by two teen-agers arrested during an antiwar protest. The attorney for one of the youths asked the court to block their trial on grounds the misdemeanor law violated the constitution.

But Judge William M. Gallagher rejected the petition saying "all patriotic and well-meaning people would deplore disrespect for our flag, and it would seem to this court that the state has legitimate state interest in preserving the loyalty and patriotism represented by the American flag."

Michael L. Alford and Richard J. Jensen were arrested May 8 on charges of burning the flag on the west steps of the state capitol. An FBI agent told the court the teen-agers poured lighter fluid on the flag and burned it during a demonstration.

Thurber Case Witness Declines Key Questions

Rutherford said that the gun used to shoot Daly was Thurber's and that Thurber had given it to him, and that Thurber and Thurber's son, Michael, drove to San Francisco with the two youths on the evening of July 4.

But today, Rutherford said he couldn't remember.

"I don't want to answer your questions. You can find me in contempt of court, but that's all I want to say," he said, continuing "Hey, man, I'm through with it. I want nothing to do with this case anymore."

Judge Moor warned that he could be subject to a longer sentence than he has now if he refused to answer the questions.

"What is this, some kind of blackmain?" the youth protested.

Judge Moor recessed today's session, saying he wanted to check the law and that the court may have to take action in connection with Rutherford.

Moor also said he wanted to talk to Merle and defense attorney Nathan Cohn in his chambers.

Yesterday, Mrs. Daly, appearing calm and speaking in a clear voice, told step-by-step the events leading up to the fatal shooting of her 30-year-old husband.

She said a tire had been slashed on Daly's car while it was parked near their residence one night in late May, and the house was firebombed two nights in a row, June 15 and 16.

In his opening statement earlier yesterday, Merle said he would prove that Thurber had hired Wamsley and another San Bruno youth, Walter Peterson, to do the firebombing.

On July 4, Mrs. Daly said, she and her husband had worked on the house all day. "Our goal was to complete the house, sell it and move to Marin County," she said.

After supper, their older son, Allan Jr., 14 months old, was put to bed in an upstairs nursery. Mrs. Daly said she had just placed 3-month-old Kevin in a bassinet in the dining room at about 9 p.m. when there was a knock on the front door.

Daly, wearing a gold corduroy jumpsuit, was in the living room watching television. She opened the door to find two young strangers, Mrs. Daly said.

Merle gave her pictures of Wamsley and Rutherford to identify, and she said, "Those are the two men who murdered my husband."

One of the two men asked her if her car was blocking a driveway down the street, she said. She told him no, but he asked her to step out on the porch to look. As she did, they both pulled guns, she said, and told her to get back in the house. Wamsley also carried a piece of lead pipe, she said.

As the three entered the house, she called for her husband, who was already standing when they entered the living room.

The two men told the Dalys to "turn around and face the wall," she said.

They turned, she said, and both faced windows looking out on Connecticut Street.

Because of the previous incidents of vandalism, she had picked up the nervous habit of pulling the curtain aside to look out, she told the court. That night, facing the window, she pulled the curtain.

"Get away from the window," one of the men shouted, ordering her and her husband into the dining room.

Standing near the bassinet containing their child, they were asked for money.

Mrs. Daly said her husband told the men they didn't have any money. With that, "Wamsley lashed out with his lead pipe and cracked my husband across the face. He fell on the baby's bassinet, broke it and then fell to the floor."

She cried out to the men, "We have two tiny babies," and they assured her the children would not be hurt, she said.

Remembering that she had about $5 for grocery money in a small change purse in the kitchen, she testified, she went to the kitchen to get it, accompanied by Wamsley. As she handed him the money, she heard a shot in the dining room.

"Oh, my God," she told the court, "I just stood there screaming, 'Oh, my God.' I was afraid to move."

As the men fled the house, she went to the dining room to find her husband shot. She called an ambulance. "The number was handy because we were afraid of something like this happening," she said.

Daly was taken to San Francisco General Hospital where he died 12 days later.

In a move that surprised even Merle, Mrs. Daly, who saw Thurber in person for the first time since the murder when she took the stand yesterday, told the court she had seen him before.

After she had described how the tires on her husband's car had been slashed, and their home twice firebombed, Merle asked if there had been any other unusual incidents prior to July 4.

"Yes," she answered quietly, "One day I saw Mr. Thurber. He was parked in front of my house."

She said Thurber and another man whom she couldn't see very well, sat in a car parked across the street from the Daly home for about an hour. "They just sat there. They never got out of the car," she said.

In cross-examining, Cohn asked her why she had not mentioned the two men in her testimony to the grand jury. She said she was still in a state of shock, "having seen my husband murdered."

She said she told police about five weeks ago that the man might have been Thurber, but she wasn't certain of it until she saw him yesterday.

Cohn asked if she had told her husband or the police about the two men in the car, and she said no. She explained that when she and her husband filed police reports on the tire slashing and firebombs, police had told them there wasn't much they could do unless they could catch someone in an act of vandalism.

"What could I have told the police other than there were two men sitting across the street?" she asked.

"I had no idea of what he was contemplating at the time" she said in a lowered voice, "or I certainly would have called the police."

Judge Moor sustained Cohn's objection and the sentence was stricken from the record.

Early yesterday, Or. Robert R. Wright, autopsy surgeon for the San Francisco Coroner's office, said that he performed an autopsy on Daly's body July 16 and that death was caused by complications resulting from a gunshot wound.

man, who said his experience selling noisy heavy equipment led him to estimate that completely soundproofing the building would cost $100,000.

"The best way to solve the sound problem," he said, "is not to let it happen." The audience again applauded.

Planning Commissioner Paul E. Rosenthal then told the council he voted for the restaurant because he felt the planning commission had control over it.

"We imposed some exceedingly stringent conditions. If they can't achieve them, they're out of business," he said.

Mrs. Alan F. Kappelman, representing the Outdoor Art Club, read a resolution of the club board opposing the restaurant. Another woman, Zeda Philps of 100 Lovell Avenue, said she liked rock music — "I go to the Fillmore in San Francisco" — but opposed the restaurant "because of the capacity. It will draw outsiders into our town and change the intimate atmosphere of Mill Valley."

After a five-minute recess, the council reconvened and councilman Edward J. Boessenecker immediately moved that the council uphold the appeal and deny the application.

"I find the proposed use is incompatible with Mill Valley," he said. "It's in too large scale, it's detrimental to the community and it would create undue noise."

His motion was seconded by Jean S. Barnard, and on a roll call vote, the council voted 4-0, Andresen abstaining, to uphold the appeal and deny the permit.

SEC Chairman Will Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hamer H. Budge resigned Friday as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

The White House said President Nixon accepted Budge's resignation but asked him to stay on the job through the current congressional session.

In his letter, Budge noted he had been an SEC commissioner for 6 1-2 years. "The time seems appropriate," to resign, he said.

Budge was a House member before being appointed to the SEC. Nixon named him chairman of the regulatory agency.

Attack Tied To Ladar's Resignation

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Jerrold M. Ladar, chief of the criminal division in the U. S. attorney's office here, resigned on his own initiative Nov. 2 after a long-time friend was implacated in a rape case, Ladar's superior said today.

Ladar, a resident of Mill Valley and trustee of the Tamalpais High School District, had previously announced he would enter private practice next January.

San Francisco Police Inspector Don Kennealy stressed today that Ladar's only action with the rape case "was getting an attorney and raising bail" for San Francisco jeweler Jerry Plotkin, accused of participating in the mass rape.

Three other men still are sought in the alleged rape of a 23-year-old woman in Plotkin's apartment, police said. The woman said she was forced into a car she later identified as Plotkin's, taken to his apartment and kept overnight, on Oct. 24.

Ladar's involvement with radio telephone equipment found in Plotkin's car and apartment resulted in a welter of conflicting statements.

The transmitter in Plotkin's car bore a tag that said "U. S. Attorney's office" and gave Ladar's office address.

Inspector Kennealy said that Ladar told him and other investigators that Plotkin had the equipment because his apartment was used in federal security and narcotics investigations.

Ladar denied he ever said that, according to San Francisco newspapers. He was not available today when called by the Independent-Journal.

U. S. Attorney James L. Browning said Ladar told him he had sold the equipment to Plotkin a week before the alleged rape, but had neglected to remove the name tag. Browning said the equipment was Ladar's personal property.

Browning refused to comment on the differences between what police said and Ladar said about the matter.

family of nations, stressed anew President Nixon's desire and said the President is for better relations with Peking working toward a point "where we can begin establishing communications with China."

In the U.N. debate Albanian Deputy Foreign Minister Halim Budo made a pox-on-both-your-houses speech in which he charged collusion between the United States and the Soviet Union to rule the world and demanded Red China's admission. Albania has long acted as Peking's voice in the U.N.

Canadian Ambassador Yvon Beaulne underlined Canada's recent recognition of Peking by announcing his delegation would vote for its seating in the General Assembly. But he also said he supported the U.S.-backed move to have the issue declared an "Important Question" that requires a two-thirds majority in the vote next week on China's admission.

In Moscow, the Soviets spoke up diplomatically on behalf of Communist Chinese entry as sole representative of China.

"The formula of the two Chinas is untenable and has no chance of success," said a Soviet commentary on the upcoming seating vote, circulated by the Tass news agency.

"This formula is needed by the Americans as a backstage maneuver to try and split the supporters (of Communist Chinese entry) . . .

"As far as the Soviet Union is concerned, it has always come out in the United Nations for restoring in full the rights of the Chinese People's Republic which alone can represent the Chinese people".

he came from. The Soviet leader said he was from the Ukraine and added the only cities he had visited in the United States were New York and Washington. According to Ziegler, Nixon replied by recalling his own visit to Moscow and said it was not typical of the Soviet Union any more than New York or Washington are of the United States.

The two leaders spoke for 11 minutes, during which time Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi joined them with the laughing comment, "Can a smaller country get in on the conversation before the two big countries have made all the decisions?"

der them if appropriate in rare cases.

The policy instead favored uses including camping, picnicking, sightseeing, nature study, hiking and horseback riding. Bonnicksen said the policy "represents this commission's concern for its stewardship of almost 700,000 acres of irreplaceable state park lands."

He warned that the parks already were "very seriously endangered" by recreational de velopment inconsistent with park purposes. "It's time for this commission to face squarely the need to preserve these parks for this generation's children, and for their children's children," Bonnicksen declared.

He was applauded by most of the 40 persons in the audience. About a dozen persons rose to urge adoption of Bonnicksen's policy. Several letters and telegrams, including one from the Marin Conservation League, also supported it.

Joseph F. Morrison of San Rafael, an investor, said the policy would "tend to minimize such things" as restaurants and the hotel planned for Angel Island. "I think the state parks are great, and I want to see them kept that way," he declared.

Mott, visibly reddening at Morrison's remarks, insisted that criticism of his staff's plans for park development was "a bit unfair — our staff has always been concerned about resources."

Walter R. Briggs of Berkeley, a forester, agitated Mott even more when he said that "the object of parks is not to provide carnival-like areas." Mott accused him of "inflammatory language," but Briggs insisted that this view of future plans by Mott's staff was held by "professional foresters and geologists and range managers."

Kenneth Sandersen of Berkeley cautioned that once parks are invaded by mechanical, electrical and motorized development, "you've blown it." Parks like Angel Island, he said, were especially threatened because they were in the middle of booming populaion areas. "The thing most needed near population areas is natural areas," he said.

If there is a need for recreational development, Sandersen predicted, private developers will meet that need outside state lands.

In other business, Mott reported that it will cost from $50,000 to $60,000 to rebuild the portion of Fort Ross lost in a recent fire, "depending on contributions." He said that the cause of the disaster still has not been determined.

Petaluman Found Lying On Sidewalk

John Davidson, 31, of 714 Keokuk Street, Petaluma, was found lying on the sidewalk in front of Sam's Tavern, 171 Petaluma Boulevard North, yesterday at 5:30 p.m. He was reported in good condition at Petaluma Boulevard North, Wednesday at 5:30 p.m.

He was reported in good condition yesterday at Petaluma General Hospital with a possible concussion. Police said Davidson had apparently been involved in a brawl, but would not explain how the injury occurred.

Book On Marijuana Pulled From Shelves

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—A book describing marijuana-smoking as "simply grand" was pulled from the shelves of a junior high school library after parents complained.

The book, entitled "Pot, a Handbook on Marijuana," is not on a state-approved list, and Gov. Lester Maddox, when informed of the incident, said "I have chewed the state Board of Education three or four times for permitting such books."

Winning Idea?

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Billy Joe Clegg, a 42-year-old salesman, is forming his own political party and plans to campaign for the White House in 1972 in the "Clegg formula." The plan involves ending the Vietnam War by bringing draft-age South Vietnamese men to the United States. "Train then to fight and while they are in America let them see democracy in action", Clegg said in a newspaper advertisement. "I really can't lose. If they think I'm crazy, the state will rehabilitate me."

No Ordinary Tourists, They Paint The World

ROME (AP) — InIndia,they had to push people away from their car to get through crowded streets. In Afghanistan, they were run down by a speeding bus and almost arrested. Here in Rome they slept below the Pope's window in St. Peter's.

In March, 1969, 50-year-old Cyril Whiteoak and his wife, Martha, set out from Auckland, New Zealand, to drive around the world. With their Hillman camper bus, a lot of courage and ingenuity, and quite a bit of luck, they reached Rome 14 months later—the halfway mark in a 40,000-mile journey.

The Whiteoaks are not mere tourists out to see the world. They are artists out to paint it.

Cyril's art studio in Auckland was a Hillman bus equipped with a large drafting table and his artists supplies. He saved time by working "on location," mostly for architects.

Martha was known for a different form of art: she cards, spins and weaves her own wool. The result is exquisite handmade material which she either sells or uses to make clothes for herslef and her husband.

When they had saved enough money for their trip, the Whiteoaks fitted the camper with a small kitchen and a folding bed, a spare tire, 12 gallons of water, 90 pounds of honey, dried vegetables, powdered milk and fruit cakes.

At the half way point they were still eating the bread Martha baked 14 months earlier.

The Whiteoaks are both vegetarians, which has solved some of the food problems, and sheer ingenuity has solved many others. In place of a washing machine, Martha puts dirty clothes in a plastic bucket with hot water and soap and puts the lid on. After a few hours of driving, the motion of the camper has swished the clothes clean.

"I rinse them in waterfalls or fountains where the village women do their washing," Martha said. "They dry inside the camper as we drive."

She has even invented a pressure cooker. "We slice our vegetables very thin and put them in a large thermos bottle with boiling water. The water stays very hot and cooks the vegetables, so by the time we stop at noon, lunch has cooked itself."

Once when there was no gas for the stove, Martha turned her iron upside down and cooked on it. Such ingenuity comes in handy, for the Whiteoaks are on a strict budget, due to currency restrictions.

Both Cyril and Martha have made sketches and watercolor paintings throughout their trip. Cyril has concentrated on the intricate detail of monuments, strange dwellings and boats, while Martha has sought to capture on canvas the feeling of a place and of its people.

There have been many adventures on their voyage, and some have been less than pleasant. One occurred in Kabul, Afghanistan, when Cyril was painting the rug sellers' market along the river, and a policeman walked up to him and sai, "I want you."

"What for?" Cyril asked.

"You come," he replied, and three or four other policemen came up. Soon the crowd began to say, "You must go."

"When we got to the police station—a dark little place—the police chief seemed surprised to see us," Cyril said. "I showed him the painting and asked if it was all right to do that painting, and he said, 'Oh, yes, it's all right.' And he let us go. We never did learn why we were stopped."

In India, they heard stories of tourists being raped and murdered and Cyril has told never to leave his wife alone. Most of the time, they tried to stay in Dak houses, which are run by the government. By parking their bus inside the compound, they felt safe for the night.

But about 100 miles from the Agra, they stopped at a Dak house that had no other guests. Before they knew it, the custodian had locked up the house and left them alone in the yard.

"There were no lights," Martha remembered, "and it was awfully quiet. I was a little scared until I looked outside the bus door. There, lying right beside our door, were two big dogs, guarding us. They stayed there all night, and I felt much safer."

Not all of their experiences have been dangerous or unpleasant. In Greece, they tried to buy goat's milk. It's one of Martha's favorite memories.

"Cyril went up to a man who had several cans of milk. Since he didn't speak Greenk, he put his fingers to his forehead like the horns of a goat, and he said 'Baa aaa?'

"No," the man said, "Moo ooo. We never did get our goat's milk."

officer, but the defense promptly had him removed by using its one peremptory challenge, which did not require an explanation fo the judge.

The prosecution used its one peremptory challenge to remove Maj. Hugh D. Farmer, who had stated he was opposed to capital punishment.

There must be at least five and no more than ten officers on a court-martial board. The first three jurors were selected from a nine-member venire. Kennedy then called in seven more officers to be seated on a second panel of prospective jurors.

The judge said the jury would be completed in time for Calley's trial to start on schedule Monday. He indicated a Saturday session would be used to accomplish this.

Maj. Robert E. Ehrhardt Sr. was one of the six members of the initial panel rejected by the judge following challenges.

Ehrhardt said he thought the Army made a "mistake" bringing Calley to trial, although he added that he would judge the case on its merits.

"I have been in combat, not only in Vietnam, but also in Korea," said Ehrhardt. "I know the stress and strain on the soldier. I have seen some of the things the Viet Cong have done to the people they are supposed to be liberating."

The prosecution successfully challenged Ehrhardt's presence on the jury.

In accepting Welch and Ford for the jury, Kennedy rejected defense challenges resulting from the officers' statements that they had seen news accounts of the alleged massacre before they had been named to the court-martial panel.

the Sausalito ferryboat terminal at this location."

The ferryboat system, already approved by bridge district directors, calls for purchase of a second vessel for the Sausalito service.

Luehring conceded that Sausalito officials, until recently, were unwilling to even consider a permanent terminal in central Sausalito. He said that getting the city to accept such a site will require "much negotiation."

Supervisor Michael Wornum commented that city officials now have "more confidence in our ferry operation."

Spaulding's recommendation for the central terminal said it would be far more practical because it would eliminate the cost of operating many feeder buses and because more passengers would be within easy walking distance of the terminal.

CLEANING A RIVER

The Kennedy, a U.S. Corps of Engineers dredging boat, slowly moves along the Mississippi River near the St. Louis riverfront. The Kennedy is a steam powered, sternwheeled, paddle boat, one of the few of its kind still in operation. It trails a long pipe, supported by small barges, to pump the silt and sludge dredged from the river channel off to the side. (UPI Telephoto)

Research Completed On Frogs In Space

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI)—Space agency scientists said today they have completed all their planned research projects on two bullfrogs blasted into orbit around the earth earlier this week.

Spokesmen for NASA's Ames Research Center, which is directing the experiment, said the projects were completed during the frogs' first 72 hours in orbit but that several "bonus" experiments will be performed during the next few days.

The frogs and their tiny space capsule were shot into an orbit 200 to 375 miles above the earth Monday from Wallop Island, Va.

The purpose of the basic science experiments is to determine how sensory systems work. Electrodes were attached to the frogs' inner ears, the nerves leading to the brain and the brains themselves. they sent signals back to earth as the spacecraft flew in weightlessness or was revolved at 50 revolutions a minute to create a light artificial gravity.

Gravity activates the otoliths—tiny hairlike objects in the middle ear which tell the brain whether an animal is off-balance. In the weightlessness of space, the otoliths cease to function. By switching gravity on and off, scientists hoped to learn how one sensory system operates.

Dr. Torquato Gualterroti, a former Ames researcher now at the University of Milan in Italy, designed the project. Its findings are expected to extend to other sensory systems, including those of man.

The experiment, described as basic scientific research possible only in the weightlessness of space, cost $4.66 million.

Field Says 'Anarchy' Ad Aided Tunney

STANFORD (UPI)—The famous "anarchy" advertisement put out by Sen. George Murphy's forces the day before the election helped elect John Tunney, pollster Mervin Field said Wednesday night.

Field told a Stanford audience the entire last-minute flurry of Republican support for Murphy, including President Nixon's visit and the furor over a rock-throwing demonstration against Nixon in San Jose, was "counterproductive" and added up to a "disastrous loss."

"As a result, Tunney won by more than he should," Field said. "Now we'll see a lot of foolishness in the media linking Tunney with the late John F. Kennedy. Blame it on Murphy, because Tunney did better than he should have."

Field said one of his polls showed Murphy 6 points behind Tunney on the Thursday that President Nixon appeared in San Jose. Four days later, on the Monday preceding the election, he was 12 points behind.

That was the day Murphy's forces put full-page ads in newspapers around the state claiming the election the next day was a choice between "anarchy or law and order."

"The whole episode, including the President's endorsement, was counterproductive and turned into a disastrous loss," Field said.

Field said the late-minute effort for Murphy also proved once again that when a candidate reaches a certain level of public exposure, any more is harmful.

Field said Nixon's election eve national television appearance was also a mistake.

He said Sen. Edmund Muskie, who appeared for the Democrats the same night, came off so much better.

"If you had taken a controlled group of voters who had never seen either personality before, told them one was the county sheriff and the other the president of the United States, you would have had a 75-25 split in favor of Muskie," Field said.

Field said Wilson Riles' defeat of State Education Superintendent Max Rafferty was the most dramatic switch in voter preferences during a campaign he had seen in 25 years of polling.

Riles came from 25 points behind Rafferty to 1 per cent ahead between June and November, Field said, and finally won going away.

Part of Rafferty's defeat was the result of bitterness by moderate Republicans who had not forgotten Rafferty's 1968 primary campaign which defeated Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel in 1968, Field said. But before the campaign was over, he said, even Reagan-Murphy conservatives came into the Riles camp.

COLLEGE BUILDING BURNED

Firemen in El Cajon, Ca., mop up the blaze that destroyed an estimated 60 per cent of Grossmont College's fine arts building early yesterday. The fire also burned numerous paintings, sculptures and other art projects.

Bitter Resignation In Teachers' Pay Dispute

Gregg W. De Gear, resigned last week as president of the Novato Teachers Association in a bitter letter which he read before the meeting of the teachers representative council.

De Gear blamed the "old guard" who have always played it safe with their dealing with the district office. He said that in the past two weeks, when the pressure of a sanctions alert was given the board, he saw a retreat of the teachers from this position.

"Having failed to follow through, we will never know how far the school board could have been moved," De Gear wrote.

He said that he was too assertive to continue to be the president and could not capitulate on the district as the others have done.

Vice President John Enders took over the meeting. It was not known today whether the NTA would have to call a special election for a new president, or whether Enders could serve out the term of De Gear.

The Novato teachers and the district board were only one-half of one per cent apart today in their salary dispute but other differences remained to be ironed out.

The representative council of the Novato Teachers Association has approved dropping the teacher salary increase demands from 8.5 to 6.5 per cent, De Gear reported yesterday. The board has held firm on a 6 per cent increase.

Other points of difference between the teachers and board include special services pay, substitute pay and more teachers at San Jose Junior High School and fourth grade, he said.

The representative council was meeting again today to discuss these differences, De Gear said.

"When the negotiating council and the administration reach an agreement, it will have to be ratified by the entire NTA membership," he said. It would also have to be approved by the school board.

Only after that would the NTA lift the sanctions alert. It has not applied the sanctions because some progress has been made in negotiations, he said. The sanctions alert will remain until an agreement has been reached, he said.

Patrolman, Not Chief

Judy Fink of Novato, owner of one of six sailboats stolen in Greenbrae, said today that she complained about the theft to Patrolman Eugene Adrian, not to Larkspur Police Capt. Charles J. Mattos. It was Adrian, she said, who "almost laughed at me" rather than Mattos, as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

I-J Guard Testifies Of Harassment

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A security guard at the San Rafael Independent - Journal newspaper office testified Thursday that he was harassed and followed while driving a newsprint truck to San Jose for the struck newspaper.

Robert Folland, who worked for the firm providing security for the newspaper, said that a truck from Garden City Truckers delivered newsprint to the newspaper plant but the driver did not want to return the truck to San Jose because he said he had been threatened.

Folland testified in U.S. District Court that he himself drove the truck and was harassed and followed by two cars.

Two other witnesses testified at the contempt proceedings brought by the National Labor Relations Board against three unions.

They were San Rafael Police officer R. Maynard and John Henry, security officer for Lucky stores. Both testified as to observing picketing at food stores during the period the NLRB alleges the unions violated court orders against secondary boycotts.

Colvin Appointed To San Francisco Bench

Morton R. Colvin, longtime Marin resident and chairman of the state Workmen's Compensation Board, today was appointed a judge of San Francisco Superior Court by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Colvin resides at 1366 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, but said he maintains a second residence in St. Francis Woods in San Francisco, which is his voting address. He said "plans are indefinite as yet" on whether to continue the two residences on taking over the judgeship.

The appointment is to fill a vacancy on the San Francisco Superior Court bench. Colvin's name will be submitted to the electorate for confirmation in 1972.

Colvin has been in state employ since 1958, and for a decade previous to that practiced law in San Rafael.

He became law enforcement coordinator for the state Division of Forestry in 1958, and two years later became an attorney for the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department. In 1962 he was appointed a board referee for the Workmen's Compensation Board, and in 1967 was named chairman of that board by Governor Reagan.

He has been active in the Republican party and served as a member of the Marin County Republican Central Committee until resigning last year.

Marin City Plans Program Revision

The Marin City Council, trying to keep control of about $50,000 in federal planning funds, last night authorized its chairman and manager to prepare a plan for revising the planning program, Chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr. reported.

Banks said he and manager Jack Williams will spearhead efforts to have a new plan ready by Nov. 24, date when Marin County supervisors will decide whether the Marin City program should be terminated.

Kansas Voids Hippie's Election

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI)—An opinion by the attorney general of Kansas has voided the election of hippie Phillip Hill as justice of the peace.

Hill, who says he supports himself mainly by peddling dope, was elected Nov. 3, but the attorney general's ruling Thursday interpreted a 1968 law as saying the office has been abolished in certain cities, including Lawrence.

Hill said he plans to take the matter to court—"to the State Supreme Court, maybe."

Bel Marin Keys Studies Creek Lock

The Bel Marin Keys Community Service District board last night decided to investigate the feasibility of placing a lock at the mouth of Novato Creek, said secretary Betty L. Zoeller.

The board will write John A. Blum and Associates of San Francisco, marine engineers, asking if such a project is feasible, the estimated cost and time to install, she said.

The lock would be automatic and could be operated by boat owners going in and out of the lagoon and creek at all times, she said. It would maintain a uniform water level in the lagoon and creek. The lock could be opened wide during periods of excessive runoff in the creek.

This was just a letter of inquiry and there is no estimate on the cost of a study or the work, she said.

The board voted to give the Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club $750 for a larger deck on the pavilion which the yacht club is enlarging, she said.

$6,000 Robbery By Masked Gunmen

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Two masked robbers, one carrying a shotgun and the other a pistol, walked in on an informal dinner for 17 Southern California lawyers at a country club here Thursday night and walked off with over $6,000 in cash, checks and jewelry.

Legion, City Explore Rec Center Venture

Talk of cooperation between the American Legion and the City of San Rafael to build a community recreation center was revived at last night's meeting of the city parks and recreation commission.

Members of the Legion's Wilkins Post No. 37 and city officials have discussed the idea for five years, but with no result.

No actual cash figure was discussed, McCown said today, but the city's unsuccessful attempts to finance a $300,000 center with a bond issue, and previous Legion offers were reviewed.

Fred Jensen, city councilman and commission member, moved successfully that the commission ask McCown and Mayor C. Paul Bettini to set up a small committee representing the council, the commission and the Legion post to explore the proposed cooperation.

Andrew J. Snyker, director of parks and recreation, also told the commission about the city's fall recreation program which will open Nov. 24. He noted that the program has been cut back from former years, because the San Rafael Board of Education has refused to contribute $24,000 to the program.

Snyder said the city will have fewer hired recreation leaders, will have programs for fewer children and must charge a fee for after-school programs, as well as for nonresident participants in any of the recreation programs, because of the withholding of the school funds.

Marin Students In Thoreau Play

Two Marin County drama students at Fresno State College have roles in "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," now playing at the campus.

Daniel T. Husak, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Husak of 100 Bayo Vista, San Rafael, is John in the drama, based on the jailing of Henry David Thoreau for refusing to pay taxes on the grounds that the Mexican War was unjust. Husak is a junior.

Judith A. Rude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Rude of 522 Palm Avenue, Kentfield, has the role of Lybian. She is a senior.

Suspect Booked On Stolen Goods

A Novato man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of possessing and selling stolen property, police reported.

Lawrence A. Sunstrom, 18, of 1001 Eighth Street, was booked into Marin County Jail with bail set at $1,000. He was scheduled to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported that Sundstrom allegedly sold on Oct. 2 a .22-caliber revolver which had been reported stolen in Marin county.

This new car is the best reason not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle.

In a year when every car maker seems to be giving you one reason or another not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle, it might be a good idea to listen to the best reason:

Volkswagen's Super Beetle.

It has almost twice the luggage space as the Beetle of yesteryear.

It has a longer-lasting, more powerful engine.

It has a new suspension system for a smoother ride.

It has a flow-through ventilation system to bring in fresh air when the windows are closed.

The interior is, to be honest, much nicer.

The floor, for example, is fully carpeted.

In all, it has 89 things you could never find on a Beetle.

So of all the claims you'll hear this year by car makers that their cars are "better than a Beetle," there's only one car maker with 25 years experience in small cars to back it up.

Volkswagen.

Go-Ahead Given Sewage District

Stymied by Tiburon Sanitary District and the City of Belvedere in its plan to enter the sewage treatment business, the Marin Municipal Water District started over without them yesterday.

The district board passed a resolution of intent to form Improvement District A to provide sewage facilities for all communities draining into Richardson Bay except Belvedere and that portion of Tiburon served by the Tiburon Sanitary District.

No other change was made in the plan previously blocked by the Tiburon Peninsula dissidents.

The plan presented by Dr. William A. Hargreaves of the Tamalpais Community Services District calls for $190,000 to "evolve a long-term plan for the treatment, reclamation and disposal of waste water in the Southern Marin area."

Hargreaves is president of an advisory committee appointed by the water board and made up of representativse of the sanitary districts included in the proposed improvement district.

Of the advisory committees' new proposal, district General Mgr. William R. Seeger said, "In reviewing the proposed work outline I find it completely satisfactory and workable and see no reason why it, in its entirety, cannot be substituted for the one that we had previously recommended."

The board agreed unanimously and set a hearing on the matter for Dec. 10 since all members cannot be present on the regularly scheduled day, Dec. 9.

Prior to Dec. 10 — which Seeger hoped will end seven months of discussion — every affected community services district must endorse formation of the improvement district and agree to a joint powers agreement with the water district, Seeger said.

Hargreaves promised to get the required agreements and asked the board to set up a three-member committee to select a project manager for the pre-engineering study.

The committee set up by the water board is to consist of Seeger, a board member and an advisory committee member, Cyril Hansen.

The Tiburon Sanitary District board shied away from the improvement district because it opposes further studies. Its secretary, Robert A. Sterling said in August that three studies have already been performed and called the proposed pre-engineering study a "step backward."

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

TAMPERS — Awarded a $2,649 contract to John M. Cole Company of Redwood City for three ram tampers for compacting soil and a $4,509 contract to I. R. Equipment Corp. of Oakland for one vibratory tamper.

GRADING — Approved $5,196 contract for grading work needed for a new million-gallon water tank at the entrance to Tennessee Valley.. The contract went to Robert Mulloy Excavating and Grading Contractor.

FISHING — Agreed to allow fishing year round in district lakes in accordance with state law.

APPRAISAL — Hired Roy Farrington Jones of Farrington Jones and Co. for $450 to appraise land needed for the Bret Harte tank enlargement.

MARINCELLO FEE — Learned that Gulf Oil Corp. and Frouge Corp. have agreed to pay the Marincello annexation fee of $51,990 after the board asked the county to place the bill on the tax role.

RETIREMENT PLAN — Put over to the Nov. 25 meeting so that comparison could be made of private industry discussion of a new employee retirement plan that would increase retirement benefits by the amount of Social Security. It would add $76,000 to the present district cost of $177,739.

Justice Department Plans More Dialogue On Campuses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General John N. Mitchell today announced Justice Department officials will visit nine more college campuses in attempts to achieve a dialogue with students.

Department officials already have visited six campuses in a series of discussions with students "to improve communications through an exchange of information and views."

Mitchell began ordering the visits after he held several personal discussions in his office with students last spring following campus violence.

Mitchell has indicated he personally would visit a campus but the Justice Department Information Office said he merely intends to substitute at one of the scheduled visits as time permits.

The visits are:

—Nov. 16, University of Utah, Salt Lake City: Assistant Attorney General William H. Rehnquist, Office of Legal Counsel.

—Nov. 17, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque: Rehnquist.

—Nov. 18, Arizona State University, Tempe: Rehnquist.

—Nov. 18, Marquette University, Milwaukee: Assistant Attorney General Gerris Leonard, Civil Rights Division.

— Nov. 18, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.: Assistant Attorney General Richard W. McLaren, Antitrust Division.

—Nov. 20, University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati: Bruce Wilson, special assistant to McLaren.

—Dec. 2, University of Kansas, Lawrence: speaker to be named.

—Dec. 3, University of Maine, Orono: Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold.

Man Pleads Innocent To Statutory Rape

Reza M. Zolfaghari, 25-year-old Iranian student who lives in Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of statutory rape. A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 24.

Two Hunting Clubs Given The Boot

The Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday revoked the leases of two hunting clubs which rent about one-third of the district's 17,000 acres for $975 per year.

Directors voted 3-1 to give the Big Trees Hunting Club and the Redwood Gun Club 30 days to vacate the premises each has leased from the district since 1948. The leases pre-date district takeover in 1946, however.

Lame duck director Leo L. Stanley cast the only no vote. William A. Marcus left before the issue came up.

"I don't think it is fair to kick them out right now because somebody doesn't like somebody else," Stanley said.

However, board President Robert G. Anderson disagreed. "I strongly think the time has come to give all people use of water district lands," he said. The combined membership of the clubs which lease a total of $5,850 acres is restricted to 20 persons.

Director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. expressed worry about the danger of a riding and hiking trail now running through the leased hunting lands.

Directors also considered requesting that the state Department of Fish and Game declare the area a "game refuge," but decided against it since guns are not allowed on unleased water district land in any case, according to the district's attorney Robert W. Elliott.

Big Trees Camp has leased 5,000 acres in Lagunitas Canyon since 1948 for $625 a year. Redwood has leased 850 acres below Alpine Lake for $350 per year since 1954 and for $250 for the preceding six years.

The Big Trees lease was to run until 1973 and the Redwood lease until February, but each had a provision allowing the district to cancel them of 30 days notice.

The hunting club leases came before the board on the coattails of the Meadow Club controversy. On Oct. 29 the board hiked the rate for the exclusive golf club from $480 to $8,400 and served notice the hunting clubs would lose their leases.

General Services Aid Is Promoted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Chief Deputy Director Donald G. Livingston of the State General Services Department was promoted by Gov. Ronald Reagan Thursday to assistant secretary of the State Agriculture and Services Agency.

A spokesman for Reagan said Livingston's replacement would be named later. His new salary will be $27,200 a year.

Livingston, 32, a Republican from Carmichael, served as chief of the Division of Consumer Affairs before being appointed to the general services post.

In his new position, the governor's spokesman said, Livingston will assist Earl Coke in the overall supervision of the 12 departments in the agency, including cabinet functions in the Reagan administration.

Water District Directors Fire Back At Phoenix Lake Critics

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District lashed out yesterday at lay and professional critics of the district and took the stand that the district has not harmed the ecology of Phoenix Lake.

Directors absolved the district of blame after hearing a favorable report on its sludge disposal method from William R. Seeger, the district's general manager.

Seeger said the report prepared by the district staff showed that "sludge disposal causes only insignificant effect to the natural environment at Phoenix Lake."

Seeger presented cost estimates of other methods of disposal than by dumping sludge from the Bon Tempe plant into Phoenix Lake.

Alternate methods — that might be required for "esthetic" reasons, Seeger said — include building treatment beds for the chemical bearing sludge and trucking it away. Cost estimates were $80,000 to $97,000 capital outlay with operational costs up to $9,700 per year.

The report came in response to charges by Kentfield ecology enthusiast and the state Department of Fish and Game that the water treatment leftovers from Bon Tempe filtration plant have polluted the lake.

Dan K. Campbell of Kentfield and the Fish and Game agency complained to the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board and that body slapped a ban on further dumping on the district.

The water quality staff told the water district to begin "positive containment" before Sunday, but gave no indication what the phrase means pending talks with the district.

Directors scolded the water quality control staff for acting before asking for the facts, criticized the press for printing "misinformation" and claimed the report takes the district off the hook.

"As far as I am concerned, the report of staff exonerates us," said director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. who was joined in praise of the report by the other directors.

President Robert G. Anderson said, "I am positive a lot of accuracy has gone into it," and added, "It is unfortunate that some individuals in the water quality control board took off without even a report to look at."

Director Dr. Leo L. Stanley said "It seems to me this whole thing has been very unfair to the water district. It has very dire results for the water district. I want to say I think it is very unfair and unjustifiable."

Martinelli questioned whether the water quality board might not give the district a clean bill of health after studying the report.

"It could be, but what was good 12 years ago might not be today," Seeger said .

Board member-elect Eugene A. Miller suggested a workshop involving water quality, fish and game, Campbell and whoever else wishes to participate. Seeger promised to set it up to review the report.

The water district reported:

Bon Tempe sludge is not toxic in Phoenix Lake; 12 years of dumping —terminated Oct. 8 in favor of landspreading on the hill above the lake —has affected only 1 per cent of the capacity and characteristics of the lake; and erosion from district opeartions has not been a "detrimental factor" to the lake.

All the findings read by Seeger yesterday have been disputed by the Department of Fish and Game.

The water district report stated that, "sludge is not toxic based upon the definition of toxic as: poisonous."

However, Seeger told the board nothing will grow in sludge because there are no nutrients in it.

Seeger said the district's new practice of spreading the fill on the landslide scar will not harm the hillside or the lake, but said it is not a long-term solution to the dumping problem.

He said the district must find an alternate to spreading the substance in drying beds since the district's San Geronimo plant now uses three acres for treatment of sludge and its capacity is to be doubled. "You haven't got enough land anymore," he said.

He claimed that dumping in the 1 per cent of the lake is less damaging environmentally than using acres of land.

Seeger said a centrifuge process may provide the solution, and said some method other than sludge beds will be used in the San Geronimo expansion planned for 1971-72.

Fish and Game recommended that Bon Tempe sludge "be deposited in a pond or basin, allowed to dry and, if conditions warrant, be trucked away to a permanent disposal site."

More Exempt On Tax Filing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An additional five million low income Americans will not have to file income tax returns next year, according to Treasury Department regulations announced Thursday.

The regulations, carrying out provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1969, provide higher limits on the amount of money a person may make before he must file a tax return.

The new limits are $1,700 a year for single persons, $2,300 for a married couple or a single person over age 65, $2,900 for a married couple where one spouse is 65 or older, and $3,500 when both husband and wife are at least 65. Previously the limits were $600 a year or $1,200 a year for persons aged 65 or over.

Shift To Juvenile Job Is Denied

Capt. William F. Johansen, head of the Tiburon sheriff's substation, yesterday denied reports that he has been named head of the Juvenile Bureau of the Marin Sheriff's Department, but a Tiburon official confirmed them.

Johansen said reports of the reassignment in the Ebb Tide, a weekly newspaper, were the result of "a mixup in communication." He did acknowledge that Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos is reorganizing the department and had said he might need Johansen in some other capacity.

Tiburon City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose, however, said Mountanos approached him three weeks ago and said he may need Johansen as juvenile bureau chief.

Rose said he granted his "reluctant permission" for the move and understood Johansen would assume his new duties Monday. Sgt. Angelo J. Mecchi, now second in command in Tiburon, will take over there, Rose said.

Sheriff Mountanos said today that his department is being reorganized since Harvey Teague, former chief of the bureau, was made a captain but nothing definite had been done yet to fill the juvenile post.

Innocent Plea To Drug Sale

Robert Doyle Fuller, 20, of 208 San Felipe Way, Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of selling $10 worth of methamphetamine on Sept. 16.

A preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Fuller was arrested yesterday when he appeared in court on another matter and a warrant was served on him which said that he had sold the speed in the presence of an undercover officer in Novato.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. released Fuller without bail on the condition that he live with his parents and be home each night by 9 p.m.

No Charges Filed

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Susan Graham, 21, of 9 Mendocino Lane, Novato, who had been arrested Saturday on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs for sale.

New Larkspur Open Space Plan Is Asked

Larkspur needs a complete master plan for open space and recreation, the Larskpur planning and park and recreation commissions, meeting in joint session, decided last night.

According to Harlan Barry, recreation director, the commissions voted to recommend to the city council that the Berkeley planning firm of Arbegast and Newton be directed to prepare such a plan which would tie into Larkspur's general plan.

If the council approves, Barry said the park and recreation plan could probably be completed by next summer. It would show what areas in Larskpur should be set aside for open space and formal parks.

If the plan is included in the city's general plan, Barry said the city could ask each future subdivider to provide either a park or funds to be used for a community park.

He said the recreation plan would include hiking trails and bicycle paths and would also show the needs of specific recreational areas to help the city decide, for example, whether a piece of land should be used for a tot lot or a community park.

Barry said the plan will also take into account recreational areas around Larkspur, such as Mount Tamalpais, to provide guidance so that complementary, rather than duplicate, recreational areas are developed in the city.

The commissioners also heard a report from Barry that the city is seeking an easement along property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vincilione, on Magnolia Avenue from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road. If granted, he said the easement would tie paths in Larkspur to a proposed county bicycle path from Bon Air Bridge to College of Marin.

The parks commissioners directed Barry to contact Corte Madera officials to work toward synchronization of bicycle paths between both towns.

They approved and agreed to send to the city council a recommendation that the city, in conjunction with the Larkspur Corte Madera School, re-surface tennis courts at the school. City share in the project would cost $2,750, Barry said.

They directed the recreation director to continue seeking two young persons, between 15 and 21, to serve on the parks and recreation commission. Interested persons may contact Barry at the Larkspur city hall.

Novato Sanitary Bond Is Backed

The North Marin Federation of Homeowners board last night unanimously endorsed the proposed $5.5 million sewer bond issue for the Novato Sanitary District president Guthrie Greene reported today.

The federation will send letters to its 11 member organizations asking them to support the bond issue in the Dec. 8 election, he said.

A federation representative will attend the board of supervisors meeting Tuesday to protest the mobile home park proposed adjacent to the Los Robles Mobile Home Park off Bel Marin Keys Boulevard. Marvin Soiland proposed the mobile home park in conjunction with an industrial park.

Gromyko Sees Pope

MILAN, Italy (UPI)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left Rome today after talks with Pope Paul VI and Italian leaders and came to Milan as a sightseer.

Minor Change In Lot Split Delayed

The Cotati Planning Commission last night delayed action on a minor subdivision request to allow more time to study street improvement needs.

Ernest E. Ford had requested that his property at 190 East Cotati Avenue be divided into three lots. Planner Mel Pedersen said the commission should give some thought to requiring a street width there of 50 feet.

A special meeting was set for Nov. 24 at 7:30 p.m. to consider the street size. The commission agreed to change the date of the Nov. 26 meeting to Dec. 2 because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Neighbors Report Slashed Auto Tires

Three San Rafael neighbors on Longview Drive reported tires were slashed on their autos between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m., Wednesday, police reported yesterday.

Hazel M. Cohen of 28 Longwood said a tire was punctured on a rented car at her home. William M. Richards of 32 Longwood reported two tires worth $64 were cut and Sanford A. Masonek of 43 Longwood reported four tires worth $140 on two vehicles were clashed, police said.

Petaluma's School Bulge To Continue

Schools may be overcrowded today on the eastside of Petaluma, but the worst is yet to come, school board officials told the city council last night.

Representatives of the Old Adobe School District board and Petaluma Board of Education said that some of their schools may be bulging at the seams now, but the 1971-72 school years should be even worse and asked for some control on growth so building programs can catch up.

Old Adobe Supt. Dean D. Magowan said his district now has three grades on double sessions at La Tercera School and two grades at Old Adobe School. He said the double sessions in the primary grades could spread to Bernar Eldredge School since 500 additional students are expected next year.

Board member John Thompson said the double sessions are hard on the youngsters since one group leaves home in the morning darkness and the second session returns home after dark. He said the concentrated four hours of school leaves few break periods for the youngsters who still have limited powers of concentration.

Magowan said the basic problem developed nearly two years ago when the state could not sell construction bonds at the limited interest rate of 5 per cent and building programs were halted. During that period, home construction in the district did not diminish.

Petaluma Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the district has solved the overcrowding problem at McDowell School by bussing 75 students to westside schools that have lost enrollment.

He said, however, that the rapid eastside growth has overcrowded Kenilworth Junior High School and Petaluma Senior High School and won't be abated until the new Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School opens in the fall of 1972.

Sol Fishman, president of the Petaluma Board of Education, asked the council representatives to slow down development until both districts can build enough schools and not have to depend on state aid. He said the districts could then depend soleding schools at will without havdin schools at will without having to justify everything to Sacramento.

Thompson said the district must show the state that enough house foundations have been poured to provide enough students for the proposed school. While the homes are completed in three months, it sometimes takes two years to build a school to house children from the homes, he said.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said the growth will be somewhat limited by the capacity of the sewer plant and length of the sewer lines. He said the present plant can handle an additional 5,000 residents which will probably not be realized until 1973.

Planning Director William C. McGivern said water and sewer lines are not extended past Ely Road or Casa Grande Road and that the districts need not fear any large housing developments beyond that point in the near future.

Meyer said the city council would hesitate to limit growth too stringently since home construction has become one of Petaluma's biggest industries. He said the city has also gained from sales tax revenue generated by new stores lured to the eastside because of rapid development.

Fishman warned that large residential development often inhibits industrial development which could broaden the tax base and benefit both the Old Adobe and the Petaluma High School district.

Meyer said the Petaluma School District would like population projections for after 1972 so that more thought can be given to planning.

Pot Possession To Superior Court

Thomas Keene Warner III, 27, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana on Aug. 14. He is to be arraigned Nov. 23.

Warner was arrested after an off-duty policeman noticed what appeared to be pot plants at a house next-door to one where he was visiting a friend.

Attack Fatal To Cashier At Store

A 55-year-old Mill Valley woman collapsed last night in the parking lot at the Montgomery Ward and Co. store in Corte Madera Shopping Center and died a few hours later in Marin General Hospital.

Mariellen Alfonso, of 338 East Blithedale Avenue, apparently was stricken by a heart attack, according to coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig.

She was a cashier at Montgomery Ward and was leaving work at 8 p.m. when the attack occurred, Craig said.

She is survived by her husband, Henry R. Alfonso.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Bon Tempe Lake Fish Kill Reported

There was a fish kill in Bon Tempe Lake this morning caused by the Marin Municipal Water District's efforts to control algae growth in the lake.

Estimates of the number of dead fish ranged from 150 carp, goldfish and shiners and a dozen trout by district Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to about 1,000 fish by Frank Hubbard, spokesman for the state Department of Fish and Game.

Seeger said the fish seen floating in the channel near the lake dam by fishermen about 8 a.m. today were killed by the application of copper sulfate to the lake yesterday to kill an algae affecting the taste and odor of water.

Hubbard said fish and game was notified of the bluestone use, but added, "We are certainly not happy that it has resulted in a fish kill."

"We realize that public health is paramount, but we think that bluestone can be applied in reservoirs without fish kills," he said.

Seeger said 5 pounds per million gallons of water was applied; Hubbard said the department recommends one-fifth that dosage.

Seeger said no more fish would die from the bluestone that had to be applied for water quality reasons.

Agnew's Answer To Detractors: Hogwash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a major assessment of GOP strategy, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has strongly endorsed the much-criticized campaign waged by the Republicans in the mid-term elections.

"Where it fell short of our hopes," Agnew said, "I concede only that we undersold our message, for it was a good message for America and the right messare for America..."

The $150 a plate dinner in Agnew's honor drew many Republican luminaries, including Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, eight cabinet members, and Mrs. Martha Mitchell, who introduced Agnew.

President Nixon, returning from Paris, sent a telegram lauding Agnew as "one of the most able and dedicated Republican leaders I have ever known."

Agnew said the GOP "made political water run uphill" in the off-year election.

The vice president said the "one hard truth" about the elections was that President Nixon's "precarious position" in the Senate was improved.

Agnew said The New York Times and the Washington Post --two of his favorite targets — had dismissed Republican victories in state and national elections as flukes or of no importance.

"Well, my friends, for all that I have just one word: hogwash," he said.

"In a Senate that has decided key issues by one to five-vote margins for the past two years, a two to four-vote change is a parliamentary revolution," he said.

He said Republican campaign tactics forced Democrats to shift from their position of "cozying up" to radical dissenters to a position of support for law and order.

"As they fled, they stripped off their leather jackets, pinned on sheriffs' badges, then turned to their constituents transformed — now all Wyatt Earpy and sweating evermore to stand foursquare for law and order."

In Commerce, Tex., Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R1Ore., says Agnew practiced "the politics of revulsion" during the recent off-year election. But Hatfield said Thursday night he would not be part of any move to dump Agnewfrom the ticket in 1972.

"Why kick him in the shins for carrying out his assignments?" Hatfield said.

The subject of Agnew's future was discussed by Hatfield and a group of college students during a question-and-answer session following a speech in which Hatfield said the off-year elections were "a disaster for the Republican Party."

One student asked Hatfield if he knew of a "dump Agnew" movement brewing and asked if Hatfield was part of such a movement.

"I know of no serious move to dump the vice president and I would not be a part of it. I think he has a right to be on the ticket."

He severely criticized the strategy employed by Nixon in the recent campaign. He was especially critical of the "purge" against Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., in favor of the victorious Conservative Party candidate James Buckley.

He said this action will make it impossible for Nixon to rely on support on a purely partisan basis since the President already turned on a member of his own party.

But, Hatfield said, he doesn't think Nixon is in any shape to oust further liberal Republicans.

"The President isn't about to kick anyone on the shins in '72," Hatfield said. "He's going to be loving all of us."

Another Jet Is Hijacked To Cuba

MIAMI (UPI)—An Eastern Airlines jet bound from Richmond, Va., to Dallas, Tex., with 82 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba today shortly after takeoff from Raleigh, N.C., where it made an intermediate stop.

Capt. Thomas W. Mayberry set the DC9 down at Jacksonville, Fla., for refueling before attempting the over-the-water portion of the flight, then continued on to Havana's Jose Marti Airport.

The plane landed in Havana at 11:57 a.m., but it was not known when it would be allowed to return to Miami.

There was no immediate word on the number of hijackers, or their identities.

They will join the six holdover directors, Newl Gene Weaver, Leona Meysembourg, Robert Testa, Wade R. Powell, Frank Martin and Arthur Madsen.

Scarves Can Make The Midi-Look Work

Fashion has many moods this fall, and a great variety of looks to choose from. The look dictated by fashion designers is longuette, but you can't just don a midi skirt or gaucho pants and hope for the best.

Costume looks for fall can also be achieved with a scarf. For the Far Eastern look, long silk chiffon scarves with intricate all-over mosiac designs are perfect, and the peasant or poor girl look is perfect with a 24 inch square paisley patch around the neck and knotted in front. Try it turbanned or wrapped several times around the neck, and you can be a bohemian girl.

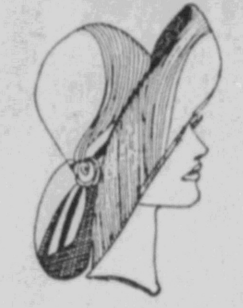
THE NEW freedom from conventional fashion dictates, eliminates the old coordinated look. Mix patterns — wear dots with stripes and paisleys with tweeds.

Multi-patterned scarves mix herringone tweed with window-pane designs and large circles or tweeds with large blocks of squares, giving the effect of two scarves.

Simple to do is the dog collar look. Fold a square on the bias, place it on your neck, ends to the back, cross the ends, bring them to the front and tie in a tiny square knot. The knot can go to the front, side or back. The dog collar is a great topper for midi suits or fin-de-siecle (mid-Victorian) velvet and brocade evening midis, held in place with an antique brooch.

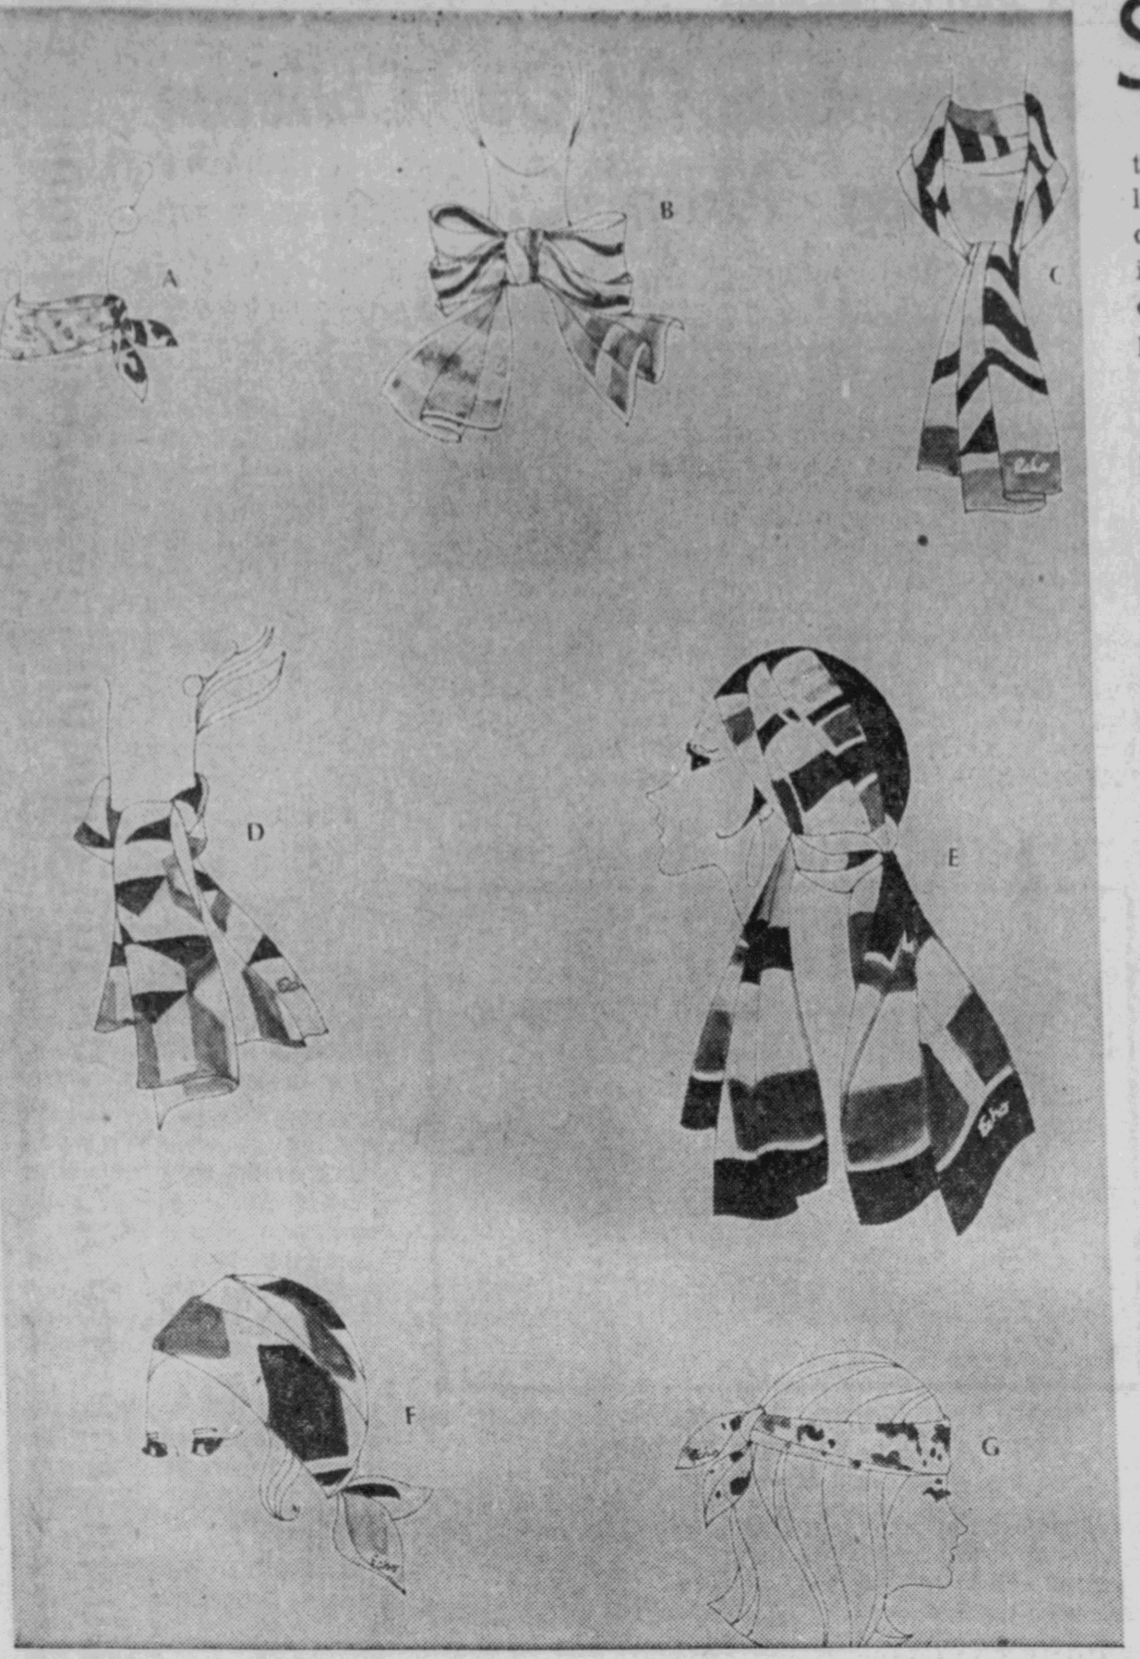
While long, floating chiffon is in, last year's signature scarves are out. Smart women are not discarding them, however, because there is enough material for use in peasant dresses or even curtains.

THE FOUR foot long oblong scarf is back, and tied once and left square at the side of the neck it looks good on body sweaters. It can also be used as an ascot, tucked into the jacket.



The head can be covered with a scarf for the new look. A long scarf from the forehead to the back of the head is tied just below the ear or if you like your hair loose an Indian headband can be made with either a square or an oblong scarf.

If you are a die-hard and won't wear the midi you can still have the look. No one will notice it's a mini with a midi-look scarf sparkling it up.



THE TRULY fashionable woman must have a whole bagful of tricks with scarves to pull her outfit together and create a total look. Here are some of the magic tricks to try: Top left, (A) — It's simple to fold a square on the bias, place it on your neck ends to back, cross them and bring them to the front and tie a tiny square knot. Leave the knot at front or move it to the side. Good with midi suit or evening midi. Top center (B) — the long floating chiffon ties into a front huge bow. Top right (C) — The wrapped-around-once look; center left (D) — the 48 inch oblong is tied once and left square at the side of the neck. It's good on body sweaters or worn tucked into your jacket as an ascot. Center right (E) — The small wrapped head goes well with the midi look, as does the style in (F). Lower right (G) shows the Indian headband for those who like their hair worn loose. The square or oblong scarf does the trick.

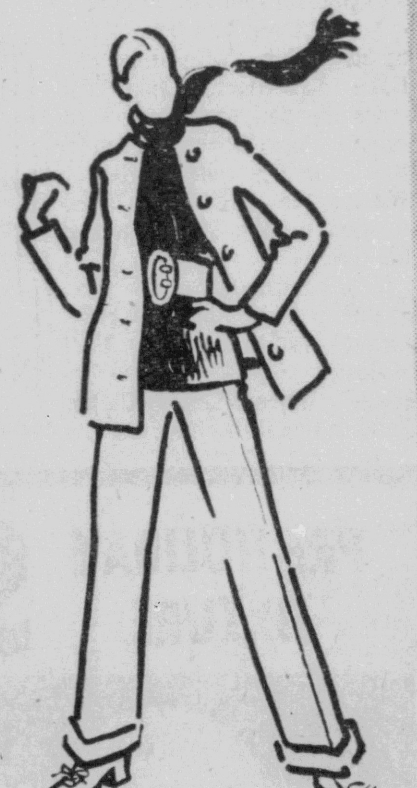
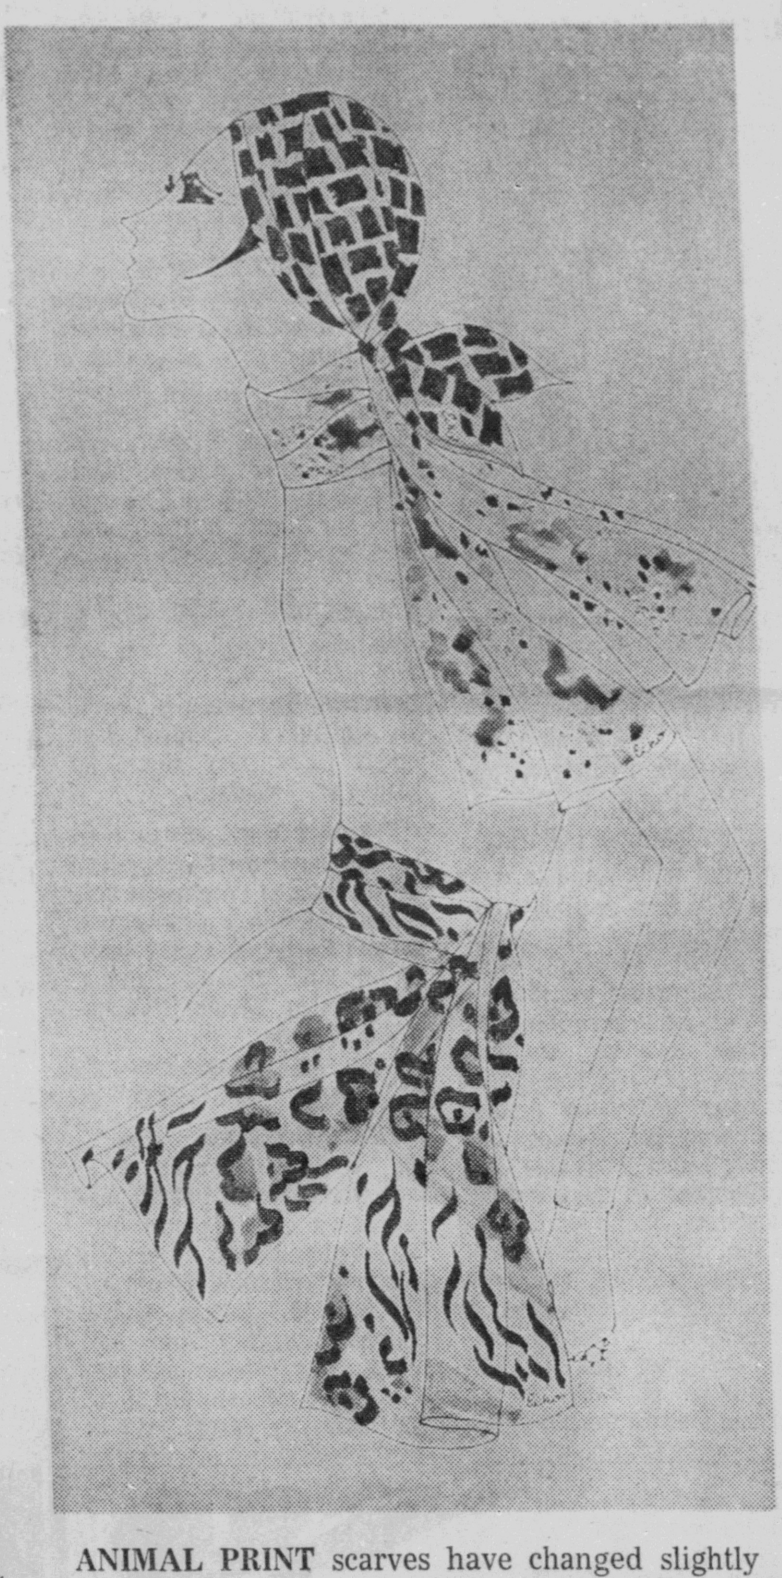
Independent-Journal, Friday, November 13, 1970





ANIMAL PRINT scarves have changed slightly this season and now come in stylized versions of the old skins. Top cobra print and neck scarf in a "serpent" come in green, teal and plum as well as natural colors. The bottom print scarf is called "safari" and is a combination of leopard, giraffe and zebra.

PRINT SCARVES with an animal theme add a pretty, subtle touch to a well tailored outfit. This midi with a slit has a center focus from the knee to the neck.

TIED AROUND the arm is one of the newest ways to wear a scarf. The soft look of scarves adds to the soft clingy knits now being made in pants as well as dresses, vests and tank tops. Scarves tied closely to the body whether around the arm, neck or head go with the fitted-clothes look.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Columnist Is On Her 13th Year Of Writing This Friday The 13th

DEAR READERS:

I was born on Friday the Thirteenth — and I'm on my 13th year of columning. Yet I've never once done a column that relates to my special day; so, as a pre-Thanksgiving reaction to all that gratefulness on the way, here's my:

Friday 13 Lament: What I'm Unthankful For

I am NOT thankful for:

High protein diets when you're dying for a large wedge of "Utterly Deadly Southern Pecan Pie" with whipped cream. (And what do you bet I get 25 letters asking for the recipe — which will make me even hungrier and more unthankful.)

Paid political ads in prime time.

Household appliances designed by men who must hate women. Like I bet they laugh with fiendish glee when they think of us getting leg whipped by instant-rewind vacuum cleaner cords.

The harsh way the world looks when I wear my glasses.

Brutally frank people who use "the truth" as a sledge hammer.

Those Gawdawful bright revealing lights in womens wear dressing rooms — especially when you have your glasses on.

Teen-agers who hike-hike 15 miles on Saturday (when they should be writing an English theme), then hit Old Soft-Touch up for a 10-block ride to school.

(And from Sue, the teenager: Mothers who say "Legs were made for walking" on Friday the Thirteenth.)

Families who don't let a columnist have the last word in her own column yet!

Youngish salesmen who call oldish matrons "young lady." And personnel in chic shops who call everybody "darling".

Static electricity. Especially when the north wind blows and some joker thinks is great sport to zap you with a spark. Haven't tried it? Rub your feet on nylon carpeting, touch a friend, and watch him jump.

Cocktail parties where you might as well lip-sync because nobody hears you anyway.

Sewing pattern directions — and "new sizing" that is still not true to size. And polyester material priced at five times its worth, just because it is popular! Home sewers — awake!

Injustice collectors in general — except on Friday the Thirteenth, when you're entitled. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Nixons Plan More Intimate Holiday

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The first family will have the traditional Thanksgiving dinner in the White House again this year. But this time, the gathering will be on a more intimate scale.

Last year, President and Mrs. Nixon invited about 200 persons from homes for the elderly in the Washington area to join them at the White House for the holiday festivities. Nixon made a welcoming speech, and the guests had a great time.

"They did not want to make it a custom," explained an aide to the First Lady when asked whether there would be a repeat performance this year. For the same reason, the aide said, "Tricia gave a Halloween party last year, but decided against giving one this year. They like to do different things."

While the Nixons are keeping their options open, it's clear they enjoy keeping holiday traditions in the White House even though they are likely to depart immediately afterwards for Key Biscayne, Fla., or San Clemente, Calif., where they have resort homes.

PAT NIXON

The Nixons' Thanksgiving menu includes fresh fruit cup, roast stuffed turkey with giblet gravy, celery stuffing, candied sweet potatoes, tiny peas, blueberry muffins, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie —all prepared by White House chef Henri Haller.

ON BEING BLACK

Today Many Of Our Children Wearing 'Pimp' Clothes

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

The obviously fatigued woman stood back a little impatiently as her young son paged through the rack of shirts in the department store.

"Well," asked the snappily dressed salesman after several rejected suggestions, "what did you have in mind?"

Without batting an eyelash, the 10-year-old youngster said, quite matter-of-factly, "A pimp shirt."

"Gregory!" His mother gasped in embarrassment.

They moved to another rack of shirts made of satins, brocades and velveteens. Some had ruffles or sequins down the front, others were made of filmy, see-through fabric.

"Yeah!" Gregory's eyes lit up in satisfaction. "That's what I want."

His mother adjusted her coat and tried to regain her calm. "And these are called what kind of shirts?"

"OH, MAMA, all the kids wear pimp clothes now. It doesn't mean what you think it means."

That's right, mamas across the country. Today many of our children are wearing what they call pimp clothes and the word does not mean what we think it means.

And it appears to be the latter definition that the young people are applying. Their pimp clothes are what we call dress-up, "good" or Sunday-best clothes.

Along with the look that one reflects while wearing his pimp clothes are certain other mannerisms — how he walks and acts. There emerges a certain cool demeanor. (The conventional word primp means "to dress or behave in a formal or affected manner.")

IT WOULD BE extremely naive of us to assume that our children are not aware of the procurer denotation of the word pimp. Indeed, most of them are more familiar with the owners of certain hogs (Cadillacs) than we adults are. Not only that, it's a known fact that local pimps (procurers) do dress "sharp."

The inner-city child, especially, is neither particularly shocked by the profession nor the word. It is we adults who feign shock and indignation at the mention of the word. Perhaps that is why some young people have adopted the word to describe their dress — for the shock value it has on the adult Establishment.

But "keep the faith" mamas: just like the mod and psychedelic fads, it will surely pass.

SCHOOL SAVING BY PAVING

When the Mill Valley Cooperative Nursery School faced closure unless paving work was done on a hazardous parking turnout in front of the school at 51 Shell Road, the North Bay Chapter of the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association came to the rescue, donating labor. For the children peering through the fence, the roller and operator from Ghilotti Brothers Construction Co. of San Rafael, was a main attraction at the school yesterday. The Hutchinson Quarry in Larkspur donated the materials.

Larkspur District To Join Rubella Fight

Larkspur School District will participate in the county's war against rubella (German measles) with immunizations to be held at district schools.

Supt. Milton S. Cohen estimated that 500 to 700 children in the district between the ages of one through 11 will be immunized Nov. 23 and 24.

The schedule is Nov. 23 at 10:15 a.m. at San Clemente School and 11:30 a.m. at Neil Cummins School; and Nov. 24 at 9 a.m. at Henry C. Hall School and 1 p.m. at Larkspur-Corte Madera School.

Larkspur School District trustees last night urged repeal of the law that requires school district unification elections to be held every four years during presidential primaries.

The district is within the Tamalpais High School District which would have to have another unification election district in 1972 unless the law is changed.

The Larkspur School District Board Also:

NURSING INTERN — Ratified an agreement with the University of California, whereby the district will obtain the services of a nursing intern one day a week at no cost.

HIRING — Authorized hiring Jane Purkey to teach the sixth grade at Larkspur — Corte Madera School for the remainder of the school year at a salary of $3,820.

$18,000 Worth Of Liquor Stolen

The theft of $18,000 in liquor over a seven-month period was reported to San Rafael police yesterday.

John Perry of United Liquor Co., 1556 Fourth Street, told police thieves entered numerous times by removing loosened roof boards and took several cases each time.

The thefts occurred between February and a September audit, Perry said.

Probe Of Generals Incident Commences

ANKARA (UPI)—A team of U.S. officials arrived from Washington yesterday to investigate the Oct. 21 flight of a light aircraft across the Soviet border with two U.S. generals, their pilot and a Turkish escort officer who were held in Russia for three weeks.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Maj. Gen. Edward C.D. Scherrer, Brig. Gen. Claude M. McQuarrie and the pilot, Maj. James P. Russell, who entered Turkey Tuesday after their release by the Soviets, would make no comment until the investigation was complete.

Historic Building Burns In Samoa

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI)—An historic building which housed the legislature of American Samoa was destroyed Thursday night in a spectacular fire which sent columns of smoke and flames over Pago Pago harbor.

The blaze occurred on the eve of a runoff election for the territory's first delegate to the U.S. Congress and as residents began preparations for the visit of Pope Paul Nov. 29.

The fire broke out in the rear of the sprawling two-story frame building, located in the heart of the territory's downtown village of Fagatogo.

The loss was estimated at about $200,000, and included most of the records of the government.

Marin Bankers See Lower Interest Trend

For the third time this year, banks across the country dropped their prime interest rates yesterday, following the lowering of the discount rate by regional Federal Reserve Banks — but the prime rate drop was down by only one-quarter of 1 per cent, compared with one-half of one per cent drops in March and September.

The new prime rate — sometimes known as the "wholesale rate" because it applies only to large commercial borrowers who usually must maintain at least 20 per cent of the amount borrowed on deposit in a non-interest bearing account — is now 7.25 per cent.

But the drop does have its effect on other loans. Locally there was a lowering of one-quarter to one-half of 1 per cent following the prime rate drop in September. Most Marin bankers see the trend as a gradual easing of interest rates in general. Some believe another one-quarter per cent drop from the current figure of about 8.5 per cent may occur by the end of the year.

Government insured home loan interest rates are determined by the Federal Housing Administration. Most banks handling such loans charge a one-time fee of 1 per cent to the borrower. Some also charge "points" (one point is 1 per cent) to the seller. Since the last prime rate drop this fee is down to about two points.

If government insured loans remain the same, there is a possibility the points may go down further. If government insured loan rates drop, the points may be increased.

The recent easing of interest rates has also caused some banks to extend their real estate loan commitments on "first grade" properties from 75 to 80 per cent of the value of the property and also lengthen the time of repayment in some instances to as long as 30 years.

Coward Improving

LONDON (UPI)—A spokesman for St. Thomas' Hospital said Friday the condition of Sir Noel Coward was "improving." The 70-year-old actor-playwright was hospitalized Wednesday with pleurisy.

El Capitan Climbers Reject Help

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Two mountain climbers dangling 2,000 feet above the Yosemite Valley floor today rejected efforts to rescue them. The National Park Service said they might be taken off anyway.

Comber Warren Harding, 46, shouted down to the base party at the bottom of towering El Capitan that he and Dean Caldwell, 27, could make it to the top and did not want to be rescued.

But a park spokesman said rangers might go ahead with a complicated rescue operation started late Thursday. He said a storm was expected over the huge stone monolith by Monday and if the climbers were to be taken off, it would have to be today.

Harding, a tough, veteran mountaineer who led the first ascent of 3,400 foot El Capitan in 1958, was pioneering a new route up the previously unclimbed "Wall of the Early Morning Light" with Caldwell when they ran into difficulties.

The ascent, which began Oct. 23 and was planned for a week, turned into an agonizingly slow operation in which the climbers spent 22 days on the sheer cliff, making less than 100 feet a day and buffeted by successive rainstorms.

They nearly ran out of food Thursday and park rangers ordered a helicopter to fly the 26-man rescue team to the top of the peak.

The team was waiting on top to begin the rescue when Harding shouted that he thought they could make it.

Concrete Lion Back To Center

Detective William Obershaw of the Corte Madera Police Department said the lion had been dropped off at the cafeteria dock at the school in Larkspur.

Soldier Cleared

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—S. Sgt. Rolando Sada, 27, was free Friday of charges he slapped, struck with his fists and shoved recruits at Lackland Air Force Base. His attorney told the court-martial panel that cleared him: "Real discipline involves unquestioned obedience to orders and in training fresh recruits discipline must be considered at all times. He got the job done."

Larkspur's citizens will be holding a town meeting next week to thresh out some of the problems likely to arise during the growth and changes which they are certain lie ahead. To confirm the belief that Larkspur is slated for drastic change in the coming decades they have only to review the progress that has already taken place before and since the city was incorporated shortly after the turn of the century. A Marin Magazine layout of historical photos and present-day scenes makes that very point tomorrow.

Fifteen-year-old Robby Miller has been attracting considerable attention on the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary campus where he lives with his parents with his caricatures and cartoons. Administrators and teachers of the seminary are frequently the subjects for his drawings. But just as often, he chooses to picture nationally and internationally known political figures. Tomorrow's I-J Marin Magazine contains not only a story about the talented teen-ager, but also some examples of his work.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Bad Break Just Waits Around, Waiting To Happen To Someone

The world is full of bridge players who don't get enough sympathy. If a bad break is flying around in the air, waiting for somebody to happen to, you can bet it will happen to one of the Unlucky Bridge Players. If you belong to this group, perhaps you should get one of the campaign button manufacturers to make a special pin for you, so that you can let the whole world know that you are an Unlucky Bridge Player. Like South in today's hand.

DECLARER WINS

West led the ten of hearts, and East captured dummy's queen with the ace. East returned the jack of hearts, and declarer refused the trick. East continued with the eight of hearts, and declarer won in dummy with the king.

As you can see, South was an Unlucky Bridge Player. East got in with the ace of clubs and cashed the rest of the hearts to defeat the contract. South would have made his game if West had the ace of clubs, or if West hadn't opened a heart, or if the hearts had broken 4-3 instead of 5-2.

ONLY DANGER

When South looks at the dummy he can tell that he can afford to lose one club and three heart tricks. There is no danger if the seven missing hearts are divided 4-3. The only danger is that East has started with five hearts headed by the ace-jack. Even then, however, South can act to limit East to three heart tricks.

South should play a low heart from dummy at the first trick. West continues with the nine of hearts, and South should play low again from the dummy.

CARELESS PARTNER

If west can lead another heart, the suit will break no worse than 4-3. If West has to shift to a different suit, South has no problem. And if East overtakes the second heart with the jack, he cannot capture dummy's king or queen of hearts and therefore cannot get four heart tricks.

Get a U.B.P. pin for yourself, and a C.B.P. pin for your partner.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Pass or bid one heart.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, but some would bid. It would be more biddable if the hearts were headed by A-J-10 rather than by A-J-8, even though the point count would be unchanged.

BEAUTY AND BEAST — Stripper Fiery Fluff — who provides the "Bump! Bump! Bump!" in the Novato Community Players' Fall Fling — gets carried away by leopard robed Harvey Teague. Fiery Fluff, played by Elaine Bernardi, will get carried away Saturday and Nov. 20 and 21 . . . and so will the audience, the players promise.

OPENING TONIGHT

Fall Fling Full Of Fun, Frolic, Fiery Fluff At Novato Show

"Burlesque ain't dead! Bump! Bump! Bump!" — The Fall Fling of the Novato Community Players will open at 8:30 p.m., Friday in the Novato Community House.

It will be repeated at the same hour Saturday and Nov. 20 and 21.

It is an original variety show written by Evans Burke and Thomas Winston with words and music by Evans and Elaine Burke. It is an adaptation of their "A Party of Five" which was produced on the Columbia Broadcasting Repertoire Workshop in Los Angeles.

Characterisitic of all flings, the show is filled with songs, dances and comedy skits.

Throughout the show, Elaine Bernardi as stripper Fiery Fluff "bump' bump! bumps!" across the stage, chased by stage manager Ray Backstedt who calls to her "Burlesque is Dead."

The show opens with "Headin' for the Big Time," followed by a skit "Judy Mint Julip Show," with Patricia Conway and Reed Griffin. Sally McGillis as "Dinah Ocean" does a series of black-outs entitled "The Good Old Days of Live TV."

Max Keeler and Dawn Scheiern do a spoof on Nelson Eddy and Jeanette McDonald in "I Always Get my Man." Harvey Teague sings "A Man Needs Someone to Love" and Vivienne Terry sings, "I go for Older Men."

Burke is the director with Chris Kollgaard assistant director. Jean Teague is the producer and musical coordinator. Lei Mann is the dance director and costume designer. John Prohaska is in charge of the lighting and John Carter, sound.

Lorayne Crozier on the piano will be assisted by Jeff Crozier on the drums and Randy Bechler on the guitar.

Set construction was under the direction of Jack Caruso with Barbara Caruso in charge of properties. Shirley Redley is in charge of makeup. Correne Prohaska did the publicity and programs. Vincent McGovern is the stage manager and Paul Terry the house chairman.

Thief Takes Wheels, Leaves An Older Set

A San Rafael man told police that someone stole the wheels from his car Tuesday night or Wednesday morning and left a worn set in trade.

San Rafael police said the tires, rims and hubcaps valued at $156 were taken from the auto of Robert B. Yager while it was parked at his 247 C Street home. The thief replaced them with three bald tires and used Yager's spare for the fourth wheel, police said.

FAMILY

"It's a Mad, Mad, Mad World." — Five strangers learn of hidden wealth from a dying gangster. This triggers the greed within each and a hilarious carnival of chases ensues. Fantastic slapstick comedy with huge cast of characters.

"The Out-of-Towners" — Refreshingly funny spoof on big city life glimpsed through the hilarious misadentures of a small-city businessman and his wife in New York City for final job interview.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Borsalino" — Entertaining French Gangster film about the "30's". Follows violent life of two bandits whose object is to control crime business in Marseilles. The gory brutal gang fights are almost continuous.

"Dr. Zhivago" — With magnificent scenery and music the story of Dr. Zhivago's life in Russia during the revolution is told in flash back. A monumental version of prize winning novel.

"Jenny" — An unwed pregnant woman and a man reclassified by draft board decide on a marriage of convenience. She does not fit in with his artistic, pot-smoking friends, so the quarreling begins.

"Mississippi Mermaid" — This mildly absorbing meandering French melodrama has enough suspense to make it enjoyable, enough nudity to make it marketable, enough wistfulness to create sympathy for a murderer, and enough hokum to camouflage its faults. Mature Teens.

"Number One" — Movie covers week in the life of an aging football pro (played by) Charlton Heston who gives remarkable portrayal of a star 40-year-old quarterback whose life disintegrates as he tries to decide whether to quit the game. Footbsll action is excellent. Mature Teens.

BORDERLINE

"Catch-22" — Unusually biting anti-war film that graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Grotesque details of bodily functions, bizarre, morbid and gruesome sequences are shown in a matter-of-fact way.

"Cheyenne Social Club" — Set in frontier West . . . contrived story relates experiences of two cowpokes, one of whom finds his inheritance to be a bawdy house . . . some dialogue offensive.

"Lovers and Other Strangers" — Amusing, well-acted comedy about a couple who have been roommates and decide to marry. A series of vignettes about their relatives' marital affairs are inter-cut into the wedding preparations. Bedroom scenes abundant.

ADULTS ONLY

"Joe" — Chilling but excellent tragi-comedy about today's dangerous polarization of lifestyles. Language and explicit sex shocking but ring regrettably true as do film's implications about violence in America. Memorable performances.

"John & Mary" — A love story that starts with sex and ends with the awakening of love. An amusing, honest, and poignant film, extremely well performed, and with the added authenticity of fine New York location shots — nude scene prominent in party sequence.

"M.A.S.H." — Hilarious, subtle anti-war comedy of three army surgeons who develop outlandish life-styles to survive the gore that passes before their eyes. Sex, nudity and profanity.

"Myra Brackenridge" — A cinematic cesspool inexcusably indecent. Story is intercut with shots from old movies . . . technique overworked. Humor gets tedious as the movie becomes increasingly obscene. Film crammed with homosexuality, trans-sexual operations, sodomy, satyriasis, sadism and other perversions.

"99 Women" — Story deals with repressive atmosphere of a women's prison on a remote Spanish island. Confines are overloaded with everything from Lesbianism to torture. Poor.

"Paddy" — Within its limited scope, this handsome looking movie, produced in Ireland by a young American girl, is amazingly successful. Touching family scenes . . . explicit sex scenes. Very good for adults.

Paranoia" — Carroll Baker stars as wealthy widow who becomes victim of a young man and his sister, both of whom are her lovers. This unhealthy trio indulge in drugs, mental torture, and explicitly played scenes of group sex and incest. English dubbed.

"That Cold Day in the Park" — Wealthy spinster sees boy huddled on park bench in rainstorm, invites him in for hot bath and meal . . . locks him in . . . succession of sexy incidents accents the film's unhealthy atmosphere.

Test For Tax Spenders: Is This Cost Necessary?

Most Marin County taxpayers had to dig deeper to meet their tax bills this month than they did a year ago, and again will dig deeper for the second installation next April than they did last April.

Forecasts are for general tax increases next fiscal year, through both higher rates and increased property appraisals.

The "solution" of most of the taxing bodies is the familiar one of crying that Sacramento, or Washington, must absorb more of the costs of local government.

THIS IS NO solution at all. The state and federal governments must get their revenues from the people of California and the United States. It is a delusion to believe that they can do so without the cost being passed on to all of us. Any device such as excise tax, sales tax, inventory tax, or the much-talked-about "added value tax" is merely passed on eventually to the consumer. It results in higher prices, further inflation — and no tax relief.

IN AN ORGANIZED society, we pay the government to provide some services which are for the benefit of all, and which it would be difficult if not impossible for each to provide for himself.

We expect the government to do these things for us more cheaply than we could have them done by private contract. Otherwise, wherein lies the advantage?

If we wish more of a particular service than is felt necessary by the general public, we cannot fairly ask that government provide it. Thus, we may install our own fire alarm or sprinkler systems to add to the protection provided by the city fire department. Or we may enroll, at our own cost, in classes beyond those which need be provided for all by the public schools.

THE TENDENCY, however, is for the government — especially at the local level, where it is most easily reached by those with special demands — to extend its role, at the cost of all taxpayers, to provide services not needed by all.

The tendency also is for the government to regard much of what it does as for the benefit of itself and its own employees rather than that of all the people it serves. This tendency grows greater as the size of government increases, but the local school district or city is far from immune from it.

Now, while our tax bills have made us keenly aware of the increasing cost of our local governments, may be a good time to start bringing pressure on those who run them to more carefully examine the purposes for which they propose to spend our money.

WE SUGGEST a simple test, a variation of one that was applied quite widely and strictly during the gasoline and tire shortage of World War II:

"Is this trip necessary?"

The test must not be "is this expenditure desirable?" They all appear desirable. But is this expenditure necessary?

Strict application of this test could mean that next year's tax bills would be considerably lower than this year's. And the great majority of us would receive not one whit less in government services.

THE DRUMMONDS

Advice By Modern Horace Greeley: 'Go South, Black Man, Go South'

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — "Go south, black man, go south!"

Today a modern Horace Greeley would have good reason to change the direction of his famous advice of a century ago.

Then, the beckoning economic opportunity — to those who could see it — was westward. Today it is southward.

Today the South is the most dynamic section of the entire nation. More people are moving into the South than out. Population is going up faster, income is rising more rapidly, poverty is dropping more substantially and every economic index in the whole South is more favorable than anywhere else in the nation.

These expanding opportunities may prove to be a special and crucial boon to Negroes at the very moment they can do the most good.

Here is why:

MANY BLACK workers have the skills to match the jobs now opening up as the South moves into the Industrial age so vigorously.

Most black workers do not yet have the skills to compete effectively for the jobs in the new and more complex Computer Age industries elsewhere in the country.

They can make it in the South. The black worker is having a very slow, painful, frustrating experience trying to make it in the North. This is why Dr. Zbignew Brezezinski of Columbia University offers this conclusion in a paper on "American in the Technetronic Age":

"Paradoxically, it can be argued that the South today stands a better long-range chance of fully integrating the Negro. American consciousness is changing, the Negro has stirred and the American South is beginning to move into the Inudstrial Age. The odds are that it may take the Negro along with it."

IT IS ALREADY beginning to do so.

The median income of southern white men went up by 71 per cent from 1959 to 1969 — more rapidly than any other region. The median income of Negro men in the South, though from a lower base, increased 178 per cent during this same period.

Take families, not just individuals. The trend is the same.

Median family income in the South increased 48 per cent between 1959 and 1969, compared to 39 per cent for the nation. Negro families gained comparably with whites.

Because of these income changes there is a striking drop in the number and per cent of persons living below the poverty line — and here the South has led the way.

Though still worse than the rest of the nation in the proportion of its population in poverty, the South made more progress than elsewhere. In the past decade the number of persons in the South under the poverty line dropped from 19.1 million to 11.2 million. Outside the South, the number declined from 19.7 million to 13.1 million.

THE PRINCIPAL reason is that new industry has been surging into the South, and the impact of it all is just becoming clear from the 1970 census.

There is no part of the South which hasn't benefited.

The Census Burearu's canvass covers the District of Columbia and 16 states where 61.5 million people now live — nearly one-third of the nation's population.

So southern state is lagging, and it is noteworthy that the states in the heart of the old South performed strongest.

This burgeoning economy is also enabling the South to put more money into education, into teachers' pay, into better schools.

This is the New South, and it is going to need a mounting labor force of diverse skills, black and white alike.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Queen Mary Fiasco Heading For Investigation By Legislature

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO — (CNS) — When the state in 1967 authorized the looting of the Long Beach tideland oil fund for the purchase of the Queen Mary for a super-dooper convention center and maritime museum, the acquisition cost approximated $4 million.

Now, according to the office of Alan Post, legislative analyst, the total costs have soared to approximately 10 times that amount, or roughly $40 million.

And the Queen Mary still sits in the waters of Long Beach harbor, without benefit of revenue.

IT WAS ON Aug. 28, 1967, better than three years ago, that incorporation papers for "Queen Mary of Long Beach, Inc.", were filed with the secretary of state, at a capitaliaztion of $25,000, and a stated purpose to "operate a hotel, restaurant and amusement facility at Long Beach."

As of March 31, 1969, the City of Long Beach had encumbered $21.5 million, and at that time, it was estimated that costs to complete the project would total at least $32 million.

It was expected the return from the investment would total $3.5 million at that time, but after more than three years since acquisition, the state reports so far, no return at all.

Furthermore, Post's office indicates the time for completion of the project has not as yet even been given the state.

THE CITY of Long Beach is in trouble with the concessionaires of the Queen Mary, the Queen Mary Diners Club. Suit has been filed against the city by the club, and the city has filed a counter-suit.

Post's office says the city has decided to go ahead and operate the facilities without a concessionaire in order to bail itself out, and this is another problem to be solved.

In some quarters, the Queen Mary has been termed the $40 million fiasco", and it has been pointed out that predictions were made when the proposal was first conceived that it would turn out to be a fiasco.

However, the money being squandered on the attempt to resurrect the ancient and worn out vessel legally belongs to the City of Long Beach as the result of a compromise settlement agreed to by the state in the disposal of millions of dollars received from the oil-rich tidelands, which originally were ceded to the city before there was any indication the revenues could be used to reduce state taxes.

AS A RESULT of the delay in getting the project under way, and the increased costs, the state is taking a new look at the project to determine whether the expenditures constitute a sound use of tideland oil money.

It is virtually certain that requests will be made at the legislature for an investigation of the Long Beach fiasco.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

View Of 'Them' Not Representative

The long and featured interview with Jacqueline Briskin (I-J, Nov. 9) about her version of the younger generation ("Them") raises some fascinating paradoxes. (Let us skip over such anachronisms as "under 25's" being born "during" World War II and 42 year-olds who "faced the depression.") Her young people are supposed to be bright and intelligent, though they are naive and stupid enough so that a middle-aged woman fools them about her age simply by putting on dark glasses. She calls them "very open" and praises them for "not covering up anything;" then she describes the devious and sneaky ways in which they lie to and deceive their parents. We are told that we can achieve real communication between age groups by listening to one side only. We are asked to trust and be optimistic about "them" even though their representative says, "I'm afraid of you because you know so much about me."

Most of the young today are not "aboriginal" freaks, naive, sneaky, simplistic, hypocritical, and escapist as she shows them. (She may not "hate" them, but with friends like her, they surely don't need enemies!) The truth is that there is nothing new about human nature. It only seems so to those (both old and young) who won't bother to study human history. Unfortunately, there are millions of them, and not all "under 25."

Decorate All Tunnel Entrances

Our concrete subliminal stimulus to destroy and our chain-link "safety" barricade atrocities. A hostile resentment builds against all such ugly restraining barriers. Thus, in subconscious irritation "a transcient madness" explodes. With berserker inner rage motorists "accidently" ram into each other, destroy miles of unsightly cyclone fencing, obliterate utility (above ground) poles and wiring.

Homo sap resents these particular trends which are all forms of pollution of our spirits and constant reminders that we are absolutely captive of our phony, artificial environment and no longer "captains of our souls."

It was necessary to scalp the landscape for (Upper) Highway 101 overlooking Sausalito, and it was necessary to further deface the once beautiful hills with two concrete mole holes that rate absolute zero in any artistic effort to relieve their dismal drabness. Therefore, it would seem that not just one bore but all four gaping gullets should receive pacifying camouflage — even if it is only paint. Surely any art student could improve on the hideous, bleak designs. Perhaps contests in all art classes (including kindergarden) would result in good plans. Perhaps the transformation could be changed each spring with new patterns. . .

Muscular Dystrophy Fight Needs Funds

An estimated 200,000 men, women and children in the United States are suffering from muscular dystrophy. The disease is characterized by progressive degeneration of the voluntary muscles until finally the patient is too weak to combat infections, and death usually results from respiratory failure.

For the most part, dystrophy is an hereditary condition, and there is, as yet, no effective treatment for it. Medical management is limited to relieving symptoms of the disease. Orthopedic devices may be prescribed at appropriate stages in progression.

Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America support basic and applied studies in the hope that these will lead to the complete scientific understanding and the eventual cure of this disease. The Marin County Chapter of MDAA provides assistance for local patients, in addition to providing contributions in the national research program.

November is the month traditionally set aside for the Muscular Dystrophy campaign. As Chairman for the Marin County campaign, I hope that your readers will be able to make a small contribution in response to the mailed brochure which they receive from us this month.

Rainbow Tunnel Brightens Commute

Three cheers to the highway department or bridge district, whoever painted the "rainbow" on the tunnel! It's great and I have heard so many good comments about it, it's unbelievable. A dirty, dark tunnel has been turned into something attractive with a relatively small amount of paint!

Bah humbug to Bertha Krug and Dr. and Mrs. (Alan J.) Davidson. Now the commuters happily have something better to look at than the ugly entrance to a smog-filled, blackened tunnel.

Railroad Should Keep Right-Of-Way

It is my opinion that the Northwestern Pacific R.R. should not give up its Tiburon right-of-way for any price. Although there is a condemnation suit on the railroad's hands, the suit is in fact invalid. I really don't see what the county is condemning. The actual right-of-way is in fine shape, and the only things that could be condemned, the tunnels, are covered with dirt.

Once again the pushy cities are forcing the NWP out of its land. Only three years ago Tiburon pressured the railroad into abandoning its Tiburon branch. As for the lady who is circulating this petition, why don't they build the bike path through her home? See how she likes it.

People talk about the pollution of the once marvelous Marin. Fewer people — less pollution. So why should cities get more land?

I urge the NWP into not selling the right-of-way, and show all the cities of Marin that the railroad still has a great deal of power.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Speaking Of Law, Order: How About The Prisons?

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — All fall we were subjected to the gradually more hysterical efforts of one party to convince America that the other party was somehow in collusion with, maybe even responsible for, all the pimps, pornographers, dope pushers and bombers from coast to coast. Now that the election is past, we see that as political tactics it didn't work.

Even the authors of the great law-and-order crusade see now that it didn't work. Richard Nixon himself called in a group of journalists he thought were safe and friendly last week and told them so. Herb Klein, only one step away from the horse's mouth, also says the Republicans are going to abandon that line of talk as they look ahead to future politics.

All of which testifies to the cynicism with which the line was put forth to start with.

A WEEK AGO it seemed a great relief to have the voting over and to be able to look forward to writing about something else for a while. But then the President and his advisers tried to keep the subject alive long enough to convince everybody they had won a great victory, so now anybody who disagrees with them is obliged to have another word.

If all that stuff about permissiveness and obscenity and crime, and how the public could somehow straighten it out by voting Republican — if all that stuff was so moral and urgent, how come it can be abandoned so speedily once it fails to produce at the polls?

The most charitable explanation is that we have here another example of setting public policy on the basis of public opinion surveys — what we have called Mr. Nixon's bold followership. The most realistic explanation, however, is that the President's political strategists based their fall campaign on such polls showing that the broad issue of law and order was the single thing that concerned the public most — and therefore adopted it as the thing Spiro Agnew, Mr. Nixon and their followers would hammer home hardest.

Well, if they really are interested in doing something about crime, let them take a look at the federal, state and local prisons in America. Start with the basic fact that 80 per cent of all felonies in this country are committed by repeaters, people who have been convicted of crime, punished and sent back out into society.

WHAT DOES THAT say about the efficiency of the prisons, which presumably should have some role in preventing crime? What does it say about the attitude of priorities which devotes 95 per cent of all spending on correction in this country to prisons and guards and only 5 per cent to health, education and other rehabilitation work?

Admittedly, this is not the sort of issue you would expect Murray Chotiner or John Mitchell to recommend to the President. It seems to be pro-prisoner, what Agnew might call squishy soft on criminals, in calling for more rehabilitation instead of thicker walls and more expensive alarm systems.

It might, God forbid, be interpreted by some of the President's admirers or his voter target groups as being pro-poor, or pro-black, because that is what so many prisoners are. It's unlikely that that would sit well with authors of the late, nationwide "southern strategy" which is now in the midst of such hasty rewriting.

THE ADMINISTRATION line has been pro-cop, and it is hard to see how it could abandon that very conveniently. But that line is a totally over-simplified version of what really would help the police most. Experts in the field maintain that the administration could shift the whole Vietnam war budget into law enforcement as it is commonly conceived — more weapons, mace, radios and prisons — and in the long run end up worsening the crime situation because more people would end up being sent to crime school.

The prisons are crime schools. To convince the public that they deserve the kind of attention and reform that would bring down that 80 per cent felony repeater rate would require high-level leadership. Not the kind based on advance public opinion polls, but the kind that is willing to work for an unpopular cause because it is right.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Woes Of Used Car Buying, Or, How Not To Get A Bargain

Marin residents on a modest budget who think they can save money by buying a used car without a dealer warranty, read on — I have a sad tale to tell.

It all started late in July. I knew I had to get another car because my old one was falling apart rapidly, but I didn't have much money. The natural choice was a Volkswagen, an economical and dependable (or so I thought) car.

After shopping around, I found a nice looking, sweet running little sedan at the shop of a San Anselmo dealer-repairman, who shall remain nameless, through no merit of his own.

The car had everything — sunroof, radio, low mileage, good interior. It even was a pleasing shade of blue.

I PICKED IT UP the second Monday in August and happily drove it to a Tiburon City Council meeting that night. I was so glad to be rid of my old clunker, I didn't even mind that the radio didn't work.

This happy state lasted exactly 12 hours. The next morning, on my way to work, the car did a funny little number in the middle of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. It wouldn't budge. I shifted into every gear the car had — nothing. Finally, by dint of much shifting, we got going again.

That night, I took the car back to the dealer. He reminded me that the car didn't have a warranty. (I knew that — it would have cost me $500 extra). Then we went for a spin around the block, after which he assured me that the car was sound. "I wouldn't have sold it if anything had been wrong," he said soothingy.

Somewhat mollified, I continued to drive the car without trouble, but a week later it pulled the same trick again, this time for real. I was in Mill Valley, and had the bug towed to a garage. The problem? Someone had taken the transmission apart and neglected to put it back together again properly, with the result that two gears had engaged at once. The bill? $160.

WELL, I THOUGHT, I'm still ahead. The warranty would have cost $500. That belief lasted exactly three weeks. On Sept. 20, with the prospect of a week off, I was headed toward Arizona to visit friends when, north of Los Angeles, it ally went. One moment I was cruising along at 50 miles an hour, the next -- rattle-gasp-clunk! — I wasn't.

The car was towed (for $28) to a garage where the proprietor glanced at it and told me I needed a new engine — special this week, $400.

Not having that sort of money, I left the car there and took the bus back to Marin, where I spent the rest of my vacation in bed.

It's hard to focus my mind on the next month. I tried to borrow a car to go tow my VW back. No luck. I inquired about renting a car. With mileage, tow bar and other accoutrements, it would run about $100.

FINALLY, last weekend the garage owner in Southern California told me I had to get my car or he would sell it. I called an attorney. Yes, he said, that's legal. So I scraped together $100 and rented a truck and car trailer and drove all week end to retrieve my poor car, still broken. The rental fee? $85. The storage fee at the garage (which no one had mentioned to me) $97.

The car now is back at the original dealer, because he said he would be a nice guy and fix it for half price, "even though I'm not legally obligated to do anything." My comment about moral and ethical obligations didn't seem to bother him.

I'm not sure I'll be able to pay the $200 or so to fix the car. I may have to sell it to pay the bill. Total expenses in buying the VW: $895. Total expenses for repairs and related costs: $588, not to mention a lot of bother on my part. A warranty would have been $88 cheaper.

Fortunately, I kept my old car, which runs beautifully. At this rate, I may have it for a long, long time.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Hoo-Malli-Malli At Civic Center, And Indians Heading For Potlack

Fusselman

Well, it looks like Mr. "I'm Going To Run This County and Don't You Ever Forget It" can add some more stitches to his motto tapestry, such as, "I'm going to lock it up tight. Just try and stop me."

From the I-J: "County Administrator Alan Bruce said today that after 'the judges said please' could they have keys, the keys fitting the new locks were delivered to the superior court judges late Friday."

Here's another: The bad news about the insurance companies getting off the coverage had to be processed by Bruce-Barrows & Campanella before the supervisors were permitted to know about it. Hence the ceiling hitting at the board meeting Tuesday. Oh what a hoo-malli-malli: the elected-by-the-people judges and supervisors treated like second-class members of the official family. "Ferhevinssake" just how long is the board going to let such screwball egoism continue?

THIS FROM my files of the state Chamber of Commerce reports of operational costs of the counties (San Francisco not included):

1954-55 per capita cost of operations

San Mateo 57 (bottom of list)	$45.90
Marin 56 (next lower)	$53.39
Sonoma 32 (from top)	$103.73
Santa Cruz 30 (from top)	$108.37

We hadn't been blessed (?) yet with "the most powerful man in county government." Check our rating now and wonder about it for awhile.

NOW ABOUT the British Columbia Indians (judging by the phone calls readers were most pleasantly interested). This week I called up an engineer friend of mine and asked him to check the miles those sturdy people paddled to the Puyallup River Valley hop fields and back. They started from up the Frasier River just south of Vancouver, B.C., and from areas north of that city.

It worked out, as the crow flies, about 300 miles each way. However, when one considers that they stayed fairly close to the shoreline while going through the rough Juan de Fuca Straits and other bad water, it undoubtedly exceeded that figure.

The canoes were big affairs requiring two or more men at the paddles. They travelled day and night to Seattle — over 200 miles.

Because of the night traveling, each canoe carried a torch in the bow, something like the hula torches we have in our gardens at night in the summer when we barbecue. That was the delight of this youngster, when he would hear the chant of the paddlers — something like "Hi-Hoo" with each stroke — followed by the darting lights all over the bay as they came in for a landing on the beach.

IT'S WELL to keep that picture in mind, for what comes later, when I was 23.

When the hops were picked, we would suddenly find a relative few camped along the beach again. Those were the frugal ones who stopped to go up town and shop for the winter's supplies.

The others were splashing their way northward in a hurry to get to the annual potlach held just north of Bellingham.

I will try and paint the picture for you of this eye-bugging event next week.

234 Owners Said To Be Delinquent

The Greenbrae Property Owners Association has agreed to press collection of 234 delinquent maintenance assessments which have accumulated over the last four years.

Beth M. Reilly, association secretary, said yesterday the bills were turned over to the association when it accepted maintenance anda rchitural review responsibilities from the Schultz Building Co.

She said the association will continue the Schultz policy of collecting between $10 and $15 per year from each of Greenbrae's 1,200 homeowners.

Mrs. Reilly said the association will consider placing liens against 19 property owners if the bills are not paid.

In other action Wednesday night, the association also signed a contract with Forster and Kroeger landscape maintenance firm of Corte Madera to handle maintenance of Greenbrae's public areas. The firm was hired on a cost plus basis, Mrs. Reilly said.

Resigns From City: Not 'Super Tom'

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Augustus H. Davis, the black director of Bridgeport's model cities program has resigned, saying he is not the "super Tom" Mayor Hugh C. Curran needs to run the city renewal agency.

Davis, who took the Bridgeport post last May after serving as model cities director in the Bronx, N. Y., for two years, said Wednesday, "The mayor has never been used to a black man being in position to make independent decisions."

"What the man needs is a super Tom," a reference to Uncle Tom, Davis said, "someone who does not mind running the program with all kinds of strings attached."

Switchboard Helping Musicians Need Aid

Marin Musicians Switchboard may go out of business for lack of money, so its founder has turned to a public appeal for donations to keep the service in operation.

The switchboard helps young musicians find jobs, link up with other musicians to form groups, and tells fans where groups are playing in the Bay Area. It does not charge for its efforts, according to David Hutchinson of Muir Beach. He has operated the swichboard since Jan. 14.

Most of the music switchboard's users are rock or folk musicians, but it also serves jazz and classical musicians, Hutchinson said.

He added that he has filed a formal request with the Marin County Youth Commission for financial aid, but that this would take more than a month to bear results. Meanwhile, "we need $100 by Dec. 1 to help with rent and phone bills. We also need volunteer workers," Hutchinson said.

He said donations are tax deductible, and may be made to Post Office Box 1314, San Rafael.

Winnebago Shares Good For Long-Pull

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Winnebago Industries has been recommended to me for the long pull. What do you advise? — K.L.

A. In view of Winnebago's above-average outlook, the stock of this leading motor home producer appears fairly priced at present quotes. Over the past five years, company sales have advanced tenfold to $44.9 million for the fiscal year ended February 28, 1970.

In the same interval, per share profits surged from 6 cents to 53 cents. And for the most recent period, the six months ended August 28, 1970, Winnebago reported further gains. Per share net reached 45 cents (versus 33 cents); and sales topped $40.3 million, up from fiscal 1970's $26.4 million.

Motor home sales, on an industrywide basis, are expected to increase about 30 per cent over 1969. Winnebago, with about 40 per cent of the market, is expected to lead the way. Shares have long-pull appeal.

Q. I would like some information on Rowe Price New Horizons Fund. — H.M.

A. Rowe Price New Horizons Fund reopened its public sale of new shares after a lapse of almost three years. Share sales were stopped in October, 1967, because the fund was unable to find suitable investments at that time to meet $1 millio-a-day inflow of subscriptions.

Although the fund's performance in the first six months of 1970 has not been up to par, New Horizons is among the top 25 funds which have made substantial recoveries since the market bottomed-out in May. Horizons is a speculative no-load, but one with an excellent long-term record.

Q. My husband wants to buy several hundred shares of Ling-Temco-Vought $5 convertible preferred for income. What do you suggest? This represents our life savings. — A.M.

A. On September 1, 1970, directors of Ling-Temco-Vought suspended preferred dividend payments indefinitely, with prospects of resumption indeterminate. This, coupled with the fact that LTV is currently operating at a deficit, is extremely top heavy with debt and possesses little recovery appeal at present, hardly makes this a situation worthy of any capital investment — let alone your life savings.

Sun Appears To Be Setting On Rolls Royce's Auto Empire

LONDON (Toronto Telegram News Service) — Like the Bank of England, the Tower of London and Buckingham Palace, the fame of Rolls Royce rings out all over the world as something which is true-blue British.

After all, the modern-day chariot fits into a class of its own — and its name has found a prominent place in the English language that signifies the height of luxury.

Yet even the mighty can be shown at times to have feet of clay, for the Rolls Royce company now is going through a crisis that appears to be packing a disastrous punch.

Trading shares of Rolls Royce, once considered a glamor stock, are having the daylights shaken out of them as they bump along in a friendless market.

It is true that the company's factories still produce peerless cars for long queues of wealthy buyers, but airplane engines have lately become the main Rolls Royce concentration.

And it is so expensive engaging in the costly business of modern jet research and construction that the company no longer has the financial resources to stay in the big league where it competes with major U.S. firms.

Although the company sells successfully all around the world (and provides the power units for many U.S. aircraft), the time has arrived when Rolls Royce must ask the British government for more monetary help or lose its independent identity by joining hands with North American or European manufacturers.

The plight of Rolls Royce is so serious that it recently had to turn to the Bank of England to raise fresh capital in the city of London. This is normally the desperate last throw before a knockout, and underlines the precarious financial position of the company.

The move for Bank of England assistance came after Rolls got a $50 million loan earlier this year from a government agency.

To make the company's cash problems even more worrying, the present Tory government has adopted the attitude that British industry must stand on its own two feet.

There is to be no more feather-bedding at the expense of the taxpayer.

Yet Rolls Royce is a special case.

It is a large employer of labor, and industrial cities like Derby would suffer badly if its factories closed. Rolls Royce also earns large amounts of foreign currency — and with new projects in mind, the company is potentially an even bigger export-earner for the United Kingdom.

The modern jets produced by Rolls Royce are first class. The problem is financing the building of the engines and the long gap the company has to wait before money starts flowing back from sales.

International business now is becoming so big — with powerful U.S. interests making deep penetrations in the European markets — that even a company as famous as Rolls Royce can no longer hold itself upright for long.

Textile Imports Up

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Belgian textile imports reached an all-time high of $1,240,000,000 last year, up almost 20 per cent from the figures for 1968.

Big Sales Tax Increase In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas' sales tax collections jumped a whopping 63.1 per cent in 1969.

Most of the increase in collections was due to a 1-4th cent boost in the sales tax rate, extension of the levy to many items not previously covered, and imposition of local sales taxes in many cities.

SMART CHART

"Gentlemen . . . 1970 may go down as the summer of our economic discontent. Also the fall and winter."

Market Falls Sharply For Second Day

Working against the list was selected profit taking after recent good gains, normal preweekend evening up pressures, and concern over the possible inflationary effects of the General Motors settlement.

Shortly before the close, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 8.21 at 759.79. Of the 1,603 issues traded, 973 declined, while 350 gained.

A turnover of around 12,750,000 shares compared with 12,520,000 shares traded on Thursday.

Closing prices included AT&T 45 3-8 off 3-8, Bethlehem Steel 21, Chrysler 24 1-4 off 3-8, Du Pont 118 3-4 off 1-2, Ford 48 3-8 off 1-2, General Motors 70 3-8 up 1-4, Southern Pacific 30 1-2 off 3-4 and U.S. Steel 29 3-4 off 1-4.

Monte Gordon, analyst for Bache & Co., said the three events—the GM agreement, a one-quarter point drop in the Federal Reserve discount rate, and a similar reduction in the prime interest rate by many commercial banks—all have disappointing characteristics.

He noted that the GM settlement carries with it major inflationary implications which are likely to affect settlements in other industries, including aluminum, steel, and can manufacturing.

As for the interest rate cuts, Gordon noted many traders had been hoping for one-half point reductions, not one-quarter.

Federated Department Stores, Honeywell and National Cash Register were among the most active issues as a result

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Trillion Dollar GNP Forecast For 1971

Next year, the U.S. output of goods and services will exceed the trillion dollar mark for the first time on a calendar year basis, according to the 1971 outlook of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on business and economics.

Gross national product in current prices is seen as possibly reaching $1,046 billion, or up 7 per cent from its 1970 level. This compares with a 5-per cent rise now estimated for this year. The rate of inflation is expected to slow somewhat, though perhaps not signigicantly.

Other economic trends forecast by Metropolitan indicate the continuation of relatively tight financial markets and less than full employment of the labor force.

Northern coastal California experienced a slight drop in business activity during October, according to Security Pacific National Bank's business index which has declined for the second successive month. However the regional economy continues at 3 per cent above year-ago tallies.

INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CORP. directors have declared an increased quarterly dividend of 28.75 cents per share, payable Jan. 15, which will be equal to an annual rate of $1.15 per share. International has reported record sales and earnings for the third quarter and first nine months this year. The nine months net income was up 30 per cent over the 1969 period.

THE EMPORIUM CAPWELL CO. has announced it will start construction of a 207,000-square foot Emporium department store at Tanforan Park in San Bruno next spring. An opening is scheduled for the fall of 1972. It will be the 10th Emporium store and the company's sixth on the Peninsula. Approximately 85 per cent of available store space in Tanforan Park has been contracted for. It is a regional shopping complex of 48 acres. First phase to be completed next February will contain 68 stores.

LONGS DRUG STORES has announced a 17-per cent increase for the nine months ended Oct. 31. Unaudited sales were $119 million against $101.4 million a year ago. Sales for the three months ended Oct. 31 increased from $35.6 million a year ago to $41.5 million - also up 17 per cent. Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 16 cents per share.

SAFEWAY STORES, INC. has elected William S. Mitchell to the presidency, succeeding Quentin Reynolds, who was elected chairman of the board. Reynolds will be chief executive officer and Mitchell will be executive officer in charge of operations.

BOISE CASCADE CORP. has broken ground for a new $7 million particleboard plant in Ukiah. It will convert over 130,000 tons of sawmill and plywood plant residues, previously burned or discarded, into 85 million board feet of particleboard to be used in home construction as well as furniture.

ST. LOUIS SOUTHWESTERN RAILWAY CO. (a subsidiary of Southern Pacific Transportation Co.) is asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve its plan to acquire one-half ownership of the Alton and Southern Railroad, to be purchased from the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Co. for $8 million cash.

PACIFIC SOUTHWEST AIRLINES has applied to the California Public Utilities Commission to have Stockton and Fresno included in its route structure between San Francisco and Los Angeles. It would provide Stockton and Fresno with four daily roundtrips to San Francisco and four to Los Angeles.

DINING OUT AND INNS

Fresh Crab Supply Doubtful, But Sabella's Will Get Along

Fresh crab at the restaurants this week was considered doubtful when this was written, though there may be some change by the time it comes out in print.

The fishermen were asking for more money, saying they could not afford to take their boats out at last year's prices. Restaurant owners countered that they couldn't afford to pay what was asked without pricing their menus far out of reason. So there the matter stands.

Fresh crab probably won't be served to any extent until the first part of next month when the catch from northern waters hits the market. In the meantime the crab you get will be cold storage crab. There is nothing wrong with it and you have been eating it since the last season ended four months ago.

ACCORDING TO LOU SABELLA, some local crabs may be sold during the rest of the month — but not many, and the season is now considered to get its real start with the catch from Eureka and Oregon in December.

This has never been of much concern to Sabella's which has so many seafood items on its menu it's hard to tell when one season ends and the next one begins.

Incidentally, Sabella's will close on Thanksgiving this year — the first time I can remember that this has happened.

WHEN I TALKED to Stan Valan at the Grotto in San Rafael, he, too, was skeptical about much fresh crab being served this month. But at the Grotto fresh sole, fresh salmon (from Oregon) and other fresh fish is quite another matter.

The Grotto recently has been trying out a "late menu" for after 10 on Friday and Saturday nights and it appears that this will now be made more or less permanent. It still provides quite a few selections for latecomers — seafood cocktails, chowders, French fried seafood and also steaks if you want to go that route.

THE LAST I HEARD, Franchini's Chateau at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley Road was planning on delaying its scheduled Friday night crab cioppino spread this week, so before you count on tucking a bib under your chin at Niki Franchini's tables it would be wise to phone and make sure he's serving fresh crab.

AL BARTHEL, who has succeeded in getting permission finally for a tile roof to brighten up the exterior decor of his Senor Alfredo's Mexican Restaurant in San Anselmo, has expanded his selection of California wines, which he claims are particularly suited to Mexican food.

"People forget that when California belonged to Mexico, grapes were brought here and planted by the padres. Not many of those Mission grape vines are left today but the popular wines we now produce are a good accompaniment for enchiladas and the rest of our dishes. Mexico no longer produces much wine — and none for export, so Mexicanos have gotten into the habit of drinking pulque, beer and tequila with their meals," he explained.

Senor Alfredo's will also be closed on Thanksgiving. The way it looks now, if you are planning on restaurant dining Thanksgiving Day it might be a good idea to start phoning ahead to find out if your favorite spot will be open.

LA PETITE (shortened from Le Petite Gourmet), on Reed Boulevard near Strawberry Town and Country Village has also changed its decor, added waitresses and adapted its menu to a fuller meal.

Among t oher things it has added a prime rib dinner for $2.95 which includes baked potato, tossed salad and warm French bread. Crepes, sandwiches and wines are still served.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

AMERICANS probably never will match the French in wine drinking — but they're catching up a bit.

This year's consumption by the average adult American will be about 88 three-ounce glasses. Economists predict that this will increase to 117 glasses by 1980.

Californians drink more wines than the residents of any other state — our own products and those from other areas combined. They still drink more table wines than people elsewhere in the United States who seem now to be switching over gradually from sweet wines.

In the first eight months of this year, the California wine industry shipped 122.7 million gallons to market — an increase of 14.2 million gallons from the same period last year. Table wines increased 12.5 million gallons, sparkling wines 3.3 million gallons and sweet wines dropped off 2.7 million gallons.

It takes food to bring out the best in a glass of wine.

PIER 15 in San Rafael is preparing for its annual Liars Dice Tournament. Closing days for all entries will be Dec. 1. Trophies and other awards will be given. Last year's winner Bill Patterson, co-owner of Pier 15 has disqualified himself from competing again this year.

Bill is another one of those restaurant people who have bought places in the boondocks to get away from it all periodically. But Bill's hideaway isn't a duck club or pheasant club like some. He has a cabin and about 50 acres in the wilds west of Healdsburg where I understand the wild boar and deer hunting is good.

LOOKING for a good restaurant to try out on a Monday evening when so many places are closed? The Normandie on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, which serves French food expertly prepared by Andre Marquer, is one.

If you haven't discovered it by now — where have you been? It has been here a whole year — in fact is just celebrating its first anniversary this week.

HAMANN ENTERPRISES, INC. of Rohnert Park, which operates Hap's Hangar Restaurant at the Sonoma County Airport and is rebuilding its Blue Yonder restaurant recently destroyed by fire at the Marin County Airport, has been authorized to operate the new restaurant facility planned for the Reid-Hillview Airport in San Jose. Detailed design is being handled by Lieb and Quaresma, Petaluma architectural firm. The restaurant expects to begin operations next March.

VINCE GUARALDI is featured at the Lion's Share on the San Anselmo Miracle Mile tonight and tomorrow night. Sunday you'll find the Brotherhood and Jerry Hahn entertaining.

Consumers' Film

The film "You Don't Have to Buy War, Mrs. Smith" featuring Bess Myerson Grant, New York City consumer affairs officer, will be shown Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Fellowship, 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

Controversy On Auxiliary Apartment Ends In Ross

The Ross Town Council last night ended an eight-month controversy over the use of an auxiliary cottage at the home of Joseph E. Tilt, 18 Olive Avenue, by reversing a previous stand.

In August the council denied a use permit to allow the second dwelling to be used as a guest cottage or maid's quarters, but reversed that stand last night on a motion by Councilman John H. Chase.

Chase suggested a conditional use permit be granted provided Tilt files an affidavit indicating the exact use and the extent of use. The council agreed 4-0 with Roy Farrington Jones abstaining.

The permit will be revoked in 60 days if the affidavit is not filed or is unsatisfactory, Chase said.

Tilt had threatened court action, according to Town Atty. Robert W. Elliott.

The controversy over the apartment arose in March when Tilt bought the property. A renter who had lived in it for eight years had been allowed to stay because he pre-dated an ordinance banning rentals in single family zones, but a variance was required when ownership changed hands.

The council refused to allow the renter, Marven C. Rowlette, to stay despite pleas by his neighbors.

Reference To Stalin Deleted

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union deleted praise for Josef Stalin in republishing the text of a message from Communist China congratulating the Soviet government on its 53rd anniversary.

"The Chinese people are firmly confident that the Soviet people educated by the great Lenin and Stalin can continue to develop the glorious traditions of the October (1917) revolution," the greetings from Peking said.

Russian censors deleted the reference to Stalin in printing the greeting in Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper.

Income Forms Help Offered

The Sonoma County Veterans Service Office will assist anyone in completing the annual income forms required by the Veterans Administration by Jan. 15.

Lester E.G. Setser, veterans service officer, said his staff will assist veterans, their widows or dependents, fill out the income questionnaires.

He said that if the forms are not returned or are incorrectly answered, the veteran or his widow may suffer a reduction in assistance or pensions. The veterans office is located at 2555 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa.

Stiff Fines Approved For False Fire Alarms

The Ross Town Council last night passed a tough ordinance governing fire and burglar alarms with a fine up to $500 for repeated violations.

The ordinance, first of its kind in Ross, was passed almost without comment after a year of discussion on how to solve the problem of malfunctioning alarms in private homes.

The ordinance calls for no fine for the first false fire alarm, but charges a $100 fine for the second, a $300 fine for the third and a $500 fine for the fourth.

False burglar alarms will carry no fine.

Installers of each type of protective device will be required to obtain a license from the town and sell only alarms accredited by a nationally recognized testing laboratory.

Owners, when the ordinance becomes effective in 60 days, will be required to obtain a permit for $5 and to renew the permit annually. They must also post a notice on who to call to repair the devices.

Attaching the alarm to an automatic telephoning device is also banned under the ordinance. However, alarm companies may set up a special line with permission of the police or fire chief.

The Ross Town Council Also:

FLOOD INSURANCE — Put over to Dec. 10 a discussion of applying for federal mudslide and flood insurance to study effects of federal strings regarding zoning.

DEBRIS BOX — Decided to place a debris box for leaves in the Ross post office parking lot for two weekends beginning Nov. 21 on an experimental basis to see if it eases the debris disposal problem.

QUORUM — Declined to act on a request by the City County Planning Council which wanted to change its definition of quorum from 13 of 24 members to representatives of six different municipalities and the county.

HOUSING COMMITTEE — Called for applicants to serve on a town housing committee to study the applicability to Ross of county findings on the housing.

FLOOD ALARM — Changed the flood alarm from four blasts of six toots each to four blasts of five to avoid confusion with Kentfield disaster signals.

Lear Engine Test To Begin Soon

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—Industrialist William Lear said today torque and horsepower tests will begin within two weeks on his vapor turbine designed for steam-powered vehicles.

The prototype turbine weighs 20 pounds, has a capacity of 250 horsepower and should "dramatically" reduce air pollution, he said.

"The new turbine will be powering a General Motors Chevrolet Monte Carlo by mid-December and a GM 50 passenger bus by next March," Lear said.

A newly developed fluid he calls learium will be used in his steam-propelled vehicles.

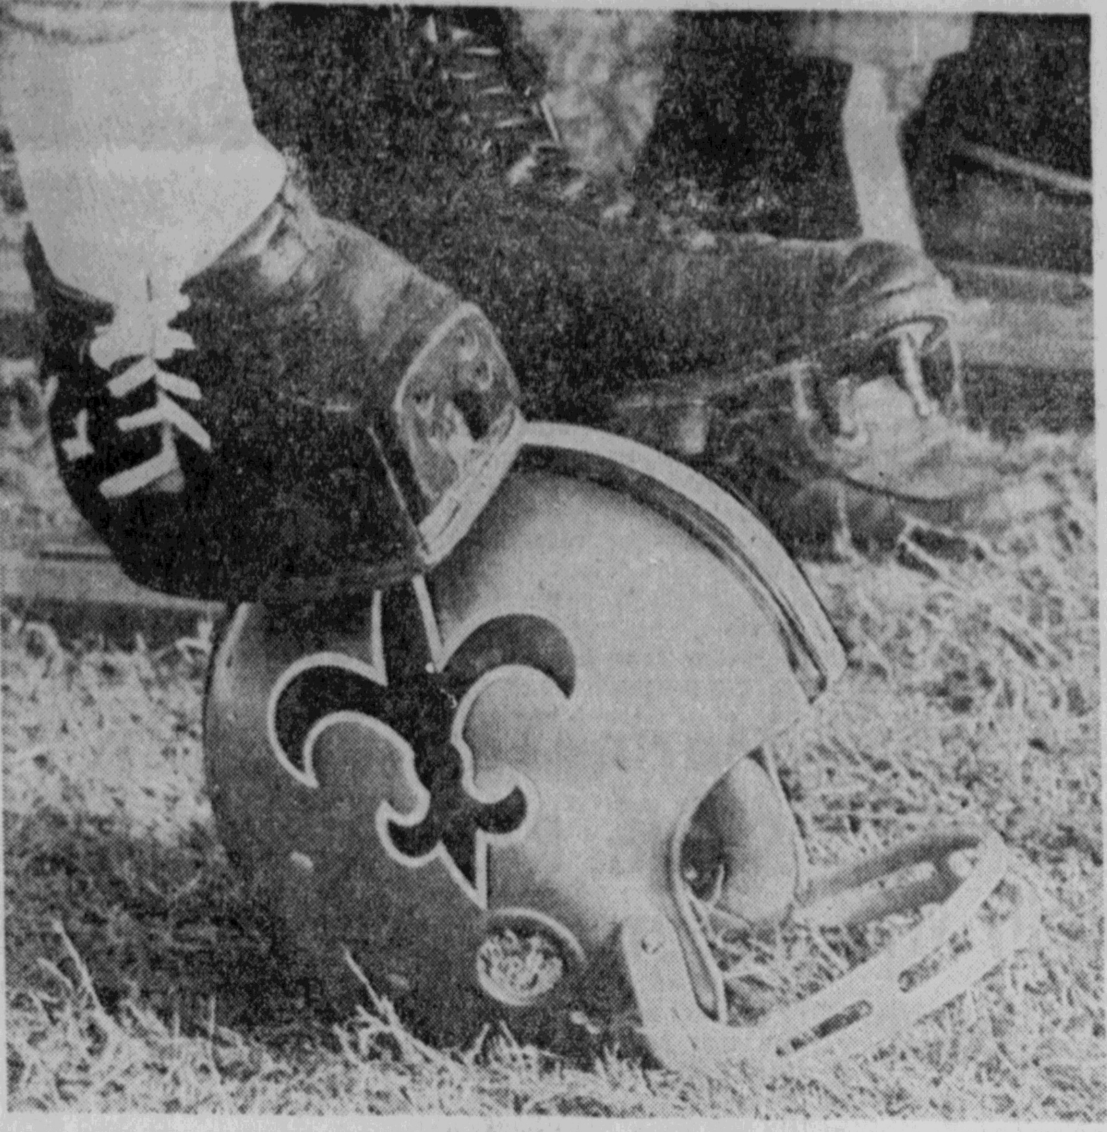
Warriors Routed By Royals



A SPECIAL SHOE

The special shoe New Orleans Saints' kicker Tom Dempsey wears on his malformed right foot has become the target of Dallas Cowboys' owner Tex Schramm who says he will recommend the shoe be ruled illegal unless it has a kicking surface the same as other kickers use, because he thinks Dempsey has an advantage. In defense of Dempsey, who kicked a 63-yard field goal last Sunday, Saint Gen. Mgr. Vic Schwenk says, "We had no protest from the other teams when Dempsey was missing field goals earlier in the season." (UPI Telephoto)

NO ORGANIZED CRIME

Only Antitrust Matters Involved In NFL Probe

CLEVELAND (UPI) —The Justice Department said Thursday that next week's Grand Jury investigation of the National Football League involves only possible antitrust violations and "excludes any other areas of speculation, such as organized crime."

Only a few NFL teams remained to be subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury beginning here next week.

Boston, Miami, Houston, Oakland and Washington were the only teams left that had not received subpoenas to have a representative bring records of personnel matters, such as contracts, waivers and histories of such transactions before the Grand Jury.

Before the end of the week, all 26 NFL teams are expected to be subpoenaed. The NFL also has been ordered to provide its records for the proceedings.

A spokesman for the antitrust division of the Justice Department in Washington said, "There is a Grand Jury. It is an antitrust Grand Jury and it is a conventional antitrust proceeding involving only possible antitrust violations. That excludes any other areas of speculation, such as organized crime."

The Grand Jury was called by the Great Lakes Regional Office of the Justice Department's antitrust division, possibly in connection with former AFL and NFL player Walter Beach. However, Beach's attorney, Bob Bicks, refused to comment on his client's involvement, saying only, "I am a counsel to Mr. Beach, and I have been acting in that capacity for some time."

When the AFL and NFL merged, they were given exemption from antitrust legislation. The two leagues formally became one this season, called the National Football League with an American Conference made up predominantly of former AFL teams and a National Conference composed of old NFL teams.

Kent State's Coach To Quit—'Negativism'

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Kent State University football coach Dave Puddington announced Thursday night he will quit at the end of the current quarter because of "negativism on campus" since the killing of four students during disorders May 4.

"The fatalism around us and the current tendency to politicize every facet of life—even sports—has certainly affected the young men in our football program," Puddington said.

The Canton, Ohio, native has compiled an 8-26 record during his two and a half years at Kent State. His team has won only two of its eight games this year.

Puddington, 41, said the failure of his team this season also was responsible for his resignation along with the "prevailing contagious negativism on campus and in the community."

He said the newly created Department of Intercollegiate Athletics will have the opportunity to pick the football coach of its choice, but department director Mike Lude said he accepted the resignation with "sincere regret."

"I have been unsuccessful in my efforts to have him reconsider his decision," Lude said.

Kent State President Robert I. White said "all involved know there has been no pressure on him and that we have applauded his dedication and efforts."

Puddington, a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, formerly coached at Washington University in St. Louis where he compiled a 36-16-3 record in six years.

WEST COAST FOOTBALL

Year Of The Quarterback

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's the year of the quarterback in college football and the West Coast has a talented bunch of throwers who face tough tests this Saturday.

First and foremost, there's Jim Plunkett of Stanford, the soft-spoken guy who has already led the Indians into a New Year's date with the Big Ten champ at Pasadena. Plunkett has also broken the NCAA passing and total offense marks and is battling Notre Dame's Joe Theismann and Mississippi's Archie Manning for All America honors and the Heisman trophy.

He has clicked on 154 of 286 passes for 2,253 yards and 16 touchdowns.

Plunkett gets a big test Saturday when he leads the Indians, who are 8-1, in against Air Force, also 8-1. The Falcons want this one badly, for a win would probably land them in one of the big bowls, too.

Pass defense is considered the Falcons' major weakness, however, and last year's 47-34 Stanford win might be considered a model of decorum compared to this year's rematch.

Two more golden-armed Coast tossers meet head-on in the madhouse at Seattle when UCLA calls on the Huskies.

Dennis Dummit, who has let the Bruins to a 13-4-1 mark in his nearly two years at the helm, has hit on 128 for 253 and 1,804 yards in eight games this year.

The Huskies have uncovered a soph whiz in full-blooded Indian Sonny Sixkiller, who has clicked on 151 for 293 and 1,770 yards and 10 touchdowns. But Dummit has had only 13 intercepted and Sixkiller has seen 21 stolen in what might prove to be a key difference.

The fourth outstanding signal-caller in the Pacific Eight is soph Danny Fouts of Oregon, who passed for almost 400 yards against Air Force last week and has clicked for 1,908 yards and 14 touchdowns.

He leads the Ducks against weak Army at Michie Stadium Saturday in a game that should be a great showcase for the young quarterback and the Ducks' magnificent and underrated trio of stars, Bobby Moore, Bob Newland and Tom Graham.

In more action involving Pacific Eight squads, California and Oregon State, both 4-5, are expected to even their records at the expense of San Jose tSate and Washington State respectively. USC takes the week off.

Turning to the PCAA, San Diego State and Long Beach State are roaring to their big shootout next week.

San Diego State figures to waltz through Santa Barbara while Long Beach Thursday night muscled past Los Angeles State 40-7. Leon Burns was his usual awesome self, rolling up 86 yards and two touchdowns on 14 carries, but Randy Drake added variety to the 49ers attack by passing for 258 yards.

In more teams involving the PCAA, UOP calls on Colorado State and Fresno State is at Northern Arizona.

Far Western Conference teams have a busy schedule with Chico at San Francisco State, Hayward at UC Davis, Humboldt at Sacramento State and Sonoma entertaining USF.

One more game Thursday night found Cal Poly San Luis Obispo taking care of Fullerton 28-18 with the winners scoring two safeties.

Streak Snapped At Four

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tom Van Arsdale scored nine of Cincinnati's final 23 points and finished with a game high 29 Thursday night as the Royals routed San Francisco 121-107 in the National Basketball Association.

The loss snapped the Warriors' four-game winning streak and dropped them 2 1-2 games behind Los Angeles in the Pacific Division. The victory boosted Cincinnat's record to 5-10 and kept the Royals three games off the pace in the Central Division.

10,000 POINTS

Cincinnati's veteran forward Johnny Green became only the 40th player in NBA history to score 10,000 points when he hit a jump shot midway through the first period.

A 16-2 outburst in that quarter gave the Royals an 18-8 lead and they never were headed thereafter.

While the Royals were on their spree, the Warriors failed to score a field goal for five minutes. Van Arsdale, Green, guard Norm Van Lier and center Darrall Imhoff each tallied four points in the decisive spurt.

14 REBOUNDS

Van Arsdale also led the Royals with 14 rebounds. Guard Flynn Robinson entered the game with less than one minute remaining in the first quarter and contributed 24 points for Cincinnati.

Former Royals' star Jerry Lucas led San Francisco with 24 points and a game high of 17 rebounds.

The Royals were torrid in the second half, connecting on 24 of 45 field goal attempts to keep the Warriors at bay.

Frank Selke Resigns From Seals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Frank Selke has resigned as general manager of the California Golden Seals, according to a report in San Francisco newspapers.

Selke, general manager of Oakland's National Hockey League entry since 1968, reportedly informed team owner Charles O. Finley of the resignation plans on Monday.

Jack Fiske, veteran sportswriter of the Chronicle, made the disclosure following a phone interview Thursday night with Finley, who spoke from his office in Chicago.

Selke, contacted in Oakland, would not comment on the resignation report. But Finley indicated Selke resigned at least partly because of contracts with prior owners of the club.

Finley said Bill Torrey, executive vice president of the Seals, has yet to make a decision on whether to remain with the club.

Finely did say, however, that he expects coach Fred Glover will sign a two-year contract.

"I expect to get his contract, a two-year one, in the mail Saturday," Finley said. "Glover has no financial problems with previous owners."

Finley said Torrey, like Selke, was having problems claiming money from the Seals' former owner, Trans-National Communications, Inc.

"I've tendered Torrey a contract for two years to June, 1972, and he's in Buffalo right now to contact the Knox brothers (of Niagara Frontier, Inc.) who guaranteed his contract. He will let me know by Saturday if he'll stay. Right now he doesn't know under the circumstances."

Li'l League Expansion

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) —The Little League announced Thursday that the seating capacity of its World Stadium here will be increased from 5,000 to 15,800 before the Series next August.

CLUB PRO TOURNEY

Pair Of Golfers Share The Lead

SUNOL, Calif. (UPI) —Dick Whetzle and Francisco Lopez are about as different from each other as night is from day.

But today they are the co-leaders going into the second round of the $50,000 Club Professionals Golf Championship.

Whetzle, a graduate of North Texas State and a former All-America golfer, made some money during a brief fling on the pro tour but now he's the head pro at the posh Prince Georges Country Club in Landover, Md.

COLOMBIAN

Lopez, four years older than Whetzle at 39, is a native of Colombia who never made a dime in his try for riches on the PGA tour. Now, he's a teaching pro at Skywest Public Golf Course in Hayward, Calif.

Whetzle, playing a good round by his own description, shot a 35-33-68 at the Sunol Valley Club's Palm Course in the opening round Thursday. Lopez, playing erratically, shot a 34-34-68 at Cypress.

Whetzle had five birdies and no bogies on his card; Lopez had seven birdies and three bogies.

Because this year's tourney, a chance for the club pros to pick up some extra money, drew 261 entries, play was divided for the first two rounds over Sunol's two courses. the Palm layout plays a little tougher than the Cypress although both courses are pegged at even par 72.

Only five players beat par on the Palm layout in the first round while 24 were under regulation at Cypress.

The players flip flop today. Those who played the Palm course in the first round shifting over to Cypress for the second. After today's play the field will be cut to the low 90 and ties for the final two rounds which will be played at the Palm course only.

OPENING SCORES

Ten players were only a stroke behind Whetzle and Lopez with opening round 69s, all shot at Cypress. They were Eddie Langert of Green Bay, Wis., Bob Bruno of Oakland, Bill Collins of Purchase, N. Y. Al Chandler of New Orleans, Bob C. Smith of Fortuna, Calif., Chris Gers of Oklahoma City Okla., Bill Ogden of [illegible] and Juan Elizondo of Omaha Neb.

Eight players were tied at two under 70 and eight, including former tour stars Rex Baxter and Ed Kroll, were at one under 71.

"This was an exceptional round for me," said Whetzle of his 68. "I dont think I can play any better than this, especially on a tough course as the Palm layout."

"I think I'm at the top of my game now," said Lopez. "I've been practicing a lot for this tournament. I could use the money."

First place in the club event is worth $8,000, second is worth $4,500 and third place is worth $3,300.

NO DEFENDER

The club tourney doesnt have a defending champion this year because Bob Rosburg, the 1969 winner, did not qualify. He played in more than 12 tour events this year, Jim Wright of Inwood, N.Y. who lost out to Rosburg by a shot in 1969, was the pre-tourney favorite this year but he opened with a 37-36-73 at Cypress.

Tommy Bolt, now 52, was another favorite. He had a opening round of 38-35-73 at Palm. Bolt played on the tour for 18 years, winning the 1958 U.S. open. Now, he's a driving range owner in Sarasota Fla.

49er Defense Gets Praise From Wiggin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The day may be near when the San Francisco 49ers' defensive unit comes up with one of these catchy nicknames.

Off hand there's Minnesota's "Purple People Easters," "The Fearsome Foursome" of the Los Angeles Rams and the "Doomsday Defense" of the Dallas Cowboys.

San Francisco's defensive line coach Paul Wiggin said Thursday there is justification in top-rating the 49er defense.

"This is the best defensive team I've ever been associated with," said Wiggin, who played on a couple of championship teams during his 11-year career at Cleveland.

"I'm not saying this is the best defensive line," he added, "but we're getting there. I'm talking about the overall defense."

MARIN WINS THIRD PREP CAGE TITLE

Marin Catholic High School's Class C basketball team completed its undefeated championship season yesterday with a 56-21 triumph over San Rafael High School's "C" team.

The Wildkittens finished the campaign with a 12-0 record in the Marin County Athletc League and has stretched its win streak to 16 over the past two seasons.

It was Marin's third straight Class C title.

Hickerson Did Play In Bowl

A story in yesterday's Independent-Journal sports section was in error when it reported former Drake star Bill Hickerson didn't play in last year Camellia Bowl in Sacramento.

Hickerson, a linebacker for the University of Montana Grizzlies, did play in the game, won by North Dakota State, 30-3. Karl Stein, also a former Drake and College of Marin star, is a star defensive back for the Grizzlies but had to miss last year's game because of rules involving transfer students.

Stein, Hickerson and the rest of the Montana football team will get a chance to avenge last year's loss when they take on North Dakota State in this year's Camellia Bowl game, scheduled Dec. 12.

Davidson Still Gets Hate Notes

OAKLAND (UPI) —Ben Davidson's fan club may have its work cut out in trying to defend him from a deluge of letters he's received from Kansas City partisans.

NOT FANS

It's been almost two weeks now since mustachioed Ben tumbled on Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson—after the play was dead, claim Chiefs' fans.

GRAMMAR

In commenting on the mail Thursday, Davidson said most of the writers apparently were so angry they had no time for such niceties as spelling and grammar. "Here's one letter that has 23 words and six of them misspelled, and he calls me an idiot."

It Won't Be Same Without Hodges

It won't be the same on the baseball beat without Russ Hodges who announced his play-by-play retirement the other day. He will be particularly missed whenever the Giants visit Cincinatti. It was in Cincinatti that Hodges got his start in radio as a hillbilly disc jockey before switching to sports announcing four decades ago.

Thus, it was only natural that nostalgia occasionally would overwhelm Hodges during the bus ride from Cincinatti's airport into the city. And on those occasions, Hodges was at his best in story telling, especially when the bus approached Covington, across the Ohio River from Cincinatti.

Hodges grew up in Covington and, as the bus threaded through its narrow streets, he would make the blue grass country of his boyhood come alive for his radio-press companions with a little urging from them.

Hodges' conducted tours through Covington always came to an end when the bus approached Covington's city limits on the western banks of the Ohio.

"Now," Hodges would say, "if you look to the right you will see the city's unique landmark."

Hodges rarely would be permitted to conduct his tour without considerable heckling. "How come you gave up hillbilly singing?" was a standard rib which always received a standard answer: "To please my mother who always thought I'd be an opera singer."

During his sports announcing days at WCKY in the '30s, Hodges picked up a law degree and passed the Ohio bar. "But salaries for fledgling lawyers in 1933 were unheard of," Hodges said. "They worked for experience. So I kept my $25 a week radio job."

When he tried for a raise to $30 in 1934 at WCKY, the owner of the station was shocked. So Hodges moved on to a Rock Island station where he did get $30. From Rock Island Hodges' next stop was Chicago to broadcast White Sox and Cub games. There was an intermediate stop in Washington, broadcasting Senator baseball games and Redskin football games, before Hodges made it to the big city, New York, in 1945.

For three years Hodges was second man to Mel Allen of the Yankees and then in 1949 he became the "Voice of the Giants." Two years later he made his most famous broadcast when Bobby Thomson hit the home run that gave the Giants their 1951 pennant.

The sports world remembers Hodges for that broadcast but his press-radio bus pals never will forget him for his conducted tours through Covington.

BIGGEST BATTLE ON THE BOTTOM

Marin Grid Season Comes To Close

The 1970 Marin County Athletic League football season draws to a close this weekend on a note of anticlimax. The only thing really up for grabs is last place.

Had the San Rafael High School Bulldogs beaten Terra Linda last week, they would go into tonight's 8 o'clock game against the Drake Pirates at San Rafael undefeated with a chance to win the title, or if they lost at least tie for the top spot. But the Trojans clinched the title by winning last Friday night, 19 - 7, and the best San Rafael can hope for is sole possession of second place.

Should the Bulldogs lose, and that is not out of the question, the Novato Hornets could tie them for second with a win tomorrow afternoon over the Redwood Giants, one of three teams currently occupying the league cellar. But the Hornets could end up being tied for third also. If Drake wins tonight and Redwood pulls an upset tomorrow, the Pirates of San Anselmo and Novato would end the season with identical 3 - 3 records.

Odds are, however, that Novato, winners of three straight league games after losing their first twi, will dispose handily of the Giants in the 1 p.m. game at Novato. But the Larkspur team will have company in last place, because San Marin and Tamalpais, the other teams with 1 - 4 records, have to play each other tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 at Tamalpais in Mill Valley.

The mismatch of the week, and at the same time the most interesting game in the county, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Kentfield, where the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats will host Northern California's eighth-ranked Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa and their incredible halfback, Percy Grogans.

Last week the Wildcats feasted on a 35 - 8 win over Justin of Napa, but the chances for that kind of show tomorrow are bleak. Grogans, a 5-foot-11, 185-pounder who covers 40 yards in 4.6 seconds, has carried the ball 184 times this season for 1,304 yards and 22 touchdowns. Almost needless to say, he leads all Northern California players in both rushing and scoring.

But even if Marin is able to stop him, the Cardinals have some other dandy weapons. Quarterback Tom Bonfigli has thrown for 921 yards and 11 touchdowns this year, and Jim Wilkey, his favorite receiver, has caught 28 passes for 604 yards.

Wildcat coach Rev. John Heaney is going to need more than God on his side to upset this team. He's going to need the whole heavenly host.

In other games tomorrow, San Rafael Military Academy hosts Menlo at 10:30 a.m., and Rancho·Cotate of Rohnert Park entertains Piner of Santa Rosa at 8 p.m. In college action, College of Marin plays Santa Rosa in Kentfield at 1 p.m., and Sonoma State is at home against University of San Francisco at 8.

NBA ROUNDUP

Cavaliers Finally Win First Game

By United Press International

The rumor that the Cleveland Cavaliers would not win a game this season is entirely unfounded.

The Cavaliers, winless in their first 15 games tying a National Basketball Association record, rallied in the last period Thursday night to beat the Portland Trail Blazers 105-103 in a battle of expansion teams.

Coach Bill Fitch, who before the game joked that his team might become famous for not winning a game, went through the contest with a toy skull at his feet, a novelty item purchased earlier in the day.

The skull, with a miniature rat attached to the top, was still at Fitch's feet when Bobby Lewis scored with 30 seconds remaining and Walt Wesley hit a foul shot with eight seconds to go to insure the Cavaliers' initial NBA victory.

In other NBA action, Baltimore edged New York 110-108 and Cincinnati ripped San Francisco 121-107.

Russell's wrist was fractured when he fell scoring a field goal with about five minutes remaining in the game. His arm will be in a cast for six weeks.

Gus Johnson's two foul shots with 14 seconds remaining gave the Bullets their victory over New York in a game in which the Knicks' Cazzie Russell was lost for six weeks with a fractured wrist.

Marin Tars To Host Santa Rosa In Finale

College of Marin's worst football season in recent memory comes to what may be less than a merciful end tomorrow when the Tars host powerful Santa Rosa Junior College at 1 p.m. in Kentfield. The game will mark the 35th annual homecoming for Marin.

The Tars have won only once in eight games this year, and are mired in last place in the Camino Norte Conference with an 0-4 record. In Santa Rosa they face a 6-2 team, second in the CNC at 3-1.

Both the Bearcubs and Marin lost chances to improve their lot last week. The Tars dropped a 14-12 decision to the Contra Costa College Comets, who prior to that hadn't won in league play, and Santa Rosa got bombed by undefeated West Valley, i.e., 42-21.

College of Marin coach Dick Read said yesterday, "There's no doubt about it that Santa Rosa is stronger then we are. But the boys know it's the last game of the season, and they'll be giving it their all."

Unfortunately, it looks as though the Tars may have less than their all to give. Quarterback Jim Peters, who missed the Contra Costa game with a badly twisted ankle, still is doubtful. If he can't start, Read will go with either Kevin Peak or Pete Carroll.

Australians In Early Lead In World Golf

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —If the Australians feel as "bloody good" on Friday the 13th as they did on Thursday, then 42 other golf teams from around the world can count themselves mighty unlucky.

Aussies David Graham and Bruce Devlin humbled the par-72 Jockey Club Course in the opening round of the 1970 World Cup tournament with a 65 and 66 respectively to take a three-stroke team lead over Argentina at 13 under par.

Graham and Devlin were scheduled to tee off early Friday to try and open their lead over the Argentines and David Stockton-Lee Trevino of the United States and to go after the individual lead of Argentine Roberto de Vicenzo.

De Vicenzo fired a sizzling 8-under par 64 Thursday while his partner in the two-man team play, Vicente Fernandez, carded a 70 to put the team 10-under-par.

The United States came next at seven-under-par with both Trevino (70 and Stockton (67) complaining about the greens.

"I've seen some bad greens", said Trevino on the 17th, "but never anything like this." The usually-chipper crowd pleaser hardly smiled when his ball rolled into an ant hill on the 15th fairway and he needed an official ruling to move it.

Scotland (Ronnie Shade at 68 and George Will at 71) and New Zealand (Brian Boys, 69, and John Lister, 71) were the only others pressing the United States for third place.

One stroke behind New Zealand at 141 were Holland, Denmark and England.

In the battle for individual honors, Hsieh Min Nan of Nationalist China fired a 66 on Thursday and Stockton and Henrik Lund of Denmark were right behind with 67s.

Allan Henning of South Africa, Manuel Camacho of Puerto Rico and Shade had 68's while U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin of England shared 69 with three others.

Lund scored a hole-in-one on the par-three 12th hole. He used a 4-iron to pop his ball into the cup on one bounce on the 176-yard hole. He won a gold wrist watch for his efforts.

While Devlin was saying "there's not a five on either of our score cards—and you won't see that again for a long time," the Romanian team was compiling a rather unusual scorecard of its own.

It was a horrible day for the only Communist country entered. Fifty-seven-year-old Paul Tomita, chewing on a pipe, fired an 85 and his teammate, Dumitru Munteanu, a 93 to finish 34 over par.

Boat Show Opens Tonight

The Northern California Boat and Sports Show opens tonight at 7 o'clock in the Oakland Arena.

It will be the first public showing in the United States of 1971 water craft and recreational vehicles, according to F. H. Skip Creger, producer of the exposition.

The show runs through Nov. 22. Weekday starting times are 4 p.m., with the exception of Wednesday and Friday when it's 2 p.m. On Saturdays and Sundays the show starts at 10 a.m.

Ty Cobb of the Detroit Tigers won the American League home-run title in 1909 with nine.

Seals To Begin Road Swing On Buffalo Ice

BUFFALO (UPI)—The California Golden Seals embark on a swing through the East, starting tonight in Buffalo, and it will be a long time before they see home ice again.

With a four-game winning streak going, the Seals open a seven-game road trip and won't be back until the day before Thanksgiving. Stops after here include Pittsburgh, Boston, Montreal, Philadelphia, Toronto and Chicago.

Despite some fine skating of late, the Seals, who got off to a wretched 0-7-2 start, remain last in the NHL West, two points behind sixth place Pittsburgh.

But coach Fred Glover is confident the team will return home in a better position.

FISH AND GAME

Bass Being Caught In Channel Waters

By AL GIDDINGS

Hazel Eddings of Buck's Landing at Santa Venetia is provoked with me. Too much running around writing about deer, trout, ducks and chukers while lots of big bass are just laying off China Camp and Buck's place (that's Hazel's husband) on Santa Venetia Slough.

The boys around Buck's Landing took eight big fish using bullheads and grass shrimp this past week. I talked with Joe Mello of Santa Venetia about all these rumors and he says they are true. He added another list of fishermen catching big ones to 23 pounds, so maybe we better be getting out there. Where? Out by the pumphouse in the deep channel waters. Use bullheads with sliding sinkers for best results. Let 'em take the bait with free line, then sock it to 'em when they've gone about 20 or 30 feet. Just guide the line out so you don't get a backlash. It's exciting!

WITH SALMON season closing Sunday in the areas outside the Golden Gate, except north of Tomales Point including Tomales Bay, (San Francisco, San Pablo and Richardson Bay between the Carquinez Bridge and the Golden Gate Bridge remains open all year) this weeknd is your last chance to nail a big one. Current reports have it that the fish are not plentiful, but if you connect, the fish are generally big ones.

Pheasant season opens a week from tomorrow on Saturday, Nov. 21. In Marin County, pheasants in the wild are almost nil, but the local pheasant clubs are already in operation and providing top hunting. St. Vincent's just north of San Rafael has just about reached their 200 member quota for this year.

JIM JOHNSON, who runs the Pierce Point Pheasant Club near Inverness in West Marin called to say that he has 4,000 birds at his Sebastopol ranch for planting on the Pierce Point Club. He has room for 75 more members out there. This is Jim's fourth year of operation on the club's 1700 acres. This year a membership for 60 birds has a $400 price tag on it. You can buy a half membership if desired.

The club shoots every day except Monday. The area is generally low rolling hills with scattered high grasses, some lupine and a scattered brush pile here and there. Lots of excellent cover for the good dog to work in. You can call Jim at his home in Sebastopol, or take a ride out to the club. Jim's wife, Betty, works at the Inverness Store if you need further information.

ARE YOU having problems with your dog on pointing, holding or retrieving? While out at St. Vincent's, I talked to Ben Warren who trains and uses dogs to help hunters on the club grounds on Saturdays and Sundays. He looked like he knew what he was doing. He has room for the training of about five more dogs. He's been in the business the past 20 years, and has worked dogs the last four years at St. Vincent's. He says he can do a pretty complete job with your dog in about two months. This includes board and room, all for the price of $250.

TWELVE STATE and federal areas will offer public shooting during the 1970 general pheasant season, Nov. 21-Dec. 20, the Department of Fish and Game has announced. An extra two weeks has been added to the season this year.

Five state wildlife areas — Honey Lake, Gray Lodge, Grizzly Island, Los Banos and Mendota — will provide public pheasant hunting.

Honey Lake, in Lassen County, will limit pheasant hunting to the waterfowl shoot days of Saturday, Sunday and Wednesday.

Gray Lodge, Los Banos and Mendota are scheduled to open for pheasant hunting every day from Nov. 21 to 29 with the exception of Nov. 26, and on Saturdays, Sundays and Wednesdays in December through the close of the season.

IN ADDITION, the refuge portion of Gray Lodge will be open to pheasant hunting on Mondays and Tuesdays, Nov. 23-24 and Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

Grizzly Island will be open on waterfowl shoot days and will also offer special pheasant-only hunts on 3,600 acres of unflooded land on Nov. 23, 24 and 27.

Five national wildlife refuges open in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will offer pheasant hunting only on waterfowl shoot days. They are Colusa, Delevan, Merced, Sutter and Sacramento.

Tule Lake and Lower Klamath national wildlife refugees will have certain days open to pheasant hunting. Hunters should obtain details at the Tule Lake Refuse headquarters located seven miles west of the town of Tulelake.

Richest Auto Series In History

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States Auto Club will stage 13 races, including one in Argentina and three 500-mile events next year on its $3 million Marlboro Championship Trail, the richest series in auto racing history.

USAC's Triple Crown will include the Indianapolis 500 on May 29, the Pocono 500 at the new Pocono (Pa.) International Raceway on July 3 and the California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway Sept. 5.

The series will be kicked off on Feb. 28 at the Auto Dromo de Rafaela in Argentina, but no points will be awarded toward the series' Marlboro Cup from the twin 150-mile invitational races.

The only other track on the Marlboro circuit for the first time will be Mountaineer Speedway, now under construction at Parkersburg, W. VA. The track will open with a USAC Championship event on July 18.

Other races on the schedule will be at Hanford, Calif., March 14 and Oct. 10; Phoenix, Ariz., March 27 and Oct. 23; Trenton, N.J., April 18 and Sept. 26; and Milwaukee, Wis., June 6 and Aug. 15.

For the first time, the championship trail will not include any races on dirt tracks or road courses. Races on these types of courses will be included in other series.

Al Unser is the series champion this year with 10 victories, including the Indianapolis 500. One race remains on the schedule at Phoenix Nov. 21, and Unser has already won $448,145 in prize and accessory money.

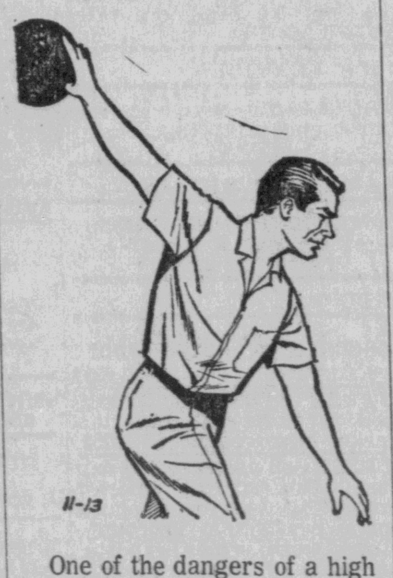
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



One of the dangers of a high backswing is that it will cause excessive speed. If a ball is going to roll, it must be delivered with moderate speed so it has a chance to stop skidding long before it reaches the pins. Very few good bowlers let the ball go as high as the bowler in today's illustration.

St. Louis Icemen Triumph

By United Press International

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —The St. Louis Blues don't intend to let their National Hockey League West Division dominance be taken away by the intruders from the East.

The Blues virtually have dominated the division since its inception four years ago but were expected to run second to the Chicago Black Hawks when that team was switched from the East after last year's expansion.

St. Louis is proving the Black Hawks will have to earn the West title. The Blues moved to within two points of the first place Black Hawks Thursday night with a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings in the only scheduled NHL game.

Gary Sabiurin and Tim Ecclestone supplied the offensive strength and defensemen Jim Roberts and Barclay Plaguer supported Ernie Wakely's goaltending as the Blues scored their sixth straight victory at home, a club record.

Ralston's Warning On Tickets

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford athletic director Chuck Taylor. Thursday warned fans hoping to go to the Rose Bowl Game to "investigate before you invest."

Taylor made his observation after announcing that Stanford, the Western representative next New Year's Day in the Rose Bowl, is not selling tickets to outside organizations such as travel agencies advertising tours to the game.

Stanford ticket manager Theodore Glarrow was especially miffed because some ticket agencies, he claimed, are saying that Stanford is their source of tickets.

"Stanford is receiving a limited number of tickets for the game," said Taylor, "and all of these will go to members of the Stanford community, including students, season ticket holders and certain specified groups.

"No blocks of tickets will be available to commercial organizations."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Main Objection To Marijuana Is Unpredictable Effects

Van Dellen

A worried aunt writes: "We suspect that my nephew is on marijuana. Is there any way we can prove it?"

Ask him. If he admits it, you will have your answer, but not the solution. On the other hand, if he denies smoking "pot," the problem of recognizing a user is more difficult. The weed (Cannabis) is usually smoked, and you may have your answer if such cigarets (sticks, reefers, joints) are found on his person.

THE CIGARET is prepared by rolling the marijuana in a double thickness of brownish or offwhite paper. Reefers are smaller than a regular cigaret and twisted or tucked in at both ends. They often contain seeds and stems and are greener in color than ordinary tobacco. Marijuana smoke smells like burnt rope and is detectable on the breath and clothing. The odor might be an important clue when this young man comes home after being with his friends.

We mention the latter because pot users smoke in groups. Cannabis burns rapidly, and each smoker takes one or two puffs, inhaling deeply. The cigaret is passed along quickly to the next person. Now and then, it is cupped in the palms of the hands to inhale all the smoke possible.

THE EFFECTS of marijuana seldom offer any clues unless the user is observed soon after the cigaret is smoked. Stimulation is the immediate effect. The user looks hysterical and becomes vivacious, talking rapidly and loudly. Later, he becomes sleepy and somewhat stuporous.

Technically, marijuana is a mild hallucinogen, but the federal government classifies it as a narcotic. Although physical addiction does not ensue, the drug may lead to moderate to strong psychic dependence. One of the main objections to pot is the unpredictability. All too often, continued usage leads to extreme lethargy, self-neglect and preoccupation with the use of marijuana. With tobacco, alcohol and civil unrest, we have enough trouble.

ACNE PITS

A reader writes : I am interested in finding the answer to acne scars. How can one get rid of them? I would like to konw about the least expensive method of eradicating them.

REPLY

If the acne pits are not too deep, they can be eliminated via dermabrasion. In this procedure, the skin is anesthetized and sanded down with an abrasive or wire brush. As for the cost, consult a dermatologist who does this type of work.

DIABETIC'S FEET

G. W. M. writes: Why did your health hint tell the diabetic to pay special attention to his feet?

REPLY

Because diabetics are predisposed to poor circulation earlier in life than nondiabetics. Any infection or injury might require a long time to heal and occasionally gangrene results.

MORNING COFFEE

K. T. writes: My morning coffee has a laxative effect on me. Is this a natural occurence?

REPLY

Yes, but is is more of a habit pattern than anything else. Some persons get the same result from a glass of warm water, a cigaret, or breakfast.

FACE SOAP FOR DENTURES

J. D. writes: Will brushing false teeth with regular face soap harm the dentures in any way? P.S. We all use the same bar of soap.

REPLY

No harm, so long as it gets the dentures clean.

Today's Health Hint — Muscular strain and poor circulation are common offenders in leg cramps.

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday approved a mobile home and sign request from Southern Sonomans.

The board denied the request of Parley Smith for a mobile home at 6067 Gilmore Avenue, Cotati, because he is not exclusively employed in agriculture.

Soviets Blamed For Collision

MOSCOW (UPI)—The British government today formally blamed the Russians for the collision in the Mediterranean Monday between the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal and a Soviet destroyer spying on the carrier.

A British note to the Soviet Foreign Ministry accused the captain of the Russian Kotlin class destroyer No. 365 of failing to observe international regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea and reserved the British government's right to make a claim over the incident.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Criminal Act And The Intent

As a rule, to charge someone with a crime the district attorney must show that the accused did his act on purpose. Not always that he meant to break the law, perhaps, but that he did not do so accidentally or unintentionally.

For example, the fact that a person acts negligently does not always mean that he also committed a crime. However, "criminal negligence" is enough to show a crime. An example: Harry takes pot shots at passing motorists and drives 100 miles an hour down a busy street endangering life and property. He may be guilty of a crime.

A special rule applies to some crimes, such as vehicle manslaughter. The negligent driver who runs someone down in the crosswalk may be convicted of manslaughter. He need not be drinking, speeding, or doing anything that shows gross negligence.

His mind may merely have been wandering when he failed to see the pedestrian. Still that death is manslaughter.

For example, a sleepy, inattentive driver hit a parked truck. The impact killed his passenger and the district attorney charged him with manslaughter. A higher court upheld his conviction even though the driver's act was only that of ordinary negligence.

"A negative act," caused by neglect, may also be a crime. For example, the person who neglects to file his income tax or the doctor who fails to report a gunshot wound to the pelice is guilty of a crime.

The motorist who fails to aid the victim of an auto accident involving his car is also guilty of a crime. So is the failure to support a child.

Sometimes the criminal "act" might be an agreement to do something criminal as in a conspiracy, or in encouraging someone to commit a crime. "Acts" may also be an inaction such as the mere possession of something prohibited by law such as a gun, drug, or stolen goods.

Life for an automobile is not all palm trees, polo ponies and white sandy beaches as some car ads would lead you to believe.

At Volvo, we accept life as it is. For better and for worse.

For instance, before we send a Volvo out into the world, it's covered with six coats of paint and primer, instead of a ton of chrome.

That's not a guarantee.

It's a fact of life.

"By No Means Neutral"

Ernest B. Furguson's provocative new column on the I-J Editorial Page

"Unlike any editorial section writer contributing today"

Furguson has been said to write from the "radical center"

Furguson best describes himself

"Center does not connote in my case a consistent agreement with the attitudes of Middle America. Readers can expect strong opinions and a skeptical approach to politicians, combined with a deep and old-fashioned love of country. I oppose both extremes. But I do not run with any pack and am by no means neutral."

"My recent experiences in search of material include mucking around in Vietnam paddies; toasting vodka with Krushchev; breakfasting Texas style with LBJ; arguing politics in Siberia; uncovering hippie culture in New Mexico; exploring people and politics in all 50 states and more countries than that."

Furguson, national affairs columnist with the Baltimore Sun, has been chief of the Moscow bureau, Senate correspondent, White House correspondent, Saigon correspondent and national political correspondent.

Hitch: Can't Cover-Up Incompetence

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Some University of California faculty members are going to spend more time teaching president Charles J. Hitch declared Thursday.

The university president made his prediction at a news conference and said it was based on a survey he made in 1968 comparing how the faculty spent its time then compared with eight years previously.

He found that two years ago, the university's professors taught only four hours a week in the lower division and nine in the upper division, compared wth seven hours and 12.8 hours respectively previously.

Faculty members, he complained, have been in "ever-larger measure" turning over the undergraduate teaching load to lecturers and teaching assistants.

But he said he was somewhat cautious about experiments in which teachers conduct "encounter groups" in which emotions are expressed freey.

"I am a little skeptical about encounter groups on the basis of what information I have," he said.

Asked if his plans for evaluation of teachers by means of classroom visits by committees didn't constitute snooping, Hitch declared: "I don't think academic freedom involves the right that incompetence should not be discovered."

TELEVISION REVIEW

Is It Irrelevant, Or Just Plain Bad?

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Inevitably, public soul-searching has begun in the television industry over why themes of so-called "relevancy" in new weekly series have generally failed to attract large audiences.

All sorts of imposing and sophisticated arguments have been put forth as reasons. Could it be the silent majority didn't want to hear or see any more problems? Was it wrong to flaunt youth-oriented shows in the face of traditional viewers? Who's really watching television?

Alas, Alas. The simplest answers are often overlooked in such involuted, painful self-analysis. Nobody seems to want to face the simple fact that the shows just weren't very good. Period.

The analysts might consider the significant fact that early this year, an original two-hour NBC-TV movie, "My Sweet Charlie," which told of the friendship of a white southern girl and a black northern lawyer — both on the run — finished No. 1 in the national ratings.

It was more truly relevant than anything seen since in television entertainment. It came at a time just as fraught with problems for the silent majority and everyone else. The secret is that it was excellent. That's the key word to everything: excellence. Too many video people are always figuring, figuring, figuring the angles—what will sell, what will get an audience, ad nauseum. And the answer is so simple again: do something good, really good. That is what contemporary young people want—not cynical series aimed at exploiting them. And ratings for shows like "My Sweet Charlie" prove the middle-aged audience isn't so different in its goals. Not when it has a chance to see a truly fine program. The separation occurs in the choice between young junk and middle-aged junk.

It's important to realize that relevant series haven't bombed out. What have bombed out are the new series that were advertised as emphasizing social relevancy. The false promotion, the false shows, the false promises, the false relevancy have bombed out.

Relevancy has, in fact, been almost non-existent on television this season. What we've had is topicality exploited in the same old plots. There's a slight difference there.

And video has a problem because most of the people best equipped to genuinely deal with relevancy long ago left the merium for other entertainment outlets.

A world view of religion

by a writer of international repute HUGH CASSELS, SENIOR EDITOR, UPI.

This is the broad view of religion by a Senior Editor and Washington news analyst of United Press International. His column which now appears in more than 500 newspapers throughout the world goes beyond sectarian views to the essence of religious experience. Far from being dry or "churchy" it provides insights which offer the reader a stimulating new perspective.

CASSEL'S column grew from his conviction that religion should receive the same kind of professional in-depth coverage that modern journalism attempts to provide on politics, economics, diplomacy and science. The I-J invites you to this unusual and interesting feature . . . Saturdays on the I-J Church Page.

Rights Panel Wants Supervisors To Reconsider $300,000 For Security

Admittedly bitter because its trimmed-down budget has made it hard to hire a director, the Marin County Human Rights Commission last night voted to ask the board of supervisors to reconsider its $300,000 security program at the Civic Center.

The commission voted 5-0 to ask supervisors to reevaluate the security measures instituted after the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom.

Commissioner Stephen Boxer said he had had several complaints from persons who had been searched before entering the Civic Center.

Boxer made it clear that while some of his concern was based on the possibility that the searches were a violation of civil liberties, the $300,000 appropriated for the extra security also galled him.

"I wonder if all this protection we are buying is really doing any good," he said, adding that he felt deputies were concentrating on searching long haired types and ". . . those without neckties and carrying attache cases."

Boxer, who said he has been searched twice, said the search was a "great inconvenience" to him personally.

Boxer complained that the commission has been unable to hire an executive director because the county trimmed its budget so severely insufficient money was available to pay an attractive salary.

Boxer indicated the commission should ask the supervisors how they managed to find $300,000 for security in a contingency fund when there apparently wasn't enough money to finance a fulltime director for the human rights commission.

While it was Boxer who did most of the talking the other four commissioner present appeared to agree with him.

Many in the audience supported Boxer's claims that the search was unconstitutional in their opinion.

One member of the audience said that while he was entering the building deputies made it clear that "hippie types" would be subjected to a more stringent search than other persons.

"One deputy told us that anyone with bells, beads or anything else that makes noise would not be allowed in the building," he said.

"Why protect the Civic Center any more than San Rafael High School or the Novato library," he added.

Several in the audience said this program was just another step to a "police state."

The commission also heard Bryce W. Anderson, executive city editor of the Independent-Journal, outline how the newspaper's "Secret Witness" program would work, but made no recommendation.

Kill Plot On Thoresen's Wife Related

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—A convicted bank robber testified Thursday that while he was in jail millionaire gun collector William E. Thoresen II approached him and offered to post his $25,000 bond if he would murder Thoresen's wife Louise.

Thomas Keith said he thought Thoresen was jesting.

"That was the weird part about it," Keith testified at the trial of Mrs. Thoresen, accused of murdering her husband. "I jokingly said 'why don't I blow her head off with a shotgun?"

"But he replied 'no, that's too messy,'" Keith told the court.

Other witnesses, including a psychiatrist and three of Thoresen's former attorneys, said Thoresen was prone to violent moods and that he once tried to throw Louise out of a 20th story window.

Mrs. Thoresen is accussed of firing five .38-caliber revolver shots into her husband's back as he lay in bed at their Fresno home June 10.

The defense has argued she shot her eccentric husband because she thought he was going to kill her. The prosecution claims Thoresen was asleep when his widow fired the fatal volley.

Keith, brought from McNeil Island federal prison in Washington to testify, said Thoresen approached him in jail in 1967 with the offer to post Keith's $25,000 bail if he would kill Mrs. Thoresen.

Another McNeil Island convict, Earl Van Blaricom, said in 1967 Thoresen offered him $5,000 to kill his wife and when Blaricom refused Thoresen raised it to $10,000 and gave Blaricom $2,500 as a down payment.

Van Blaricom said he never intended to carry out the job and took the $2,500 to Mexico where "I spent it."

Apartment Unit Design Approved

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee has approved building designs and landscaping for a 10-unit apartment at 51 Essex Street.

Secretary Thelma Foster reported yesterday that developers Grant Perkins and Max E. Holsinger must still submit irrigation plans.

In other action Wednesday, the committee referred back to applicant Wayne Temple building, parking and landscaping plans for revision. Temple is proposing a House of Kwanyin beauty salon at 510 Red Hill Avenue.

Never Too Late To Fix Teeth

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Many persons with ugly misaligned or protruding teeth can avoid a psychiatrist's couch by having their teeth straightened, an Atlanta dentist said Wednesday.

Dr. Marvin C. Goldstein told the American Dental Association convention that no adult was too old to have his teeth straightened provided there was enough bone to hold the tooth.

"Tooth realignment and repositioning in the adult may keep a particular person from growing older as far as appearance and the condition of oral tissues are concerned," he said.

Southland Brush Fires Burn Out Of Control

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Five brush fires, fanned by warm 60-mile-an-hour Santa Ana winds, raged out of control near here today, blackened close to 6,000 acres of valuable watershed and destroyed at least three homes.

All schools were closed in the Rim of the World school district in the San Bernardino Mountains because of fires burning in heavy timber and steep terrain.

No structures were reported in immedite danger and the move was made as a precaution.

California Division of Forestry spokesman Dave Flohr said the major mountain blaze, called the "Bear Fire," was burning out of control two miles south of the Big Bear Lake dam and had consumed approximately 2,000 acres of brush.

The second fire was a flareup of a two-month old blaze in the Lytle Creek area. Forestry spokesmen said that the winds had rekindled the flames which had been burning in roots underground. It had seared 100 acres and according to Flohr, was "moving fast."

The division of forestry said a number of persons had been evacuated from the Reche Canyon area, 10 miles east of here, where two homes were burned in a third fire.

Another home was destroyed in a blaze south of Loma Linda, in San Bernardino County. It had burned over 1,000 acres.

A fifth fire was located in the Box Spring Mountain region, near the Riverside Raceway. It covered 1,800 acres and was threatening some structures in the area.

No injures were reported from any of the fire areas.

More News Next Week On Earhart

NEW YORK (UPI)—McGraw-Hill, publishers of the controversial book "Amelia Earhart Lives," said today they will have another news conference in Los Angeles Nov. 18 to reply to denials of the book's thesis.

The book was written by Joe Klaas and researched by retired U.S. Air Force Maj. Joseph Gervais. It contends that Mrs. Irene Bolam, a widow now living in retirement in New Jersey, is really Miss Earhart, who disappeared with copilot Fred Noonan in the Pacific in 1937.

File Suit On Civil Liberties

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two Negro policemen filed a federal court suit Thursday saying their civil rights had been infringed by the Oakland Police Department.

Officers Henry W. Myers of Union City and Donald Knox of Oakland said department regulations say they cannot wear Afro hair styles and that their superiors had ordered them not to make public statements without permission.

Their statements had been made during efforts to organize what they called a "viable black officers association."

The suit was filed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Marin Realtors Play Key Role

MARIN REALTORS' HOME — Present headquarters of the Marin County Board of Realtors was designed by architect Harold Stoner and opened in 1956. At first some space was leased to other business firms, but by 1964 the board needed more room and the building at 255 West End Avenue, San Rafael was remodeled under the direction of Edward Hageman. Facilities now include board offices, reception room, printing department and duplicating room, directors room and large library.

This year, too, marks the 50th anniversary of another Marin County organization — the Marin County Board of Realtors.

Now embracing 225 offices and more than 800 members, the Marin County Board of Realtors has played an important role in the growth of the county since the early days of the 20th century when Marin county was but a few communities of summer homes for San Franciscans.

Today realtors are among the most active citizens in the community in all areas — civic affairs, junior athletic programs, city projects, and in matters of county and statewide interest, the realtor takes, and has taken, an interest for the betterment of the entire community.

The board began in 1920 as the Marin County Real Estate Board. James Leach of San Anselmo, now in his 90s, is thought to have been its first president, though records are a bit sketchy. Robert Carey, now deceased, was also one of the first presidents, as was Thomas Minto, now and still a twice-a-week golfer at the Meadow Club.

It was Minto and his partner, Tom Kent, who, along with Leach and Carey, provided much of the spark for the first years of the organization.

"One of the first meetings was held in our office on Sir Francis Drake Blvd. in San Anselmo," recalls Minto. "We had about 14 people there. That was virtually all of the real estate people in the county. Dues were $1 a month, and we used it for stamps and incidentals. We met once a month, usually in a member's office, sometimes in one of the old-time hotels such as the Tamalpais and the Rafael. The Board barely kept itself together during the depression, and was virtually inactive. It was tough sledding for everyone, including the real estate industry. But, in 1935, we were re-organized under the guidance of U.S. Turley, and have been an important organization ever since.

"I remember the land where the present College of Marin is located. My partner and I had the listing on it, but the two of us decided that this parcel of land, seven acres with a home on it, should go for a junior college site. We were losing people from Marin county to other areas because of the lack of educational facilities.

"We were able to sell the idea to the school district — even though they didn't have the full amount the bank was asking. I agreed to go out and raise the rest of it so that the land could be used for a school.

Down through the years, the Board of Realtors has been active in many important projects. They were among the first to help engineer Joseph Strauss in his dream for the Golden Gate Bridge; they backed it every way they could.

The board was active in the location of Hamilton Air Force Base in Marin county. In 1946, it initiated the campaign to make it a state law that all real estate salesmen had to have two year's experience before they could apply for a broker's license. It is state law today, and realtors feel the public is much better off with that law.

In 1951, the board opened its first office, a 10-foot by 12-foot room in the Cheda Bldg. in San Rafael, and Dan Deedy was hired as Executive Manager, a post he still holds today. Soon it moved to larger quarters at 819 A Street and then, in 1956, into its own building at 255 West End Avenue in San Rafael off the Miracle Mile.

Today th realtor still doesn't have — in the parlance of the publicity man — "a good image." In days gone by, he was mistrusted; there were no codes of ethics; license laws were lax, enabling almost anyone to get a license; there were misfits in the industry.

"Even today," says 1970 Realtors' president W. Bruce Shafer of Sausalito, "everytime one of our members gets on a public body, it seems as though he is fair game for all sorts of criticism. But the record shows that the realtor is amoung the most consientious servants on public bodies, such as the Board of Supervisors, Planning Commission, etc., and renders fair decisions for the benefit of all the public. Sure, once in a while, someone gets selfish, but that's jority of realtors who serve on jority of Realtors who serve on public bodies do a fine job. It is too bad we are suspect. We should be no more suspect than anyone else in any type of business."

The record of the Marin County Board of Realtors shows many examples where the industry has provided outstanding civic service. Shafer points out that "almost all of our more than 800 members live and work in Marin, and participate wholeheartedly in community activities. This benefits the entire county economy — no commuters. And we are one of the largest employers in Marin — probably exceeded only by the county itself and the school district."

PRICES HAVE CHANGED

If there is any doubt about what has happened to Marin County property values in the last quarter-century, one has only to look at these old Realtors' listings which onece sold for a mere fraction of their market prices today.

Hardwood Floors In Kitchen? Yes!

Kitchens don't have to be ugly to be efficient, and one way to give a kitchen an aura of gracious living is to install a hardwood floor.

Until recently, the idea of an oak floor in a kitchen where all those spills could damage it and heavy traffic would cause it to show wear would have been unthinkable. But not any more: New moisture and scratch-resistant polyurethane finishes for oak floors solve the problem.

Congratulations

MARIN COUNTY
REALTORS

Happy Birthday, McBor,
You're a bonny, fine lad.
You'll mature—we all do,
'Tis a habit not bad.

You're just fifty today,
And we've passed our three score,
But we're proud of you, Son.
Here's a cheer for McBor!

'Twas in nineteen and ten
We first hung out our sign.
We've housed many since then
And we're still doing fine.

From cottage to castle
Real estate's a good game.
From ocean to mountain
F. H. Allen's the name!

FIRST MARIN REAL ESTATE CLAIM

As far as anyone knows the first written real estate instrument in Marin County was Sir Francis Drake's famous "Plate of Brass" said to have been posted on the coast in the 16th century. Drake claimed "the whole land" in the name of Queen Elizabeth I of England. Replica of the brass plaque was presented to the Marin County Board of Realtors by the late Capt. A. S. Oko of Inverness.

Time-Saving Tips For Prospective Buyers

BRUCE SHAFER
President, Marin County Board of Realtors

W. BRUCE SHAFER
"Consult an expert."

Your decision to buy a home represents planning for future happiness and security.

It may have been made because your family situation demands it, because you can afford it, or because—in your circumstancees — owning is less costly than renting.

Perhaps you want the seclusion a home provides.Like many others, you may like to redecorate, remodel, or garden on your own. Or it may simply be that you have always lived in your own home and are uncomfortable otherwise. Whatever your reason or reasons, the highway to home ownership may be traveled with ease and safety if you observe one of the key road signs resulting from the experiences of millions who have preceded you.

Q. How can I find the right home for myself and my family without looking at every house listed in the "for sale" columns in the newspaper?

A. In buying a home, as well as purchasing most merchandise, consult an expert. A professional in providing the right home is a Realtor, who can use this registered term as one who has qualified through education and experience to become a member of the local board of Realtors and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He is thus pledged to conduct his business affairs according to a strong, nationally-recognized code of ethics.

Take him into your confidence. He needs to know certain key facts in order to find you the proper home, so don't bristle with indignation, for example, when he may ask such personal questions as, "How much can you pay?"

Q. What other kinds of facts does the realtor need to know?

A. In attempting to help you find the right home, he will probably cover such points as:

1. The type of neighborhood into which you prefer to move.
2. The architectural style or styles of homes you prefer.
3. Your personal preferences in schools, churches, clubs, hobbies, and recreation.
4. Your financial situation — income, savings, and family obligations.
5. The size home you need — rooms, bedrooms, bathrooms — as a minimum to accommodate your family, the price bracket you have in mind, and the monthly payments you can comfortably assume.
6. The size home you prefer, for the comfort of your family, and the monthly payments you consider desirable, or those you consider the maximum.

The general rule of thumb is that the price of your home should not exceed two and one-half times the annual gross income, although this guide can be considerably affected by your other obligations.

These building permit figures for San Rafael were considered impressive in the middle 1920s, when the average total construction values were $527,000 for an entire year. By comparison, San Rafael total permit values for the first nine months of 1970 averaged $572,895 per month.

Central Vacuum Cleaning System

Can today's homemaker find happiness wiht a central vacuum cleaning system — or is the cost out of sight?

An average installation, in a six- or seven-room house, would now cost from 500 to 600 dollars. Not inexpensive, certainly, but still within dream - come - true range.

A built-in central vac can be permanently installed in older — as well as new — homes. Power unit, in basement or garage, connects by tubing to wall receptacles in various rooms.

To vacuum, the homemaker plugs a lightweight hose into the wall receptacle.

A little word of but four letters--but one of great significance.

To the fortunate buyers it means satisfaction and profit. To those who saw these properties and realised the bargains they represented but could not "make up their minds", it means disappointment. To the wise man this little word is a sign of warnir a definite proof that conditions are improving and the days of remarkable opportunities growi less. We still have some outstanding bargains, but they are growing fewer and fewer.

TRUE THEN — TRUE NOW

Early real estate advertising copy stressed forthcoming price increases and some buyers held back even then. The format of today's ads may have changed — but the message contained in the last line above is still the same.

Realtors In Battle To Save Land

Realtors of America have risen to the challenge to improve the total environment of the nation in a broad-based program called Make America Better, Dean Weibel, chairman of the Make America Better Committee of the Marin County Board of Realtors, said recently.

Weibel pointed out that hundreds of the 1,570 boards of realtors in the 50 states have activated projects designed to help solve the problems of America's cities and towns. Many more are in the planning state.

Fighting pollution — air, water, and noise — is the newest area in which the National Association of Real Estate Boards is becoming involved in its Make America Better program.

Anti-crime drives focused on lighting the night as one method of thwarting the criminal have been conducted by hundreds of the boards of realtors. In New Jersey, for example, 26 of the boards are combining in a crime-fight campaign which will reach 80 per cent of the population in the state.

"In Charlotte, North Carolina, the board's 'Light the Night' campaign was so successful and impressive that a local television station made a motion picture of it," said Weibel. "Similar anti-crime programs in Long Island, New York; Oakland, California; Lubbock, Texas; Hayward, California; and other communities are credited with reducing the crime rate.

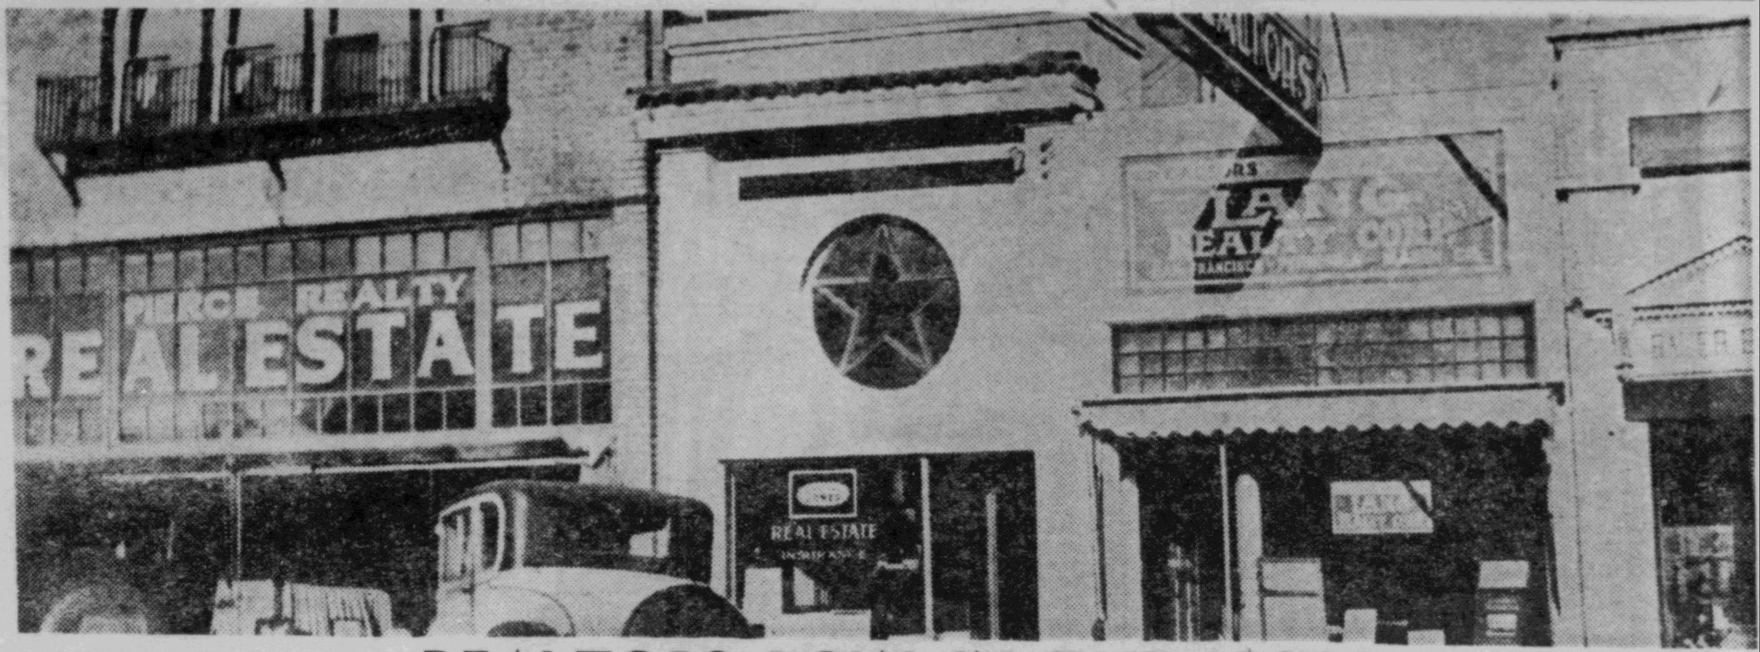
"Positive action as part of a six-objective program is the secret of the success of the Make America Better program," he said. "In our six objectives we have 43 proposals for action. This is not just talk, or theory, our boards are doing something to solve our nation's problems.

"There are many activities undertaken by boards of realtors in our Make America Better program. The program is growing to major proportions. Part of this is the result of the excellent cooperation we are receiving from municipalities, civic organizations, the news media, utilities companies, and individuals. We invite cooperation, since this is a job for every concerned American."

Excess Humidity Can Be Problem

The one cause of window condensation is excessive humidity, and it's cured by opening windows to admit fresh dry air after bathing, washing or drying clothes.

If excess moisture persists, the following key points should be checked: roof and walls for water seepage; attic for ventilation; crawl spaces for ventilation and vapor barrier; and rainware for leaks. Installation of aluminum storm windows will also reduce condensation.



REALTORS ROW IN THE 1930S

At one time San Anselmo and Fairfax together had as many real esttae offices as San Rafael. In San Anselmo they were grouped along the east side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, opposite the Northwestern Railroad station. Besides those shown, other Realtors in the "lineup" included Frnak Howard Allen, Leach Realty, Robert Carey, August Lang and Kent and Minto.

Date and location of this board meeting has not been determined but it had far fewer members in attendance than the regular breakfast meeting that takes place each Tuesday morning at Corte Madera Lions Club.

Realtors Back Plans For Trades Training

Vocational education, for years the forgotten stepchild in America's school system, is getting more attention nowadays, partly as a result of a program sponsored by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Technical and vocational training is beginning to get the emphasis it deserves. A number of boards of realtors among the 1,570 in the national association have organized projects designed to help young people learn trades, particularly in the building trades.

Vocational education has been made one of the focal points in the 43-point "Make America Better" program of realtors because of the belated recognition by educators and national leaders that the present system is just not working. Many students, unsuited for academic studies, demonstrate this lack of interest by dropping out of school, perhaps to the welfare and juvenile delinquency probing with their hands.

Skilled labor is needed in our society. It is in short supply, and will become even more so when restrictions are lifted on the pent-up housing demands. More important, emphasis on technical and vocational training literally will save the lives of young people who might otherwise wind up in an endless cycle of handouts and welfare.

Many students from grammar school through college have little interest or little use for what constitutes a college degree, yet they might have the capacity to develop unusual skills in worklems of the nation.

MARIN COUNTY BOARD OF REALTORS

Vacancy Rate Only 1.5 Pct. In Marin

Marin County has an overall vacancy level in apartment housing of only 1.5 per cent.

The highest vacancy rates occurs in the Belvedere-Tiburon Strawberry area — 5.2 per cent, the lowest in San Anselmo, where no vacancies at all were reported.

Vacancies in Santa Venetia, Marinwood and Terra Linda are rated at 1.7 per cent; Fairfax 1.5 per cent; Novato-Ignacio 1.2 per cent; Ross-Kentfield-Greenbrae 1 per cent; Larkspur-Corte Madera .9 per cent; San Rafael .6 per cent; Sausalito .5 per cent; and Mill Valley-Tamalpais .4 per cent.

These are findings of a survey conducted last May and June by the Real Estate Research Council of California, an affiliate of the Bay Area Council. Multiple housing studied for the report included structures and complexes of four or more units and it is estimated that approximately 93 per cent coverage was achieved. The survey was applied to 9,727 apartments, out of a county total estimated at 10,488 apartments.

The council's report also showed that vacancies were highest in apartments having three or more bedrooms (2 per cent), lowest in studio apartments (0.9 per cent). One and two bedroom units showed 1 and 1.8 per cent vacancies respectively.

Of all apartments surveyed, 93.5 per cent were unfurnished. Children were found to be acceptable in 36.9 per cent of all units; pets in 19.4 per cent of the units. In 88 per cent of the apartments offstreet parking was included in the rental.

Realtors See Need For Better Financing

The housing crunch is easing, but its presence has revealed weaknesses in real estate financing that should be fixed.

"It has become apparent," he said, "that some of our financing tools need to be streamlined and guidelines applied to some of them to prevent abuse."

Specifically he points to savings and loan associations as one area where abuses occur, and notes that the association has proposed to the California Savings and Loan League that it develop a voluntary code of fair practices which would put limits on prepayment penalties, assumption fees and late charges.

"We need a uniform note and deed of trust for conventional mortgages so they can be bought and sold like securities," he said. He believes a good guide could be the one worked out by the Federal National Mortgage Association under its new authority to establish a secondary market in them as well as FHA and VA mortgages, already uniform.

He suggests as new sources of financing: Tax exempt certificates of deposit for mortgage purposes; state treasure debentures that can be sold to pension funds, puting the proceeds into a secondary mortgage market; lengthening FHA mortgage amortization schedules beyond the present 30 years to allow more potential buyers to qualify,

WEEKLY HOMES INSPETCION — One morning each week a "CAMO Tour" is held by Multiple Listing Service. Interested Realtors and their salesmen inspect new listings, make their own notes about the properties and give their individual opinions as to their market values.

Multiple Listing Service Is Boon To Marin Realtors

Multiple listing, considered the sales backbone of organized real estate for seller, purchaser, and broker, has a modern history in Marin County that actually dates back only 20 years.

The first multiple listing Service started in 1936 with approximately 25-30 members. But the organization did not have enough vigor or zip, soon was somewhat ineffective, and died.

In 1949, the late Archie Culpepper and his wife, Mabel, attended an all-day realtors' meeting in southern California on the subject of multiple listing. Upon their return to Marin County, the late Maynard Redmond was appointed temporary chairman of the service, and the Multiple Listing Board, as differentiated from the Real Estate Board, was revived on April 1.

Listings were distributed by a stenographic service; breakfast meetings were held, and the brokers chartered a bus afte each meeting to visit homes that were newly listed.

Two years later, the Marin County Real Estate Board and the Multiple Listing Board merged, and the modern-da history of multiple listing began.

Multiple listing sales totalled $3,000,000 during the first year there were 70 members. Fro that beginning, the service ha grown to sales of more tha $85,000,000 in 1969.

Today it is customary fo sales to total more than $8, 000,000 per month in Mari County. Since 1951, sales hav totalled more than $756,000,000.

Multiple listing is now a serv ice of tremendous benefit t everyone concerned in orga ized real estate — to the sel er, the buyer and the broker according to W. Bruce Shafe 1970 Marin County Board Realtors' president.

Real Estate Business Will See Revolutionary Changes

"The real estate broker of tomorrow will be required to be more technically competent in the fields of economics and forecasting, financial analysis, probability theory, and computer application than his counterpart of today," Donald Beacock, vice-president elect and chairman of the Long Range Planning Committee of the Marin County Board of Realtors, said recently.

"Great breakthroughs in communication and data handling are already changing the real estate business. All phases of our industry, brokerage, management, and appraisal will be undergoing tremendous changes as will related fields such as construction, financing, and title work," he added.

"Computerization will do more to change the marketing activities of real estate than any other single action in the history of organized real estate, and computer access will be as important to us in the future as our telephone is today."

He quoted a 1967 article in Business Week entitled, Homebuilding, Happy Future. . . "The demand will nearly double in the next decade, and the industry is now remodeling itself to meet the challenge."

Said Beacock: "Today, nearly four years later, 75 per cent of our population cannot afford the housing we are producing, and the remaining 25 per cent has difficulty obtaining the necessary financing to purchase what we have produced. Our housing needs and our population trends are changing, and the industry must be flexible enough to move with the change. Rapid changes will be sparked by new housing technology and material, practical application of computer technology, and new concepts.

"On the occasion of the Marin County Board of Realtors' 50th birthday, we must enter this new era with the knowledge that the past 50 years must be considered so that we may effectively plan for the next 50 years. Our industry's future objectives should be to increase even more our professional standards, to promote and protect real property ownership, to held find constructive solutions to the problems of our communities, and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness with which the industry serves the public."

Realtors' Home On Miracle Mile

A rambling one-story building at 255 West End Avenue, San Rafael, overlooking the Miracle Mile, is the home of the Marin County Board of Realtors:

A staff of nine persons headed by executive manager Daniel F. Deedy works here. Their responsibilities are principally to local board members and their relations with the public — but their services go beyond this. The office furnishes speakers on salesmanship to schools; the building is frequented by real estate students using the library — and as a place to call or visit and ask questions about real estate.

"It isn't entirely our idea," said Deedy, "but we also seem to function as an unofficial Chamber of Commerce, giving out weather reports, industrial information and answering inquiries often unrelated to real estate. We get mail from all over the United States that we refer to Chambers of Commerce and the proper agencies. The public often thinks of our building as an official state building — which it is not. And people think of it as a landmark — which is quite flattering."

Here is a sampling of some of the questions answered every month:

"I am doing research. How many sales did you have in 1890?"

"How do I go about getting back my deposit on a house?"

"Do you have maps of Marin County? Of San Rafael?"

"Where is the unemployment bureau?"

"Is hitch-hiking against the law in Marin County?"

"I am being evicted. How much notice is my landlord supposed to give?"

"I am moving to Marin County. Are your schools having racial problems?"

"Will you watch my dog while I go to the rest home next door?"

BOARD PRESENTS TREE

Home Workshop Can Prove Rewarding

Working with the hands can be a relaxing and rewarding hobby. Countless young family men make this discovery every year, a leading home improvement consultant observes. They find setting up a home workshop or hobby area to be an economical approach to home maintenance and also rewarding in terms of personal satisfaction.

Workshops set up by these budding handymen can range from simple to complex, and the location can be basement, porch, garage or utility room.

In planning the workbench and its location, the young handyman should consider not only the bench but equipment, electrical power and lighting outlets.

CIVIC MATTERS

Realtors' Contributions Make Long List For Year

The Marin County Board of Realtors claims the following accomplishments and stands on civic matters during 1969:

It recommended to the Marin-County Board of Supervisors that the selection of possible routes of Highway 17 to the Point Reyes National Seashore be narrowed from 10 to two and given high priority.

It recommended that the life of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission be extended.

It urged appropriation of sufficient funds to complete the acquisition of private lands within the authorized boundaries of the Point Reyes National Seashore.

After recommending in 1968 that McNear's Beach be acquired by Marin County it later recommended that it be named Ada Fusselman Bayfront Park in honor of the board's first recipient of its Man of the Year award.

It asked the Marin County Planning Commission to adopt a minimum two-week period between the time a staff-originated policy recommendation or new ordinance comes out and when it is acted upon by the commission to allow time for citizen study.

It urged the Marin County Board of Spervisors and the California State Highway Commission to reactivate studies immediately on the relocation of State Highway 1.

It contributed more than $3,000 to 27 different and worthy Marin County organizations.

It sponsored an essay contest in Marin County high schools on the merits of private ownership of real property.

It conducted an anti-litter campaign.

It conducted a voter registration drive.

Numerous Realtor members served as teachers in night schools and the College of Marin.

Members served on the Marin County Board of Supervisors, as head of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce and the Boyd Junior Museum and with other groups.

Air Conditioning Filters Need Cleaning

The filters in your central air-conditioning system are traps for the dirt and pollen that otherwise would settle in your home, and they should be cleaned or changed frequently, preferably three or four times a year.

If you have "permanent" mechanical filters, cleaning them is easier than remembering to do it. They are simple to remove, and may be washed in the laundry tubs or hosed off outdoors.

After washing they should be treated with a viscous spray that adds to their ability to remove particulate matter.

Disposable filters cost less that a dollar at hardware stores and in many groceries and are easily replaced.

These mechanical filters will collect a great deal of the airborne dust and pollen in the air in almost every home.

Intern Program Termed Success

A unique 1970 "summer intern" program, a pilot program designed to show and interest career-minded college students in the real estate field, has been pronounced a "huge success" by W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors.

The Marin County program, said to be the largest of any of the programs of its type in the state, included six interns. Said Shafer, a southern Marin realtor: "Of the six interns, three are definitely going into the field of real estate, and the others are interested in entering the industry at a later date.

"The Marin County Board of Realtors is most pleased with this program, and plans to proceed with it on a larger scale in 1971. This year we wanted to walk before we ran; next year, we will run. Interesting young people in productive careers, whether it be real estate or any other industry or field, are very important, particularly in these times."

The six interns were Stan Carter, a 25-year-old Santa Rosan, a recent graduate of Sonoma State College; Larry Kay, a Yale student who is planning on transferring to UCLA; Kevin Madera of San Rafael; Mrs. Tommie Scott of Marin City; Frank Silva of Corte Madera; and John Thomas of San Anselmo.

The participating realtors were Frank Howard Allen, Mill Valley; Earle and Solveson, Corte Madera; Gallagher-Sturiale, San Anselmo; Stephen Kramer, San Rafael; Lucas Valley Properties, San Rafael; Robert Roumiguiere, Inc., San Rafael; and Stewart Associates, Corte Madera.

The three definitely committed to entering the field are Frank Silva and Larry Kay, both are in their 20s and plan to take their real estate examinations shortly; and Mrs. Tommie Scott, who returns to the College of Marin for another year's study before taking her examination.

Probably the most unusual summer real estate intern was Mrs. Tommie Scott, a 55-year-old black mother of six who was studying for a teacher's degree at the College of Marin until this summer.

Mrs. Scott, a Marin county resident for 15 years, and a mother of six children (age 6 to 24), is "very excited" about her new future. "Getting into this field was an abrupt about-face for me," she said. "I had been studying to become a teacher when I heard of the real estate internship, and I applied.

"After 10 weeks of working in the field — doing such things as being involved in sales meetings, going on house tours, typing, mailing, spending half-days at the Recorders' Office, at the Assessors' Office, savings and loan firms, title companies, Board of Realtors' meetings, just plain answering the phone, and other projects, I have decided that the real estate field is for me.

"I think there are great opportunities in it, and I am looking forward very eagerly to finishing up my 15 additional credits at the College of Marin, and then taking my real estate examination next June. I've worked in the restaurant industry in the midwest, owned a small variety store there, but I think my new career in real estate is going to open up wide horizons."

Kevin Madera is going to the University of San Francisco, but has shown interest in pursuing real estate at a later date. Stan Carter also has shown interest in the field for the future, while John Thomas has already accepted a position with a contracting firm, a field allied to real estate.

Persons interested in the summer intern program for the future may contact the Marin County Board of Realtors, 225 West End Avenue, San Rafael.

Wide Range Of Services In Real Estate Business

The service of the realtor in fulfilling the need of the home seeker and seller too often overshadows his other important roles in the whole spectrum of the real estate field, according to W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors, which is now celebrating its 50th anniversary.

"The expansion and increasing complexity continually developing in industry and commerce point up the mushrooming need for the expertise of the realtor in ALL real estate matters, not only industry, but government is taking advantage of the realtor's professional services," Shafer said.

"For example, our growing network of interstate highways and the continuing urban renewal programs require the services of appraisers to estimate the value of properties taken under eminent domain. As part of this activity, the appraiser, who is usually a realtor, in many cases appears as an expert witness for either the government or the property owner in court cases arising out of condemnation proceedings.

"Housing for low-and moderate-income families is a current and legitimate concern of government and society to assure that this type of housing is properly maintained and administered, there is growing use of professional property managers in each development, many of them realtors. These professionals in the management function assure that both private developers' and public investment is protected and that tenants needs are dealt with fairly.

Today's rapid growth of industry almost requires that large companies maintain a real estate department. For some, however, because of size, budget, and the like, this may be impractical. Both categories, however, recognize the need of outside impartial advice, as do educational and other institutions, banks, and almost all types of business. Members of the newest branch of real estate specialization — counseling — serve as advisors in property acquisition, disposal, and use, much as a lawyer counsels in matters of law. Retained on a fee, retainer, or per diem basis, the counselor has no direct interest in the outcome of a given transaction.

"Any discussion of corporations and their need for real estate for expansion or transfer of operations, brings to mind the large number of brokers who specialize in the sale or lease of commercial property. These realtors, by virtue of their broad experience in the wisest and best uses of store, shopping center, and office structures, and through their exposure to and participation in educational programs geared to their particular specialty, are able to best handle any transaction involving business properties. They provide a unique service to today's sophisticated businessman.

"A relatively new phenomenon in business property is the industrial park, in which light manufacturing and warehousing facilities are provided for an area, which, otherwise, would have no industry to provide jobs and a broadened tax base. Many of these have been developed through Realtors who specialize in industrial property, an area which gained prominence during and immediately after World War II. The ingenuity of these men and women has brought industrialization and its many benefits to many of the medium-sized and smaller communities of our country."

Air-Conditioning Cost

The seasonal cost of operating a central air-conditioning system is surprisingly low today — much less than the outlay involved in a single three-day weekend away from home. One estimate averages the seasonal cooling expense for a normal three-bedroom home at about $71.

Hazards At Home Worse Than Highway Risks

What's a potentially greater safety risk than traveling the highways on nice sunny weekends? It isn't mountain climbing or even sky diving.

The truth of the matter is that staying at home can be dangerous. The home injury rate in one recent year was doubled that for people injured in auto accidents. And home falls and fires claimed more than 28,000 lives.

The home may be crying for major home improvements or renovations. Putting off necessary repairs can be hazardous; faulty wiring, a leaking roof, ancient water pipes can cause costly damage if ignored.

In most cases a small investment for repairs can prevent a good number of hofe mishaps. And the homeowner who is short on cash for extensive, but necessary, repairs can get a reasonably-priced home improvement or personal loan.

Safety Tour

Even in today's tight money situation, homeowners have found little or no difficulty getting money from full service banks for home improvements.

A safety tour of the home is an easy weekend chore for the entire family. Start by searching out and repairing obvious hazards such as worn or curled carpeting which can cause serious falls.

Many small repairs are easy to handle. Doors with loose hinges, knobs that don't work, cabinet doors that stick, cracked window panes — all are jobs which can be done inexpensively.

And those small repairs are important. A dripping pipe in the kitchen, bath or basement can result in a slippery puddle. Staircases should have no weak or broken steps and sturdy handrails are a must.

Ideally each room should have a window large enough to use as an emergency exit and the basement should have a door to the outside as well as at least one large window.

Bedroom doors should close tightly so that, in case of fire, smoke and flames can be kept to a minimum.

If the house lacks enough exits, installation of larger windows and extra doorways should be looked upon as an investment in family safety rather than an expensive project for a time when you have ready cash.

Another area for careful inspection is the kitchen. How many new appliances have been installed without added electrical capacity

Check Wiring

Let a qualified electrician inspect and make any necessary additions or repairs to circuits and wiring. Such an inspection is especially important where a family has been living in a home for some time and has acquired a great number of large and small appliances.

For really big plans in mind such as modernizing the kitchen or bath, a bank home improvement loan may be the answer.

If only a small amount is needed, the bank will lend that, too. A personal loan, for instance, could cover the costs of a rewiring job, new pipes or a number of small fix-ups throughout the house.

Convert Bar Into Compact Party Center

If the party's at your house this New Year's Eve, remember that simply propping bottles of cheer and mixer, an ice bucket and a few glasses atop your home bar won't make hosting any less frantic.

However, there is a way to make party-giving less work and more fun, no matter if it's a gala year-end fete or an informal Saturday night gathering of friends: convert your bar into a compact refreshment center.

The ingredients you need are a small sink, fitted with a high, fountain-type faucet, a mini-refrigerator and behind-the bar-storage cabinets. The sink will eliminate the need to keep running to and from the kitchen every time a pitcher has to be filled with water or a glass rinsed; the mini-refrigerator will give you a place to keep ice, frozen party delights and beverages, and the cabinets can be used for convenient storage of glasses, plates and other party things.

Cool House Becoming Staple Item

Most homeowners buy central air conditioning simply to stay cool and comfortable during the summer. But it's also a plain dollars and cents fact that air conditioning is about as good a home improvement investment as can be made. The point is that central air conditioning helps protect the value of your home. It will make it more saleable and much of the cost of the system will be returned to you in the form of a higher sales price.

A survey conducted by the U. S. Savings and Loan League among 331 member firms in 43 states disclosed that two-thirds of these institutions "strongly recommended" that builders include central cooling in new construction.

Air conditioning, according to 31 per cent of those surveyed, will become a standard feature in American homes by 1972 in homes priced over $20,000 and by 1977 in homes selling for less than $20,000.

Garbage Can Is A Key To Health

Something as commonplace as a garbage can is easy to take for granted, but it's a mistake to do so, city health officials warn.

Actually, a sturdy, well-canstructed refuse container is one of the most important geys to your family's health and well-being.

In addition to removing a possible source of rodents, flies, and vermin, galvanized steel garbage cans of the type available today will prevent unpleasant odors from getting into the air.

Some of the things to look for when buying new garbage cans or replacing old ones are close-fitting covers, heavy enough construction to keep them from blowing over in the wind, sufficient capacity to meet your needs, and side handles for easy carrying and unloading.

One thing you don't have to be concerned about on your shopping trip is whether the can will resist rust and corrosion. If it is a hot-dipped galvanized steel can, this protection has been built in with a coating of zinc.

Health officers point out the wisdom of using two cans in many cases to avoid overloading. This makes it easier to move the cans and also prevents possible "springing of the cover.

It's a good idea to hose out your garbage cans at regular itnervals to prevent odors. Many homeowners stencil their house numbers on cans and covers to avoid accidental loss or theft.

FHA Great Boon To Home, Building Field

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Department of Housing and Urban Development has inherited a $73 billion investment.

A look at where this money has come from and what it has bought shows that the government is much deeper in the business of supporting private housing than it is in building public housing or clearing slums.

About $55 billion—more than two-thirds of the investment—represents money that private citizens have put up to purchase their own homes. The government comes into the picture through the Federal Housing Administration only by insuring the mortgages.

Since its beginning in 1934, FHA mortgage insurance has been a great boon to the private home building industry.

The Public Housing Administration — another agency absorbed by the department — helps local housing authorities borrow the money to build housing for poor people. FHA then makes annual contributions to keep the rents at levels the low-income tenants can afford.

So far, about 725,000 units of low-rent public housing have been built with federal aid. The total cost: $7.2 billion.

The Urban Renewal Administration lends or gives money to local communities to clear slums. URA is back of 1,500 projects at a total cost of $2.7 billion.

Anti-Noise Begins At Home

The most effective anti-noise campaign you can wage starts in your own home. And the best defense is built-in sound control.

Noise invades a home in two ways: by transmission (as when voices carry from one room to another, and traffic sounds come through windows and doors), and by reverberation (caused when interior sounds bounce, echo-like, off walls, ceilings, and floors). To control noise in a room, it is necessary to block transmission of sounds from outside sources and to absorb sounds that originate in a room.

When you're remodeling is a good time to consider the elimination or reduction of noise in the house. Then you can select building materials with an ear to their sound-controlling properties. Here are the main areas where you can build in noise-control:

Windows and glass doors — Insulating glass or storm sash transmits less sound through windows than single-glazing, because noise must pass through double panes of glass. Closed windows can also reduce transmission of street noises into air conditioned homes during the summer.

Interior walls — Paneling can reduce noise while beautifying walls. When installed over a drywall or plaster partition, or on both sides of an insulated cavity wall, pre-finished hardboard panels are a sound deadener. They are also effective in "child-proofing" a room, since they resist dents, mars and scuffs, and can be kept clean with an occasional damp-wiping.

Ceilings — There are a number of good acoustical ceiling tiles on the market that effectively absorb sound and keep it from traveling to other parts of the house.

U.S. Homeowners Growing Rapidly

Nearly seven out of every 10 American families own their own homes — a record equalled by few, if any, other nations in the world — and newly popular forms of ownership, coupled with the almost universal desire, will increase the percentage in the future, according to W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors.

As examples of the emerging ownership forms, Shafer cited condominium and cooperative buildings, which are common in major metropolitan areas, and are being developed in many smaller cities.

Under these plans, occupants either own their own apartment (condominium) or own shares in the corporation which owns the building in which they live (cooperative). These two plans provide a form of ownership for those who prefer apartment living.

Many who lease their year-around place of residence own a second or vacation home; thus, they are landowners, also.

"Despite this expansion of, and desire for, real property, periodic attacks are launched on the concept of home ownership by those with varying and often hidden reasons. There are some who argue that single-family homes take too much space; that we must discourage or do away with home ownership," Shafer commented.

"Certainly, in some major urban centers there is a criticism of urban sprawl, but the idea that we are running out of land is not supported by the figures. At present, about 70 per cent of our population lives on only 3 per cent of the land. Obviously, there is still ample room for single-family home ownership," he declared, "although in some cases obvious problems of utilities, transportation, and the like must and will be solved."

Shafer observed also that home ownership is almost always financially superior to leasing.

"But more important to many is the fact that they are able to express themselves in decorating and landscaping; they are able to keep pets, entertain, and in general, decide how to live without consulting the resident manager or worry about the neighbors upstairs," he said.

The Great Outdoors Begins At Doorstep To Your Patio

Want to bridge the generation gap within your family? Then move out into the great outdoors. You don't have to go far — the gap begins to shrink right at the doorstep to your patio, where the great outdoors begins. So give your family a new room — outdoors.

Patio size, decor and degree of elegance are up to you and your pocketbook. Just remember that an outdoor family room can be fun whether it's a tiny, geranium-bordered back yard furnished with brightly painted second-hand furniture or a lavish, landscaped, canopies compex.

Most important is the feeling of freedom and friendship the whole family experiences the moment they move outdoors together. That's one reason homes with patios sell faster and bring better prices.

You can get more use from your pool and patio area if you equip it with outdoor gas appliance — a pool heater, "people heaters," grills and lights. A thermostatically controlled gas pool heater, for example, can increase useful pool time as much as 50 percent.

Add gas infra-red heaters on the patio and your outdoor living season can be extended by two or three months. In some areas of the country they'll make it usuable the year 'round.

When you climb out of a heated pool and towel off in the warmth of a gas patio heater, you'll never realize there's an autumn chill in the air. Like the sun, gas infra-red heaters, either portable or permanently mounted, can make a generous section of your patio or pool-side cozy after the sun goes down, and for months before and after the days are warmed by the sun.

With an outdoor gas grill, open-air meals can be fun without fuss, and they get Mother out of the kitchen during nice weather. The permanent briquettes in gas grills transform heat from the flame into a radiant glow that gives food a char-broiled flavor. Gas heat is instant and easy to control, and clean-up is minimal.

To light up your outdoor suppers and make life in the open air as attractive as it is comfortable, install gas lighting on the patio and around the pool.

EARLY REAL ESTATE OFFICE

In the early part of the century, a real estate broker's principal listings were usually displayed prominently both inside and outside his office. The Rocca Bros. office shown here was first opened in San Anselmo in 1908 and was moved in 1912 to Fairfax, where a street named after the owners still survives today.

Nationwide Construction To Advance 10 Per Cent

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Nationwide construction will advance nearly 10 per cent in 1971, to $74.35 billion, with housing in the lead by a wide margin, according to the annual forecast of construction markets recently released by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

Total construction contracts for 1970, with eight-months figures already tabulated, will reach $68.25 billion.

This picture of the 1971 construction industry emerged in the 1971 F. W. Dodge Construction Outlook presented by George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of McGraw-Hill at the company's 31st Building Products Executives Conference.

Residential building is expected to rise 21 per cent in 1971, to $30.05 billion, according to Christie, with apartment construction carrying the largest share of the gain. Non-residential contracts are expected to increase 2 per cent, to $25.83 billion, and non-building construction (road, utilities, sewers, etc.) are also expected to show a 2 per cent rise, to $18.48 billion. Greatest overall gains should occur in the south, with an estimated rise of 11 per cent, followed by the west with 9 per cent, the northeast with 8 per cent, and the midwest with 7 per cent.

Christie said it has taken a half year of monetary expansion and deficit budgeting to spark the business recovery that is now underway.

Although a temporary sag in business capital spending is expected in 1971, it will be more than offset by consumer spending and the pent-up demand for housing.

"Next year's economic environment will be an extension and development of the recovery that is now still in its formative stage," he declared.

All the available indicators — early investment plans, capital appropriations, profit prospects —point to a fairly brief period of reduced sending for business related construction and a total for the year of approximately the same dollar amount as in 1970.

The mix of building types will change, Christie observed, reflecting the special needs of the business sector in 1971's different economic environment. He expects an upturn in contracts for industrial construction in the spring of 1971 — one year after its decline. Next year's value is estimated at 5 per cent less than 1970's $4 billion.

The recovery of the housing market, longest depressed of all the construction markets, began in 1970 with single-family building where newly available money could be put to work fastest. The upswing will carry into 1971, and beyond.

"Under the pressure of a large backlog of demand, gains should come rapidly — on the strength of the change in credit conditions alone, housing starts — already on the upswing — should be averaging close to 1.7 million units by the middle of next year," Christie stated. Continued expansion will depend on federal support through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The McGraw-Hill economist said there is a good chance for an increase in apartment construction. For 1971 he anticipates an increase in one-and two-family units to 925,000 units from this year's 810,000, and an increase in apartment units to 750,000 from 615,000 in 1970.

Real Estate Computer Bank

Investors in commercial, industrial and multi-family residential property have a new listing service blossoming in the Bay Area. Operated by 10 boards of realtors, it creates a central, computerized bank of properties for sale or exchange.

Any subscribing member of those real estate boards participating may phone the computer and learn in seconds what properties are available to fit a client's needs.

The operation, under contract to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is already providing residential multiple listing services nationwide to the local boards. It also provides an instant investment analysis to subscribing realtors, who set data questions in a portable phone cradle. The instrument relays them over any phone into the computer and receives answers back in seconds.

As of Sept. 1, there were 912 cooperating brokerage offices listing 1669 properties with a total value of $164,312,730 among the 10 boards.

Those participating are the Berkeley, Oakland, Marin County, Southern Alameda County, Contra Costa County, West Contra Costa, and Eastern Contra Costa boards of realtors, and the San Francisco, San Jose and Palo Alto real estate boards.

The Redwood City-San Carlos-Belmont Board of Realtors and the San Mateo-Burlingame Board of Realtors are also joining the group, known as the Industrial, Commercial and Exchange Multiple of Northern California. It is also developing a book of listings to be published weekly and will have detailed information in standard form, a computerized index, and photographs of each property.

The Northern California operation had its beginning in the Palo Alto Board of Realtors in 1966, when it began a multiple listing service for industrial and commercial property. It expanded the service through cooperation with most of the surrounding boards, late that year becoming known as the Peninsula Industrial ICM (Industrial Commercial Multiple).

A similar MLS was begun by the San Jose Real Estate Board at about the same time. The two arranged an open reciprocal agreement in early 1969 to cooperate in finding buyers for each other's listings.

Another blossomed among six boards in the East Bay area using the same concept under the name Bay Area Industrial Realtors Service (BAIRS). Others were begun by the San Francisco and Marin County boards.

Problem Room? Bay Window May Be Answer

A modern bay window often is the right choice to spark a problem room. It can help dispel the cramped feeling of a small room, make a large room seem brighter and make an attractive outdoor scene seem part of the room.

Adding a bay window needn't be an expensive custom alteration, since a variety of factory-made wood units in durable ponderosa pine are available. They are precision-made and ready to be installed with a minimum of labor.

Since a bay window projects from the house, it also can serve to break the line of an uninteresting wall — both inside and outside. In addition, it adds usable space when combined with a window seat, which opens for storage.

THE END OF THE RAINBOW IS HERE

Officer Leroy White, a California Highway patrolman from Petaluma, ogles a pot of gold left at the end of the rainbow. It has always been assumed that the leprechaun's pot was just a legend, but Officer White found it at the end of Marin's resident rainbow. The leprechaun had the last laugh, however, as the pot of gold was only a cooking pot loaded with gold-painted rocks left last night near one of the rainbows painted by the Division of Highways on the Waldo Grade tunnels.

Details On Nixon Talk With Soviet

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon welcomed President-elect Luis Echeverria of Mexico to the White House today for a meeting aimed at building "a personal relationship."

Echeverria was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Maria Ester. President and Mrs. Nixon greeted them on the White House steps and ushered them inside for a private luncheon followed by talks between the American and Mexican leaders.

The greeting was brief and informal.

The White House stressed that Echeverria's visit was intended mostly to "allow them to get acquainted and build a personal relationship."

Nixon returned late Thursday from a quick trip to Paris to attend memorial services for Gen. Charles de Gaulle. While there Nixon chatted briefly with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny and conferred for 41 minutes with French President Georges Pompidou at the Elysee Palace.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon exchanged "pleasantries" with Podgorny as the two leaders mingled with other guests in the gold and blue Elysee salon.

They edged toward each other and shook hands, and Nixon asked Podgorny where

Downtown Mill Valley Restaurant Loses Out

By GEORGE NEVIN

The Mill Valley City Council, after very brief discussion, last night turned down a controversial plan for a restaurant-bar in downtown Mill Valley.

Discussion wasn't needed, however, since numerous reasons against the 400-seat facility had been brought up by members of a capacity audience during a two-hour public hearing.

The decision came on a 4-0 vote to uphold an appeal filed by persons objecting to the city planning commission's issuance of a use permit for the restaurant.

Although many points were raised against the application of Michael Lerner and Philip Needleman by the crowd of about 350 who filled the auditorium at Park School, one allegation was repeated many times and echoed by councilmen —the restaurant would be out of character with the tranquil atmosphere of Mill Valley.

Councilman Robert H. Andresen abstained from discussion and voting, explaining that his law partner, Lawrence A. Meyer, at one time represented Lerner and Needleman.

The appeal before the city council was filed after the planning commission, by a 4-2 vote on Oct. 13, granted the use permit.

Attorney Robert E. Capron explained the appeal on behalf of four clients: Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Rodman, Normand Black and Charles W. Murney.

Capron cited three main issues: the zoning ordinance requires 160 off-street parking spaces, but the applicants provide for only 60; the din of rock bands and noisy cars would disturb nearby residents, and the restaurant would be "out of character with the residential village atmosphere of Mill Valley." His remarks were applauded for about 30 seconds by the partisan crowd before Mayor George E. Wickham pounded his gavel for silence.

At Wickham's request, each speaker against the restaurant was followed by one for it, although midway through the hearing speakers for the applicants ran out and only those against it remained.

Attorney Arnold M. Greenberg, of 81 Coronet Avenue, contended that no one ever said the restaurant would feature continual loud rock music, and in fact it would not.

"The use permit can be revoked; it has strings attached," he said. "If the restaurant operates to the deteriment of the community, the permit can be pulled back."

Conditions put on the permit by the planning commission included: a stipulation that the building be soundproofoed so that noise would not intrude on the neighborhood; hiring of private policemen; valet parking for 60 cars; operations to cease at 2 a.m., and a maximum capacity of 400 persons.

"I believe the applicants want a chance to show they can be an asset to the community," Greenberg said.

He was followed by Rod-

U.S. Opposes Red China's Admission

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— The United States said today it still opposes admission of Communist China to the United Nations —a statement that seemed to water down its apparent move toward a "two China" policy in the U.N.

U.S. Ambassador Christopher H. Phillips told the General Assembly Thursday "the fact of the matter is, the United States is as interested as any in this room to see the People's Republic of China play a constructive role among the family of nations."

But he said, "we do not see how the purposes of this organization can be served by expelling any member which has long and faithfully observed the obligations set forth in its charter." This was a reference to Nationalist China.

Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House spokesman, said today in Washington the United States still opposed Red China's admission and that "Peking has never indicated any interest in joining the U.N. unless it is coupled with expulsion of Nationalist China."

He also said the United States hoped to see Peking play a "constructive role" in the

Parks Off Limits To Expansion

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The State Park and Recreation Commission yesterday firmly drew the line against growing pressure for large-scale recreational development within state parks.

Many conservationists have accused the state Department of Parks and Recreation of favoring increasingly intense development within the parks in recent years, an accusation fired in part by department plans for restaurants and a hotel on Angel Island. These plans for the island park were toned down last year by the commission, but conservationists generally have regarded the commission as prone to go along with what the staff of the department recommends.

Yesterday's sharp turnabout was led by the commission's newest member, Thomas M. Bonnicksen of Berkeley, a 28-year-old graduate student in forestry ecology. All nine members were appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, including two holdovers from the Brown administration reappointed by Reagan.

The commission voted, 6-2, on the policy drafted by Bonnicksen. Commissioner Harry E. Sokolov of Beverly Hills, a movie company executive, abstained because he missed the long, occasionally hot debate that preceded the vote.

The two negative votes were cast by commissioners who bitterly assailed the policy as a slap at the director of the department, William Penn Mott Jr. They were Lowell Berry of Oakland, a fertilizer manufacturer, and Mrs. Leah F. McConnell of Redding, operator of a ski lodge.

Berry argued the policy was "a move to embarrass and harass our department, particularly the director." Bonnicksen, however, insisted that "issues, not personalities, are at stake here."

The only other criticism of Bonnicksen's policy came from commissioner Ian I. McMillan, a rancher from Shandon, San Luis Obispo County. McMillan said it should have been even more restrictive against tinkering with the natural state of the parks.

McMillan, 62, said Reagan had appointed Bonnicksen "to represent the students and young people, and he was a very fine choice. He certainly doesn't represent the revolutionary, and he's doing more than most of the youth to make the system work."

Bonnicksen's policy declared that all development within state parks must be "consistent with the preservation of natural, scenic and ecological values for present and future developments." It called for confining to designated park roads all vehicles such as trail bikes, dune buggies, four-wheel drive vehicles and snowmobiles.

Playgrounds, golf courses, swimming pools, ski facilities and other recreational developments "are not encouraged within state parks," his policy declared. Its original draft "prohibited" such developments, but Mott argued successfully for more flexible language so his department could consi-

UC Chancellor Heyns Resigns

ROGER HEYNS
Reluctant resignation

Says No Political Pressure Applied

BERKELEY (UPI) — Chancellor Roger Heyns, who steered the Berkeley campus of the University of California through five years of violence and turmoil, resigned today.

Heyns said he was leaving "with utmost reluctance" to return to the University of Michigan faculty.

The 52-year-old educator suffered a heart attack last July but told newsmen this was not his primary reason for resigning.

He said "many considerations" led to the decision, but did not elaborate except to say that "there has not been any political pressure."

University President Charles J. Hitch issued a statement saying he accepted Heyns' resignation "with a feeling of sadness." Chairman of the University Regents William French Smith said he also regretted Heyns' decision to leave.

The chancellor said he would like to be relieved as soon as possible but no later than next June.

During the five years he has been at Berkeley, the campus administration has been under repeated criticism from Gov. Ronald Reagan and others for being too lenient towards demonstrators.

Heyns came to Berkeley from the University of Michigan in 1964 following the "Free Speech Movement" demonstrations which resulted in hundreds of arrests and the dismissal of University President Clark Kerr by the Regents.

During the following years his administration was under constant pressure from radical students on the one hand and a conservative Board of Regents on the other. Major riots occurred on the campus over the "People's Park" and other issues. Heyns' administration called in outside help from the National Guard on several occasions and undertook disciplinary action against student agitators.

Reagan on several occasions praised Heyns' administration for handling certain incidents, but on many occasions he said campus troubles at Berkeley were the fault of weak administration.

Approval To Single Sausalito Terminal

The proposed site is alongside Bridgeway, between Locust and Litho streets and just south of the property recently brought by the city for a municipal complex and waterfront park.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said he had discussed the proposal with Sam Zakessian, owner of the property, and that Zakessian had "indicated a willingness" to consider the proposal. Luehring offered no estimate of the cost of the parcel.

The district has been operating a downtown terminal since August, and had promised the city, under the terms of its conditional use permit to operate the ferry, to shift the main ferry operation to a north Sausalito terminal.

Spaulding, however, strongly objected that a north terminal would confront the district with very high costs to dredge and maintain a channel. A north terminal also would require the ferries to run at slow speeds because of small craft traffic and to minimize damage to the channel.

The board's action authorized Luehring, in cooperation with the city and Zakessian "to begin the necessary preliminary planning toward the development of

Thurber Case Witness Declines Key Questions

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The murder trial of Frank J. Thurber, 45, of San Bruno, stopped abruptly today when prosecution witness, Larry G. Rutherford, refused to answer many questions concerning the Fourth of July shooting of Allan W. Daly.

Rutherford, also of San Bruno, has already confessed his role in the murder of Daly, an I-J employee, and has been sentenced to long term commitment with the California Youth Authority.

Visiting Judge Edmund M. Moor of Alpine County recessed the superior court trial until Monday after only one hour of testimony today.

Yesterday Daly's widow, Stephanie, now of Novato, recounted the events of July 4 when two young men invaded the Daly's San Francisco home and fatally shot her husband.

She said Rutherford, now 17, did the shooting.

Under examination today by Asst. Dist. Atty. Pierre F. V. Merle, Rutherford admitted going to the Daly home July 4 with Richard A. Wamsley, 17, also of San Bruno because Wamsley had said Daly would have a couple of hundred dollars at the house.

After asking for money and learning Daly had none, Wamsley and Mrs. Daly went into the kitchen to get grocery money, Rutherford said.

"Where were you?," asked Merle.

"I was with the dude, Mr. Daly," the youth answered.

"That's when he got shot," Rutherford said.

Rutherford admitted firing the shot, but he refused to answer questions about who was with him and Wamsley driving to San Francisco from San Bruno, where he got the gun, where the car was parked and who was in it while the youths were in the Daly house.

Merle read Rutherford's testimony to the San Francisco Grand Jury which indicted Thurber on charges of murder, conspiracy, robbery and burglary.

In the grand jury testimony,

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Chile Defies OAS

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Marxist President Salvador Allende announced establishment of full relations with Havana Thursday night in defiance of an Organization of American States (OAS) quarantine of Cuba.

In a national television broadcast on his ninth day in office, Allende said Chile was re-establishing diplomatic, consular, commercial and cultural relations with the Fidel Castro regime. He said the OAS sanctions were illegal and unjust.

Secrets To Reds

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Arab guerrillas passed on to Moscow secret North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) documents aboard a plane they hijacked to the Middle East, NATO officials said today.

The officials said although they had no definite proof, it was safe to assume that "once the guerrillas got their hands on the documents they finished up in a hostile capital."

The secret documents, which were aboard a Trans World Airlines jet hijacked to Jordan by Arab guerrillas on Sept. 6, contained full details of NATO command exercise "Wintex" scheduled for next winter, NATO officials said.

The documents were bound for the Pentagon, the officials said.

Celibacy Attacked

DETROIT (UPI) — A 1,500-year-old rule that priests of the Roman Catholic Church must remain unmarried has come under new attack as nearly half of all diocesan priests in Michigan went on record in favor of ending "mandatory celibacy" in the church.

Of the 1,545 priests in Michigan's five Roman Catholic dioceses, 972 responded to questions submitted by an ad hoc group of 10 priests.

More SALT Talks

HELSINKI (UPI) — The fourth meeting of the resumed U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) today were marked by serious approaches by both sides to the questions involved, conference sources said.

The formal meeting lasted 45 minutes and was followed by 25 minutes of informal chat over drinks.

Sino-Soviet Talks

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets have begun trade negotiations with Communist China, the official Tass news agency said today.

The brief agency item indicated the two nations had taken another step toward reconciliation. The Soviets sent an ambassador to Peking last month to fill a post vacant since 1967.

100 Die In Floods

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—State Gov. Jose Antonio Murgas says 100 persons have been confirmed dead and more than 1,000 are missing after floods brought on by heavy rains swept a 50-square-mile area of Colombia earlier this week.

Onassis Pressured

ATHENS (UPI)—The Greek government warned today that unless shipping owner Aristotle Onassis pays $5 million guarantee toward his promised investments in Greece the deal between them will be off.

The warning followed a threat by Onassis, husband of Jacqueline Kennedy, that he would not keep his end of the contract signed two months ago unless the Greek government gave him a better deal.

The contract called for Onassis to make $600 million in investments in Greece ranging from a new oil refinery to an aluminum plant, electric energy plan, petrochemical industry complex and several tourist projects.

Argentine Strike

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Heavy police contingents patrolled the streets in Argentina's major cities today on the second day of a nationwide general strike that shut down practically all business, industrial and transportation facilities.

The 36-hour strike which ends at midnight tonight, was called by the 2.5 million member General Confederation of Labor (CGT) to protest the government's economic policies. It is the third nationwide stoppage in five weeks.

Rubin Arrested

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Police today arrested "Chicago Seven" defendant Jerry Rubin, who defied government demands he leave England and flew instead to Northern Ireland.

Special branch detectives took Rubin into custody immediately after the self-proclaimed leader of the Youth International Party (Yippies) Belfast.

"You have no authority to arrest me," Rubin protested. "This is Ireland, not England."

Northern Ireland is under British control.

WALTER CRONKITE
Communication crisis

A Dim News Media Report By Cronkite

CHICAGO (UPI)—The United States is hanging "on the brink of a communications crisis," bounded on one side by disappearing newspapers and on the other by federally regulated broadcast news outlets, Walter Cronkite said Thursday.

This crisis, Cronkite told the 61st national convention of Sigma Delta Chi professional journalistic society, "could undermine that foundation of our democracy which is a free and responsible press."

'ARE NOT FREE'

Cronkite, managing editor of the CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite said broadcast journalism can provide a check on the print media "if we are left alone to perform that essential journalistic function. The trouble is that we are not free, we are government licensed.

"The power to make us conform is too great to forever lie dormant. The ax lies there temptingly for the use of any enraged administration, Republican, Democrat or Wallacite. We are at the mercy of the whim of politicians and bureaucrats and whether they choose to chop us down or not, the mere existence of their power is an intimidating and constraining threat in being."

BRUNT OF ATTACK

Today, Cronkite said, television news "finds itself carrying the brunt of the attack against our freedoms . . . not, I am convinced, because of our performance but mostly because of our impact . . .

"I don't think it is any of our business what the moral, political, social or economic effect of our reporting is," Cronkite said.

Cronkite said it is true television news faces "immense" problems. "They are new and they are unique," he said.

Podgorny Homage Paid To De Gaulle

Marshal Vassili Tshuikov, victor at Stalingrad, placed a wreath of gladioli with the inscription, "To Gen. Charles de Gaulle. N.V. Podgorny," at the tomb where De Gaulle was buried Thursday in a day of national mourning.

Tshuikov told De Gaulle's eldest son, Capt. Philippe de Gaulle, "I have come to honor the memory of the great Frenchman, this great patriot of France, General de Gaulle who, all his life, defended the interests of his country."

Philippe de Gaulle and his brother-in-law, Army Gen. Alain de Boissieu, accompanied Tshuikov and Simon Kozyrev, Soviet Deputy Foreign minister, to the churchyard. After placing the wreath, the four men snapped into salutes which they held for three minutes.

The lights went out in the De Gaulle mansion Thursday night for the first time since Monday when Madame de Gaulle began her nightly candlelight vigils at the side of her husband's body.

But a new vigil was mounted by two, blue-uniformed gendarmes who stood at De Gaulle's graveside in the little country cemetery here that has become France's newest national shrine.

Late into the night, a silent procession of anonymous Gaullist pilgrims filed past the late statesman's tomb, some pausing to make the sign of the cross and say a brief prayer for the repose of De Gàulle's soul, others placing a wreath or a single flower near the grave marked only: "Charles de Gaulle 1890-1970."

The tiny village of Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises began its return to normal. The iron grill barriers that were used to control the tens of thousands of people who showed up for the De Gaulle funeral were mostly removed.

And just after dawn, the handful of children who attend the school in Colombey began to file past the graveside that few of them could approach during Thursday's funeral because of the crush of outsiders who invaded their village.

In Paris, a million people demonstrated on the Champs Elysee for De Gaulle Thursday night.

Power Ploy In Syria Is Settled

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A power struggle in Syria's ruling Baath party has been settled with a compromise that will keep Dr. Noureddin Atassi as head of state and party chief, the Beirut newspaper An Nahar said today.

The newspaper said the agreement was reached at a national congress of the Baath party in Damascus Thursday night. The emergency congress was called when Atassi quit as president and pirme minister.

Persistent reports have said the power struggle developed when a military faction and a civilian faction of the party came into direct confrontation over Syria's intervention role in the Jordan civil war.

The London Daily Express said Thursday that Israel has devised a new Middle East peace plan in which it would pull its troops back from the Suez Canal far enough to permit Egypt to reopen the waterway and reoccupy Suez towns.

Express writer Chapman Pincher said the withdrawal would nullify the effect of the buildup of limited range Soviet missiles on the west side of the canal.

He said King Hussein of Jordan has privately approved the plan and Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan will fly to Washington next month to discuss the military implications.

Unarmed U.S. Spy Plane Shot Down

SAIGON (UPI) — North iVetnamese gunners today shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance plane 105 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), U.S. spokesmen reported.

The plane, an RF4C Phantom, was shot down 42 miles south of the coastal city of Vinh and the two crewmen on board "are presumed dead," the spokesmen said.

The flareup of the air war followed a resurgence of Communist activity in South Vietnam after a two-day lull. Communists killed nine Americans, six of them in a single booby trap incident Thursday—the highest one-day death toll in a month, spokesmen said.

The tempo of fighting also increased in Cambodia, and reports from Phnom Penh said hundreds of Cambodian troops including elite infantry today began a sweep along Route 7 toward the town of Troeung.

Heath-Nixon Talks

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Edward Heath will visit Washington for wide-ranging policy talks with President Nixon on Dec. 17-18, an official announcement said today.

Soviet Author Guilty Of Slander

MOSCOW (UPI) — Andrei Amalrik was convicted Thursday of slandering the state in his book "Will the Soviet Union Survive Until 1984?" and sentenced to three years in a labor camp, friends reported.

In his book, which was published in the West, Amalrik predicted war with China that would lead to the collapse of the Soviet state.

He said the Soviet Union already is "distending itself and disintegrating like sour dough," and said that sometime between 1980 and 1984 it would explode in "anarchy, violence and intense national hatred."

Novato High Ballots For Queen To Reign At Tomorrow's Events

The candidates, all seniors, had been chosen by members of the varsity football squad, but the entire student body voted for the queen, whose name will be announced at 1 p.m. tomorrow before the football game with Redwood High School. She will reign at the game and at the homecoming ball from 9 p.m. to midnight at the new gymnasium, said Edward W. Kraft, activities director.

The day's activities start with a pancake breakfast from 8 to 11 a.m. at the school cafeteria, sponsored by the senior class. The proceeds of the breakfast will go to the Peace Corps "partnership Program," Kraft said.

The homecoming parade will form at the Novato Fair Shopping Center parking lot at 11 a.m. There will be a color guard, the drill team from the high school's Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps, and class floats. Candidates for queen will ride in separate cars. The pom pom girls and cheerleaders will ride on motorcycles.

Music for the homecoming ball will be by Maramac a band from San Francisco.

Tiburon Asking 2-way Highway

Tiburon residents want a safe two-lane highway where Tiburon Boulevard now stands, rather than a four-lane expressway proposed by the California Division of Highways.

This was the consessus of a public hearing held Wednesday by the Tiburon Boulevard and Shoreline Study Committee, reported chairman Alvin R. Kuhn.

About 65 persons attended the session, called by the committee to consider alternate alignments of the road from "the knoll" to the Belvedere Tennis Club.

Kuhn said most spectators favored enlarging Tiburon Boulevard into a wide, safe two-lane road with stacking lanes and elevated pedestrian overcrossings.

They were unanimous in their desire that the knoll, a small hill near the Pine Terrace subdivision, be preserved by building the road inland, away from the knoll. The highway division had proposed removing about half of the hill for its four-lane expressway, Kuhn said.

The alignment requested by residents would necessitate cutting into some private property on the north side of the highway, but would not require demolishing any houses.

Several persons, Kuhn said, wanted to see the highway built on the ridge above Tiburon Boulevard since future expansion of the city will take place there.

Kuhn said the division of highways believes Tiburon needs a four-lane road to meet expansion needs, but is not committed to that plan.

"If the community is willing to live with a higher level of congestion to maintain certain ecological aspects, the division of highways has said it would cooperate" by building the smaller road, he said.

The committee will meet again Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall to consider alternative plans in the section from the Belvedere Tennis Club to downtown Tiburon. These proposals will be discussed at another public meeting Nov. 25, Kuhn said.

The committee hopes to have its recommendations before the city planning commission in early December and the city council the following month.

Shakespeare Festival Plans Drive For Funds

Directors of the deficit-plagued Marin Shakespeare Festival have tentatively decided to split the duties hitherto performed by its executive director and to launch a special drive for funds.

According to festival president Colin J. Ranwsley, the board proposed Wednesday to name a full-time business manager and a director of theater production.

The plan is expected to be adopted at the board's next meeting.

The board had hoped to persuade John Brebner, who resigned last month, to return to the exective director's job, but failed. Brebner quit because of the burden of dual responsibilities.

Although 1970 box office receipts were the highest in festival history — nearly $50,000 — a deficit of $3,100 was created by an arsonist's fire, vandalism, thefts and a falling tree limb which ruined much of the theater's lighting.

In addition, a deficit of $10,738 remained from prior years.

The board plans to mail out 6,000 requests for donations to festival supporters and proposes special fund raising events.

Contributions may be sent to Barbara Young, administrative assistant, Marin Shakespeare Festival, Box 2306, San Rafael.

Siskiyou Vote Count Delayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Secretary of State's office said today that transportation problems in three remote precincts in northernmost Siskiyou County have caused a delay in the final vote count for the Nov. 3 election.

Officials said election night rainstorms in the precinct areas caused the transportation problems. However, they pointed out, county officials promised that the ballots would be here by Dec. 8—the deadline for the reporting of all results.

Without the results from the three precincts, the latest Secretary of State figures were 99.9 per cent complete.

The latest figures showed Gov. Ronald Reagan defeating challenger Jess Unruh 3,382,203 to 2,878,896; Rep. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., beating Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., 3,425,984 to 2,828,127; and Proposition 18, on the use of gas tax monies for antipollution measures and rapid transit systems, being defeated 3,121,611 to 2,648,287.

Girls Smarter

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — A university survey shows that the failure rate for girl students — up to 34 per cent — is considerably lower than that for men. Almost 50 per cent of all students at Denmark's three universities, Copenhagen, Aarhus and Odense, fail their final examinations, according to the survey.

End Asked To Jet Fuel Dumping

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Air Pollution Control Administration (NAPCA) said Thursday it has asked airlines to stop pollution caused by dumping jet fuel into the air after take-off.

The castoff fuel is a residue that seeps into holding tanks when jet engines are stopped after a flight. The holding tanks are emptied automatically within minutes after the next takeoff.

NAPCA commissioner John T. Middleton said in a letter to airline officials that planes are dumping an estimated 6,700 tons, or two million gallons, of fuel a year.

"This not only adds to air pollution but is wasteful of essential fuel resources at a time of shortage," he said.

The Air Transport Association of America (ATA) responded that airlines are investigating alternatives to the practice.

"If there is a way of stopping it, it ought to be stopped," said William G. Osmun, ATA director of technical information. "Now that it is brought to focus we are going to do something about it."

Asked why the airlines had not acted before, Osmun replied, "We have worked on the bigger aspects of pollution and have neglected this in favor of them ... When the jet engines were designed environment was not as big an issue as it is now."

Middleton said that at Washington's National Airport alone about 110 tons of fuel are dumped each year.

"This could have significant effects on the health and welfare of people who live and work near the airport," he said.

Middleton asked the airlines to report to him by Nov. 30 on plans for halting the practice. A NAPCA spokesman said the agency has no authority to require a halt.

However, the airlines agreed voluntarily to reduce the amount of black smoke emitted by jet engines, after an earlier NAPCA request.

Veteran pilot William Lane Guthrie of Eastern Airlines was fired last month for emptying fuel residue while his aircraft was on the ground.

Osmun said draining the fuel while the aircraft is grounded would cause schedule delays and require more manpower.

Some airlines say the castoff fuel dissipates in the air. But some pilots say it causes slick runways, stains buildings and pollutes swimming pools near airports.

Castro Conducting Labor Voting To Hike Production

MIAMI (UPI)—Cuba watchers here are following with interest the latest effort by Premier Fidel Castro to boost the island's lagging productivity and cut down on absenteeism in industry.

Radio Havana broadcasts monitored in Miami have announced a month-long process of electing local labor leaders in factories and other places of employment throughout Cuba.

The process began Monday Nov. 9 and is expected to continue through Dec. 9. The Cuban radio has hailed the elections as the beginning of "democratization" of the Cuban Workers Confederation (CTC), as outlined in Castro's Sept. 3 speech to a special CTC congress in Havana.

The speech came at a time when the Cuban economy was suffering from the massive disruption caused by an all-out effort to harvest 10 million tons of sugar. The harvest fell 1.5 million tons short of the goal and Castro admitted July 26 that the effort had badly damaged other sectors of the economy.

One result was apparently worker apathy, because the regime has since launched a major campaign against absenteeism in the factories.

It is not yet clear how the election process will work, or whether it signifies any real change in the Cuban labor movement, at present rigidly controlled from above.

As in the past, the "elections" will involve only one slate of candidates for each CTC local. However, Castro promised that all workers would be given a voice in choosing the slate.

"We are going to trust in our workers and rapidly carry out elections in all the union locals, that is, in all the factories," Castro said in his CTC address. "And we are going to carry them out in an absolutely free manner, in which the workers can nominate anyone they want."

In an apparent reference to past practice, Castro said that "a worker truly elected by a majority of the workers will carry (moral) authority, he won't be just a mister nobody, he won't be some guy shoved into office from above by an unseen hand.

"We want to build a strong, a very powerful labor movement. For the movement to be strong, for it to be powerful, for it to be a labor movement at all, it must be 100 per cent democratic," Castro said.

The words sound strange coming from Castro, whose revolution destroyed the independent unions existing in Cuba when he came to power in 1959, and replaced them with a Communist-dominated C T C. The labor movement became a monolithic apparatus handing down government policies from above and urging the workers on to more zealous fulfilment of production quotas.

Strep Leading Marin Infection

Ninety-three cases of streptococcus infection were reported in Marin County last week, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

Dr. Albrecht said there were 19 cases of gonorrhea, five cases of infectious hepatitis, two cases of syphilis and one case of salmonella.

Female Friskers

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The Port Authority of Singapore has recruited 14 policewomen to facilitate questioning and frisking of female suspects arrested in the harbor area.

Insignia-Blazer Growing Favorite

NEW YORK (UPI) — The solid-color blazer with breastpocket insignia, once largely limited to the campus, is fast becoming an image-builder for business and industry, says Richard M. Volpe, vice president of Meinhard-Commercial Corporation factoring firm.

The demand for blazers is on the rise because corporations and businesses are becoming more conscious of the need for favorable public awareness of themselves, Volpe says.

Tossed Bottle Breaks Window

An overenthusiastic reveler tossed his empty champagne bottle through a door window at Leo and Wolf Garage, 136 Front Street, San Rafael, Tuesday night, police reported yesterday.

The missile damaged the fender of a car parked inside, police said, but there was no estimate of damage.

Sausalitans Air City Complaints

By PAT ANGLE

Approximately 110 Sausalito "hill people" turned out last night to air their complaints to city officials and ask questions about such concerns as the downtown scene, panhandling, traffic, hitch hiking and groups of people living in single-family homes.

No firm conclusions were reached at the town meeting, sponsored by the Sausalito Citizens Council, but those officials who attended tried to alert residents to some of the difficulties faced in solving the city's problems.

Discussion topics were based on a recent questionnaire which the citizens council sent to 400 residents. Carl W. Spring of the council said 140 surveys, representing the opinions of approximately 420 residents were returned.

Panhandling, hitchhiking, group living in single-family homes and the "deteriorating" downtown scene seemed to be most objectionable both to those who attended the meeting and those who replied to the questionnaires.

Panhandling has no place in Sausalito, according to 135 residents who answered the questions and 113 wanted stronger controls over hitchhiking and 127 said they would not want groups of unrelated people living in the house next door.

One man thought the city should enforce an antiloitering law, to solve the panhandling problem. "The average panhandler is standing still outside a store; very few will walk alongside you," he explained.

Mayor Alexander Imlay explained the courts have ruled "you can't take persons and throw them into jail because they are standing around. A person with a large bank account may be sitting enjoying what Sausalito has to offer and he would be loitering," the mayor added.

Imlay and Councilmen Wyman Hicks and Robin Sweeny said effective control of begging would be possible only with full cooperation from the residents. Because it is a misdemeanor offense, a policemen can make an arrest only if he sees the incident or if a person makes a citizen's arrest.

Mrs. Sweeny quieted the fears of some who were afraid they would be hurt in making such an arrest. She said an individual need only keep the offender under surveillance, call the police, wait until they arrive and then identify the panhandler. "You don't have to grab them and hold them," she explained, "but you do have to be willing to go to the police department and make a formal complaint and then go to court and testify against the individual."

Most residents agreed they wree "sick and tired" of hitchhikers. Jean Sorf felt most of the city's "bad element" gets into Sausalito by using their thumbs.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said the state has preempted laws on hitchhiking. He said the law states the hitchhiker must keep off the road and not block traffic.

Mrs. Sweeny said a resolution asking the state for a law prohibiting hitchhiking has been referred back to committee for two years by the League of California Cities and expressed disappointment over the league action. She suggested the mayors and councilmen of Marin County may have to get together and go to Sacramento to plead for stronger laws, which some persons feel may not be constitutional or may be impossible to enforce.

Enforcement will also be a problem in enacting any city regulation of the number of unrelated people who can live in a single house, H. Eric Borgwardt, city planning director, said. "It's not the function of the city to conduct a doorbell survey of each dwelling unit," he said, "and even if there were a bonafide complaint and the city went to court, the defendant could suggest the additional people were houseguests and have the case dismissed."

Although parking on Bridgeway was not discussed last night, since the city council recently voted to continue and expand the parking ban, 41 residents favored no parking, 39 favored leaving a few spaces for cars and 33 thought there should be parking on both sides of Bridgeway.

About 100 of the respondents said they shop downtown, but 44 said they shopped less than before the ban on parking was put into effect.

Most persons, both in the questionnaires and the audience cherred the ferry service, although only 20 said they used it to commute and 43 said they rode the boat for pleasure. Many residents (74) indicated they favored the ferry's encouragement of tourists, while only 35 thought the additional tourists "bad."

A ferry stop in downtown Sausalito, even after the main terminal is built in the Marinship area, would be a necessity, most Sausalitans agreed, if the ferry is to be convenient for residents.

On the downtown scene, 122 said they didn't like it as it is now, 135 thought the police should strongly discourage public drinking, exhibitionism and narcotics and 106 wanted more dog control.

The city's downtown foot patrol is a good idea, accrding to 122 persons and many persons in the audience thought it had improved conditions.

Ninety-six persons said they would shop more downtown if conditions were improved.

No Business

The City-County Services Committee of Marin, which would normally meet next Monday, will not meet this month because there is no business to undertake, Assistant County Administrator John F. Barrows announced today. Next regular meeting date is Dec. 21. The time and place will be announced later.

Petaluma Lumber Yard Robbed

Redwood fencing valued at $150 was stolen last night from Oberg Lumber, 5000 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma police reported today.

Employees said a man in a station wagon loaded the supplies from the rear of the lot.

Del R. Ross told police that burglars had stolen change from a washer and dryer at his apartments at 201 H Street. He said the coin boxes contained under $50.

North Korea To Free Japanese Ship Crew

TOKYO (UPI)—North Korea today said it will release the crew of a Japanese "espionage" ship and send them back to Japan aboard the vessel, but will keep the captain and one other crew member to "punish them under the relevant law."

The Korean Central News agency said in a broadcast monitored here the ship, the Mitsu-Maru, was detained Sept. 8 when it "had illegally intruded deep into the territorial waters of our country . . . and committed espionage acts."

Terrorists Engineer $6 Million Bank Heist

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Leftist Tupamaro terrorists robbed the government's Savings and Discount Bank of 1.5 billion pesos —$6 million — in jewels and cash Thursday night in one of the greatest armed thefts in modern history.

The theft was carried out under the nose of authorities. The Interior Ministry (police headquarters) flanks the bank building on one side and the presidential communications office on the other. Both offices are under heavy round-the-clock guard.

Police said the five men and four women involved in the theft apparently included jewelry experts who went through the bank's vaults and picked out the most valuable jewels deposited as security for loans by bank customers. The thieves were aided by a bank employe, Daniel Camilo Guinovart, 23, who let them in and showed them where the valuables were stored. He later escaped with them.

The robbers struck at 8:45 p.m., seizing three high bank officials to get them past six bank guards. They used three stolen cars, police said. The Tupamaros bound and gagged the watchmen and the bank executives and then proceeded at their leisure to go through the vaults. The entire operation took nearly four hours, police said.

Larkspur Youth Pleads Innocent

Daniel Raymond Christian Prince, 20, of Larkspur, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglarizing a Larkspur residence on Oct. 14.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. denied a request by Prince's lawyer to waive a preliminary hearing and send the case im memdiately to Superior Court.

A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 24.

Prince was arrested on a warrant charging that he was the person who fled the home of Virginia Ann Schryver of 108 Ardmore Road after she surprised him in the house.

Crime Rate Drops

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The number of major crimes in San Francisco decreased in October by 11 per cent from the same month a year ago, Police Chief Alfred Nelder said Thursday.

Rubella Campaign Will Start Monday

Marin's one-month campaign to immunize children against rubella, the crippler and killer disease, will start Monday morning at St. Raphael's School in San Rafael.

A team of doctors, nurses and volunteers is all set to make the rounds of the county's elementary schools in hope of immunizing about 40,000 children from age 1 through 11. The campaign will run from next Monday through Dec. 15.

Dr. Carolyn Albrecht, county health officer, announced that one change in schedule is being made for next week. The immunization clinic, set for 1:45 p.m. next Wednesday at St. Hilary's School in Tiburon, has been canceled and re-set for Dec. 14.

"Parents with pre-school children should take their youngsters to the nearest school where immunizations will be given," said Dr. Albrecht. However, if a youngster has received another type of immunization within the past month, he will not get the rubella vaccine, she added.

Here is the first week's schedule:

Monday — 9 a.m. at St. Raphael's school; 1 p.m. at Del Mar School; 2:45 p.m. at Reedland Woods School.

Tuesday — 9 a.m. at Bel Air School; 10:15 a.m. at Belvedere School; 11:15 a.m. Tiburon School; 12:30 p.m. Reed School; 2 p.m. Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club.

Wednesday — 9 a.m. Bahia Vista School; 10:15 a.m. Montessori School; 1 a.m. Laurel Dell Intermediate School; 12:30 p.m. Short School.

Thursday — 9 a.m. Coleman School; 11 a.m. Our Lady of Mt. Carmel School; 1 p.m. Park School.

Friday — 9 a.m. Greenbrae School; 10 a.m. Wolfe Grade School; 11 a.m. A. E. Kent School.

Rubella, or German measles, caused 20,000 infants to be born with congenital defects and another 30,000 to be stillborn after the nationwide epidemic of 1964-65. Another major rubella epidemic is expected early next spring, said Dr. Albrecht.

Freeways May Be Economic Boost

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — An economic and engineering study is under way to determine the effectiveness of the proposed Delaware-St. Lawrence Expressway in helping economic growth in a 200-mile corridor of New York state.

The area under study extends from the Route 17 expressway near the Pennsylvania border north to the St. Lawrence River Valley. When other conditions necessary for development are present, highways can serve as catalysts for economic growth.

The new study by URS Systems Corp. of San Mateo will determine if the Delaware-St. Lawrence Expressway will be such a catalyst.

Roof Squatters

LIMA (UPI) — Peru has its squatters, even in downtown Lima. They are families without homes who frequently move onto the roof of a downtown office building and erect crude shelters. Some of them are discovered only after they have lived there for months.

Einstein Upheld In New Tests

PASADENA (UPI) — Albert Einstein's 54-year-old theory of relativity has been upheld through recently-conducted radio tests with two Mariner spacecraft by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, it was announced Thursday.

The tests, designed to measure the maximum delay of radio and light signals, showed that Einstein's predictions are right to within two to four per cent. According to Dr. John D. Anderson, chief investigator of the JPL experimental team, the best measurements thus far available show a maximum delay of about 204 microseconds for Mariner VI, as compared with an expected 200 microseconds using Einstein's theory.

Other theories, such as that of Drs. Charles Brans and Robert H. Dicke, hold that Einstein's formulations about the effects of gravity could be in error by seven per cent.

The JPL team has taken several hundred measurements to date using the satellites as relay point.

Research Ships Turn Bay Into Classroom In Science

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A unique marine science program is giving the new ecology-minded generation in the San Francisco Bay Area an intimate knowledge of that celebrated body of water.

The Inland Seas is an 85-foot converted rescue vessel, now one of the best-equipped research ships on the Pacific Coast.

The ship is now devoted full-time to taking junior high school through college level science and oceanography classes out on the bay to study firtst hand the chemistry, biology, currents and water life of that fragile natural resource.

The Inland Seas, operated by the Marine Ecological Institute of Palo Alto, carried more than 4,000 student passengers last year and has already had amost 1,000 young scientists aboard so far this year.

Among groups on the vessel this week were classes from Orinda and a group of teachers from the Urban Studies Center in Oakland.

"This isn't an outing on the bay," said Robert E. Rutherford, head of the institute. "It is a scientific marine field trip."

As the clean and comfortable Inland Seas pulls away from port it drops its trawling nets to catch fish and a net to collect plankton.

The fish are taken into the ship's aquarium where the students identify, measure and classify them. The plankton is taken to the shipboard biology laboratory for study by another group.

In the ship's chemistry laboratory a group of students take samples of the bay water and bottom mud, measure its temperature, study chemical content and other qualities.

In the navigation room they plot the location of their research in relation to the bay's geography, sewer outfalls and other environmental characteristics.

Teachers as well as the students find it a "very exciting experience," said Rutherford.

"One teacher pointed to a boy avidly studying water chemistry in the ship's laboratory and told me he had been trying for six months without success to overcome that student's apathy in the school lab.

"The difference was that here he had taken the water sample himself and was doing it all himself," said Rutherford.

The institute has its own staff of marine scientists who guide the shipboard research of the students. Pre-trip and post-trip materials are provided the teacher to make the outing a significant part of the regular curriculum.

"Requests on hand indicate we will take 12,000 to 15,000 students out this year if we can keep operating," said Rutherford, a businessman and educator devoting his time to the non profit institute.

The institute charges a small fee for a high school class to cover some of the costs. It hopes to receive a grant from the National Science Foundation next year but not is dependent on gifts to cover most of the operating expenses of $575 a day.

"We are trying to get a few ecology-minded foundations and corporations to help us keep going," Rutherford said. "I have a $2,400 insurance premium to pay this week."

Stan Ostling, a California state education consultant, took several trips with classes which include some youngsters who had never been on a boat before.

"I have never seen so many learnings packed into so short a period for so many youngsters," he observed afterwards.

The institute, at 200 California Ave., Palo Alto, has dozens of letters from teachers in the schools of 37 districts around the bay who have put their students aboard the Inland Seas. All of them attest that the experience will give the students a realistic sense of what is meant by all the talk about saving the bay.

Knowledge of God

We were always meant to know God . . . to be deeply aware of His infinite nature and power . . . and to follow where this knowledge leads in working out our salvation. The Bible speaks of it often. It's the most fundamental knowledge there is, and it requires prayerful study and consistent practice. Christian Science church services offer assistance to those who seek this knowledge. You are always welcome, any Sunday or Wednesday.

SAN RAFAEL STREET SCENE

Officer Joseph V. Leonard of the San Rafael police found this an odd situation to describe yesterday. The MG sports car driven by Peter G. Ballantine, 19, of 123 Canal Street was stopped on Fourth Street near Court Street behind the Coupe de Ville Cadillac driven by Ruth L. Jowett, 53, of 42 Mount Whitney Drive, when a car driven by Jerome C. Corbett, 53, of 50 Buena Vista, Fairfax, pushed the sports car under the cadillac at 12:31 p.m., police said. A fourth car driven by Virginia M. Rowley, 59, of 245 Bayhills Drive was hit by the Cadillac. No one was injured in the accident, police said.

Prosecution Calls Fifth Riot Witness

I-J Special Report

FAIRFIELD — The prosecution's fifth witness took the stand today as the trial stemming from the Feb. 14 riot outside the Independent-Journal resumed after a two-day recess.

Douglas J. Barrett, a Marin County sheriff's deputy, testified in Solano County Superior Court at the trial of seven men arrested during the demonstration called in support of striking printers.

Barrett, one of more than 125 officers summoned to the demonstration, said he helped arrest one of the defendants, Alvis Dean Bailey, 43, of San Francisco.

The officer said Bailey struck several fellow officers with a picket sign handle. Bailey, a truck driver for the San Francisco Examiner "resisted violently," Barrett said, and had to be subdued by several officers.

Novato's New Attempt To Boot Math Teacher

The Novato School District board made a new attempt yesterday in Marin Superior Court to get rid of Wyman W. Kunzler, Hill Junior High School mathematics teacher accused of teaching over his pupils' heads.

The board has been shot down in an earlier attempt to fire Kunzler when Judge E. Warren McGuire ruled that the charges of alleged incompetence were not specific enough.

In a new suit filed yesterday, the board sought to comply with the state Education Code by accusing Kunzler of such actions as teaching "binomial theorem" to beginning algebra students and presenting pupils with 20-digit multiplication problems.

After Judge McGuire ruled against the board in September, trustees again voted on Oct. 5 to fire Kunzler. On Oct. 22 he asked for a hearing on the matter.

The vote to give Kunzler notice of intent to dismiss was made after a 45-minute closed hearing and was a unanimous decision of the board.

Kunzler is not presently teaching but is still being paid by the district.

Board Due Outline On Retarded Plan

Marin County's program for the mentally retarded will be outlined to county board of education members at their meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Oak View School at Terra Linda.

The workshop session will handle no regular business actions, and only a brief list of special actions including award of contract for the Magnolia Park occupational training shop.

Government Probe In Crude Oil Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration said Friday it will investigate a crude oil price increase by two large U.S. firms that could cost American motorists a penny more a gallon for the gas they buy.

As other companies reported they were considering following the lead of Gulf and Atlantic-Richfield, the White House's office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) informed the two companies that the inquiry was being started into "the national security implications of a price increase at this time.

Gulf and Atlantic-Richfield increased crude oil prices, effective Friday, by 25 cents a barrel to $3.35 and ordered an accompanying hike of 0.7 cents a gallon in the wholesale price of gasoline to dealers.

'Inner-Colleges' Eyed For Novato

College of Marin trustees reviewed plans for the future Novato campus last night, under pressure from deadlines that could sink the projected 1974 opening date for the campus.

Dale A. Fleming, planning director for Marin Junior College District, said he hoped to have figures on the number of classroom, laboratories and other facilities ready for trustees by or before Dec. 1. The next set of figures must be submitted to the state before Dec. 31 to keep to the 1974 goal, he said.

Last night's workshop session reviewed the concept of three semi-specialized "inner colleges" capable of handling 2,200 students to start. The proposal included extensive use of sophisticated teaching techniques such as computer access stations for students, open, multi-purpose laboratories, electronic carrels for individual and group foreign language study, and many other learning devices.

Trustee chairman Elizabeth M. Deedy said she was "extremely concerned" about the lack of time for Fleming to prepare figures on the number of rooms, amount of space and expected enrollment in various classes to obtain state matching funds for eventual construction.

The speakers last night shunned mention of how the district would finance its share of the cost in light of the Nov. 3 defeat of a 16.9 million bond issue by a hair-thin margin.

That is to be taken up at next Thursday's regular board meeting.

Fleming reported that he envisages a total of 10 assorted laboratories, some combining equipment for geology, anthropology and geography for up to 45 students at a time, others combining art, engineering and drafting facilities, and others biology and chemistry.

Each of the "inner colleges" would have its own classrooms, lecture hall, and individual study facilities. Fleming envisioned a single library to serve all colleges, and possibly a single food service center for all the colleges.

Mrs. Deedy and others were quick to warn that this could be a trouble source. They urged extensive consultation before any decision is reached, because they were unhappy with the food situation on the Kentfield campus.

Michael Hanson, a member of the faculty committee that has been investigating the "inner college" idea for more than a year, said Fleming's plans have not yet resolved such questions as whether the Novato campus should offer intercollegiate sports, a campus newspaper separate from the Kentfield campus, and other facilities.

"We're going forward with this inner college plan without justification in terms of cost compared to conventional campuses," warned Trustee Robert E. Rogers.

"There are no physical problems — except food services — that would be different," replied Fleming. As for the study carrels and other sophisticated equipment, "it may cost more, but it extends more service to the student. It's more value per dollar spent," Fleming said.

Bay Area Charity Drive Exceeds Goal

SAN FRANCISCO — The United Bay Area Crusade today announced that its 1970 five-county campaign had raised $17,038,951. That is 101 per cent of its goal, according to Stephan A. Girard, UBAC campaign chairman.

The announcement was made at UBAC's annual awards luncheon here, for more than 700 leading volunteer fund-raisers and representatives of major contributor groups.

The Bay Area crusade raised more than one-half million dollars more than last year's campaign, which met its goal by taking in $16,515,800, Girard said. He said awards for this year's effort would go to more than 2,000 employee groups and labor organizations for their support to the campaign.

Direct recipients of crusade funds in Marin County will include scouting activities, Red Cross, Big Brothers, Catholic Social Service, Jewish Community Center, St. Vincent's School for Boys, Sunny Hlils, Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Marin Mental Health Association, YMCA and YWCA and other agencies.

Display Could Be Crash Cause

An attention-grabbing display window may have been the cause of a traffic accident in which one persons received minor injuries Tuesday, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Colleen Y. Kane, 25, of South San Francisco declined treatment for a cut on her forehead after the car in which she was a passenger hit the rear of a car driven by Maragret D. Houston of 57 Ross Avenue, San Anselmo, near 1444 Fourth Street at 5:27 p.m., police said.

The other driver, Ernest R. Higgins, 22, of South San Francisco told police he was distracted by a store display and did not see the Houston car stopped ahead of him.

Settlement Of Suits Against Frouge Made

Suits totaling $40,490 and filed in Marin Superior Court by former Marin County Supervisor Vera Schultz and architect Edmund C. Heine Jr. against the Frouge Corp. and the estate of the late Thomas Frouge have been settled.

Mrs. Schultz had claimed $29,425 for public relations work done for the firm in connection with the controversial Marincello project.

Heine had asked $11,065 for architectural fees. Both wanted 7 per cent interest on the sums for the period since August 1968.

Their attorney, William Mahaffey, declined yesterday to disclose the amounts they settled for.

Marincello was to be a planned community in the Marin Headlands which has never been built. The property is now owned by Gulf-Reston, and a new plan will probably be presented for the project, since courts have ruled the one approved by the board of supervisors in 1965 to be void.

$5 Million Suit Filed Against City

I.J. Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A disc jockey sued the City of San Rafael and several other parties yesterday for $5 million in damages as a result of a school yard fight in which his son was seriously hurt.

David Niles of San Francisco, a disc jockey for radio station KNBR, contended in the suit that his 11-year-old son, Kelly, suffered disabling brain damage and other injuries.

The suit, filed by attorney Bruce Walkup in superior court, named the City of San Rafael, the San Rafael Board of Education, Mount Zion Hospital of San Francisco and two physicians at Mount Zion.

It alleged that Kelly got into a fight with another boy at Bahia Vista School in San Rafael during a city-sponsored recreational program on June 26.

The boy reportedly was playing softball when the fight erupted.

The suit said Kelley was taken to the hospital after the fight and released. It says the school district and the city failed to provide proper supervision over the school yard.

The boy is now in Stanford Hospital. The suit says he has "extensive brain damage, essentially total paralysis from the neck down, loss of functions of his body, muteness or the inablility to speak and other injuries presently undiagnosed. all of which have rendered him totally unable to care for himself." Costs of his hospitalization are $3,000 a month, the suit said.

Before the suit was filed, $5 million claims were submitted to both the San Rafael Board of Education and City Council, but rejected. The school board said the recreational program was the city's responsibility and the council referred the claim to its insurance carrier.

Sirhan Conviction Appealed; 18 Issues

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sirhan Bishara Sirhan's death sentence for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has been appealed on 18 issues his defense attorney claims are grounds for a reversal of the conviction.

Attorney Luke McKissack told a news conference thursday the appeal was based in part on prejudicial publicity; the failure of the trial judge to accept a negotiated plea with the prosecution; psychiatric testimony at the trial; and the entire issue of capital punishment.

The 740-word brief filed with the California Supreme Court said that based on psychiatric testimony, Sirhan should have been guilty of manslaughter and not murder.

It also said that the presiding judge, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker, refused to allow Sirhan to plead guilty in exchange for a life sentence, as agreed by the defense and the prosecution.

Walker refused to permit the "plea-bargaining" because he wanted to prevent the possibility of lingering speculation over the case, as occurred after the assassination of the late President John F. Kennedy.

McKissack said the prosecution in the Sirhan case "pulled the rug out" from under the defense. He said the defense and state previously had agreed there would be no death penalty and the defense had no knowledge of the change in plans until the final prosecution summation.

Sirhan, who has been on death row in San Quentin for almost two years, was convicted of the 1968 assassination of Kennedy on the night of Kennedy's primary election victory in California as Democratic presidential candidate.

McKissack said the direct appeal to the state Supreme Court, which is automatic in California for persons condemned to death, would cost about $50,000, which he said he was personally financing.

Judge Upholds Statute On Flag

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A superior court judge Thursday upheld the constitutionality of the state law against defiling or destroying the American flag.

The law was challenged by two teen-agers arrested during an antiwar protest. The attorney for one of the youths asked the court to block their trial on grounds the misdemeanor law violated the constitution.

But Judge William M. Gallagher rejected the petition saying "all patriotic and well-meaning people would deplore disrespect for our flag, and it would seem to this court that the state has legitimate state interest in preserving the loyalty and patriotism represented by the American flag."

Michael L. Alford and Richard J. Jensen were arrested May 8 on charges of burning the flag on the west steps of the state capitol. An FBI agent told the court the teen-agers poured lighter fluid on the flag and burned it during a demonstration.

Thurber Case Witness Declines Key Questions

Rutherford said that the gun used to shoot Daly was Thurber's and that Thurber had given it to him, and that Thurber and Thurber's son, Michael, drove to San Francisco with the two youths on the evening of July 4.

But today, Rutherford said he couldn't remember.

"I don't want to answer your questions. You can find me in contempt of court, but that's all I want to say," he said, continuing "Hey, man, I'm through with it. I want nothing to do with this case anymore."

Judge Moor warned that he could be subject to a longer sentence than he has now if he refused to answer the questions.

"What is this, some kind of blackmain?" the youth protested.

Judge Moor recessed today's session, saying he wanted to check the law and that the court may have to take action in connection with Rutherford.

Moor also said he wanted to talk to Merle and defense attorney Nathan Cohn in his chambers.

Yesterday, Mrs. Daly, appearing calm and speaking in a clear voice, told step-by-step the events leading up to the fatal shooting of her 30-year-old husband.

She said a tire had been slashed on Daly's car while it was parked near their residence one night in late May, and the house was firebombed two nights in a row, June 15 and 16.

In his opening statement earlier yesterday, Merle said he would prove that Thurber had hired Wamsley and another San Bruno youth, Walter Peterson, to do the firebombing.

On July 4, Mrs. Daly said, she and her husband had worked on the house all day. "Our goal was to complete the house, sell it and move to Marin County," she said.

After supper, their older son, Allan Jr., 14 months old, was put to bed in an upstairs nursery. Mrs. Daly said she had just placed 3-month-old Kevin in a bassinet in the dining room at about 9 p.m. when there was a knock on the front door.

Daly, wearing a gold corduroy jumpsuit, was in the living room watching television. She opened the door to find two young strangers, Mrs. Daly said.

Merle gave her pictures of Wamsley and Rutherford to identify, and she said, "Those are the two men who murdered my husband."

One of the two men asked her if her car was blocking a driveway down the street, she said. She told him no, but he asked her to step out on the porch to look. As she did, they both pulled guns, she said, and told her to get back in the house. Wamsley also carried a piece of lead pipe, she said.

As the three entered the house, she called for her husband, who was already standing when they entered the living room.

The two men told the Dalys to "turn around and face the wall," she said.

They turned, she said, and both faced windows looking out on Connecticut Street.

Because of the previous incidents of vandalism, she had picked up the nervous habit of pulling the curtain aside to look out, she told the court. That night, facing the window, she pulled the curtain.

"Get away from the window," one of the men shouted, ordering her and her husband into the dining room.

Standing near the bassinet containing their child, they were asked for money.

Mrs. Daly said her husband told the men they didn't have any money. With that, "Wamsley lashed out with his lead pipe and cracked my husband across the face. He fell on the baby's bassinet, broke it and then fell to the floor."

She cried out to the men, "We have two tiny babies," and they assured her the children would not be hurt, she said.

Remembering that she had about $5 for grocery money in a small change purse in the kitchen, she testified, she went to the kitchen to get it, accompanied by Wamsley. As she handed him the money, she heard a shot in the dining room.

"Oh, my God," she told the court, "I just stood there screaming, 'Oh, my God.' I was afraid to move."

As the men fled the house, she went to the dining room to find her husband shot. She called an ambulance. "The number was handy because we were afraid of something like this happening," she said.

Daly was taken to San Francisco General Hospital where he died 12 days later.

In a move that surprised even Merle, Mrs. Daly, who saw Thurber in person for the first time since the murder when she took the stand yesterday, told the court she had seen him before.

After she had described how the tires on her husband's car had been slashed, and their home twice firebombed, Merle asked if there had been any other unusual incidents prior to July 4.

"Yes," she answered quietly, "One day I saw Mr. Thurber. He was parked in front of my house."

She said Thurber and another man whom she couldn't see very well, sat in a car parked across the street from the Daly home for about an hour. "They just sat there. They never got out of the car," she said.

In cross-examining, Cohn asked her why she had not mentioned the two men in her testimony to the grand jury. She said she was still in a state of shock, "having seen my husband murdered."

She said she told police about five weeks ago that the man might have been Thurber, but she wasn't certain of it until she saw him yesterday.

Cohn asked if she had told her husband or the police about the two men in the car, and she said no. She explained that when she and her husband filed police reports on the tire slashing and firebombs, police had told them there wasn't much they could do unless they could catch someone in an act of vandalism.

"What could I have told the police other than there were two men sitting across the street?" she asked.

"I had no idea of what he was contemplating at the time" she said in a lowered voice, "or I certainly would have called the police."

Judge Moor sustained Cohn's objection and the sentence was stricken from the record.

Early yesterday, Or. Robert R. Wright, autopsy surgeon for the San Francisco Coroner's office, said that he performed an autopsy on Daly's body July 16 and that death was caused by complications resulting from a gunshot wound.

man, who said his experience selling noisy heavy equipment led him to estimate that completely soundproofing the building would cost $100,000.

"The best way to solve the sound problem," he said, "is not to let it happen." The audience again applauded.

Planning Commissioner Paul E. Rosenthal then told the council he voted for the restaurant because he felt the planning commission had control over it.

"We imposed some exceedingly stringent conditions. If they can't achieve them, they're out of business," he said.

Mrs. Alan F. Kappelman, representing the Outdoor Art Club, read a resolution of the club board opposing the restaurant. Another woman, Zeda Philps of 100 Lovell Avenue, said she liked rock music — "I go to the Fillmore in San Francisco" — but opposed the restaurant "because of the capacity. It will draw outsiders into our town and change the intimate atmosphere of Mill Valley."

After a five-minute recess, the council reconvened and councilman Edward J. Boessenecker immediately moved that the council uphold the appeal and deny the application.

"I find the proposed use is incompatible with Mill Valley," he said. "It's in too large scale, it's detrimental to the community and it would create undue noise."

His motion was seconded by Jean S. Barnard, and on a roll call vote, the council voted 4-0, Andresen abstaining, to uphold the appeal and deny the permit.

SEC Chairman Will Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hamer H. Budge resigned Friday as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

The White House said President Nixon accepted Budge's resignation but asked him to stay on the job through the current congressional session.

In his letter, Budge noted he had been an SEC commissioner for 6 1-2 years. "The time seems appropriate," to resign, he said.

Budge was a House member before being appointed to the SEC. Nixon named him chairman of the regulatory agency.

Attack Tied To Ladar's Resignation

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Jerrold M. Ladar, chief of the criminal division in the U. S. attorney's office here, resigned on his own initiative Nov. 2 after a longtime friend was implacated in a rape case, Ladar's superior said today.

Ladar, a resident of Mill Valley and trustee of the Tamalpais High School District, had previously announced he would enter private practice next January.

San Francisco Police Inspector Don Kennealy stressed today that Ladar's only action with the rape case "was getting an attorney and raising bail" for San Francisco jeweler Jerry Plotkin, accused of participating in the mass rape.

Three other men still are sought in the alleged rape of a 23-year-old woman in Plotkin's apartment, police said. The woman said she was forced into a car she later identified as Plotkin's, taken to his apartment and kept overnight, on Oct. 24.

The transmitter in Plotkin's car bore a tag that said "U. S. Attorney's office" and gave Ladar's office address.

Inspector Kennealy said that Ladar told him and other investigators that Plotkin had the equipment because his apartment was used in federal security and narcotics investigations.

Ladar denied he ever said that, according to San Francisco newspapers. He was not available today when called by the Independent-Journal.

U. S. Attorney James L. Browning said Ladar told him he had sold the equipment to Plotkin a week before the alleged rape, but had neglected to remove the name tag. Browning said the equipment was Ladar's personal property.

Browning refused to comment on the differences between what police said and Ladar said about the matter.

CHINA

family of nations, stressed anew President Nixon's desire and said the President is for better relations with Peking working toward a point "where we can begin establishing communications with China."

In the U.N. debate Albanian Deputy Foreign Minister Halim Budo made a pox-on-both-your-houses speech in which he charged collusion between the United States and the Soviet Union to rule the world and demanded Red China's admission. Albania has long acted as Peking's voice in the U.N.

Canadian Ambassador Yvon Beaulne underlined Canada's recent recognition of Peking by announcing his delegation would vote for its seating in the General Assembly. But he also said he supported the U.S.-backed move to have the issue declared an "Important Question" that requires a two-thirds majority in the vote next week on China's admission.

In Moscow, the Soviets spoke up diplomatically on behalf of Communist Chinese entry as sole representative of China.

"The formula of the two Chinas is untenable and has no chance of success," said a Soviet commentary on the upcoming seating vote, circulated by the Tass news agency.

"This formula is needed by the Americans as a backstage maneuver to try and split the supporters (of Communist Chinese entry) . . .

"As far as the Soviet Union is concerned, it has always come out in the United Nations for restoring in full the rights of the Chinese People's Republic which alone can represent the Chinese people".

he came from. The Soviet leader said he was from the Ukraine and added the only cities he had visited in the United States were New York and Washington. According to Ziegler, Nixon replied by recalling his own visit to Moscow and said it was not typical of the Soviet Union any more than New York or Washington are of the United States.

The two leaders spoke for 11 minutes, during which time Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi joined them with the laughing comment, "Can a smaller country get in on the conversation before the two big countries have made all the decisions?"

der them if appropriate in rare cases.

The policy instead favored uses including camping, picnicking, sightseeing, nature study, hiking and horseback riding. Bonnicksen said the policy "represents this commission's concern for its stewardship of almost 700,000 acres of irreplaceable state park lands."

He warned that the parks already were "very seriously endangered" by recreational de velopment inconsistent with park purposes. "It's time for this commission to face squarely the need to preserve these parks for this generation's children, and for their children's children," Bonnicksen declared.

He was applauded by most of the 40 persons in the audience. About a dozen persons rose to urge adoption of Bonnicksen's policy. Several letters and telegrams, including one from the Marin Conservation League, also supported it.

Joseph F. Morrison of San Rafael, an investor, said the policy would "tend to minimize such things" as restaurants and the hotel planned for Angel Island. "I think the state parks are great, and I want to see them kept that way," he declared.

Mott, visibly reddening at Morrison's remarks, insisted that criticism of his staff's plans for park development was "a bit unfair — our staff has always been concerned about resources."

Walter R. Briggs of Berkeley, a forester, agitated Mott even more when he said that "the object of parks is not to provide carnival-like areas." Mott accused him of "inflammatory language," but Briggs insisted that this view of future plans by Mott's staff was held by "professional foresters and geologists and range managers."

Kenneth Sandersen of Berkeley cautioned that once parks are invaded by mechanical, electrical and motorized development, "you've blown it." Parks like Angel Island, he said, were especially threatened because they were in the middle of booming populaion areas. "The thing most needed near population areas is natural areas," he said.

If there is a need for recreational development, Sandersen predicted, private developers will meet that need outside state lands.

In other business, Mott reported that it will cost from $50,000 to $60,000 to rebuild the portion of Fort Ross lost in a recent fire, "depending on contributions." He said that the cause of the disaster still has not been determined.

Petaluman Found Lying On Sidewalk

John Davidson, 31, of 714 Keokuk Street, Petaluma, was found lying on the sidewalk in front of Sam's Tavern, 171 Petaluma Boulevard North, yesterday at 5:30 p.m. He was reported in good condition at Petaluma Boulevard North, Wednesday at 5:30 p.m.

He was reported in good condition yesterday at Petaluma General Hospital with a possible concussion. Police said Davidson had apparently been involved in a brawl, but would not explain how the injury occurred.

Book On Marijuana Pulled From Shelves

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—A book describing marijuana-smoking as "simply grand" was pulled from the shelves of a junior high school library after parents complained.

The book, entitled "Pot, a Handbook on Marijuana," is not on a state-approved list, and Gov. Lester Maddox, when informed of the incident, said "I have chewed the state Board of Education three or four times for permitting such books."

Winning Idea?

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)— Billy Joe Clegg, a 42-year-old salesman, is forming his own political party and plans to campaign for the White House in 1972 in the "Clegg formula." The plan involves ending the Vietnam War by bringing draft-age South Vietnamese men to the United States. "Train then to fight and while they are in America let them see democracy in action", Clegg said in a newspaper advertisement. "I really can't lose. If they think I'm crazy, the state will rehabilitate me."

No Ordinary Tourists, They Paint The World

ROME (AP) — InIndia, they had to push people away from their car to get through crowded streets. In Afghanistan, they were run down by a speeding bus and almost arrested. Here in Rome they slept below the Pope's window in St. Peter's.

In March, 1969, 50-year-old Cyril Whiteoak and his wife, Martha, set out from Auckland, New Zealand, to drive around the world. With their Hillman camper bus, a lot of courage and ingenuity, and quite a bit of luck, they reached Rome 14 months later—the halfway mark in a 40,000-mile journey.

The Whiteoaks are not mere tourists out to see the world. They are artists out to paint it.

Cyril's art studio in Auckland was a Hillman bus equipped with a large drafting table and his artists supplies. He saved time by working "on location," mostly for architects.

Martha was known for a different form of art: she cards, spins and weaves her own wool. The result is exquisite handmade material which she either sells or uses to make clothes for herslef and her husband.

When they had saved enough money for their trip, the Whiteoaks fitted the camper with a small kitchen and a folding bed, a spare tire, 12 gallons of water, 90 pounds of honey, dried vegetables, powdered milk and fruit cakes.

At the half way point they were still eating the bread Martha baked 14 months earlier.

The Whiteoaks are both vegetarians, which has solved some of the food problems, and sheer ingenuity has solved many others. In place of a washing machine, Martha puts dirty clothes in a plastic bucket with hot water and soap and puts the lid on. After a few hours of driving, the motion of the camper has swished the clothes clean.

"I rinse them in waterfalls or fountains where the village women do their washing," Martha said. "They dry inside the camper as we drive."

She has even invented a pressure cooker. "We slice our vegetables very thin and put them in a large thermos bottle with boiling water. The water stays very hot and cooks the vegetables, so by the time we stop at noon, lunch has cooked itself."

Once when there was no gas for the stove, Martha turned her iron upside down and cooked on it. Such ingenuity comes in handy, for the Whiteoaks are on a strict budget, due to currency restrictions.

Both Cyril and Martha have made sketches and watercolor paintings throughout their trip. Cyril has concentrated on the intricate detail of monuments, strange dwellings and boats, while Martha has sought to capture on canvas the feeling of a place and of its people.

There have been many adventures on their voyage, and some have been less than pleasant. One occurred in Kabul, Afghanistan, when Cyril was painting the rug sellers' market along the river, and a policeman walked up to him and sai, "I want you."

"What for?" Cyril asked.

"You come," he replied, and three or four other policemen came up. Soon the crowd began to say, "You must go."

"When we got to the police station—a dark little place—the police chief seemed surprised to see us," Cyril said. "I showed him the painting and asked if it was all right to do that painting, and he said, 'Oh, yes, it's all right.' And he let us go. We never did learn why we were stopped."

In India, they heard stories of tourists being raped and murdered and Cyril has told never to leave his wife alone. Most of the time, they tried to stay in Dak houses, which are run by the government. By parking their bus inside the compound, they felt safe for the night.

But about 100 miles from the Agra, they stopped at a Dak house that had no other guests. Before they knew it, the custodian had locked up the house and left them alone in the yard.

"There were no lights," Martha remembered, "and it was awfully quiet. I was a little scared until I looked outside the bus door. There, lying right beside our door, were two big dogs, guarding us. They stayed there all night, and I felt much safer."

Not all of their experiences have been dangerous or unpleasant. In Greece, they tried to buy goat's milk. It's one of Martha's favorite memories.

"Cyril went up to a man who had several cans of milk. Since he didn't speak Greenk, he put his fingers to his forehead like the horns of a goat, and he said 'Baa aaa?'

"No," the man said, "Moo ooo. We never did get our goat's milk."

officer, but the defense promptly had him removed by using its one peremptory challenge, which did not require an explanation fo the judge.

The prosecution used its one peremptory challenge to remove Maj. Hugh D. Farmer, who had stated he was opposed to capital punishment.

There must be at least five and no more than ten officers on a court-martial board. The first three jurors were selected from a nine-member venire. Kennedy then called in seven more officers to be seated on a second panel of prospective jurors.

The judge said the jury would be completed in time for Calley's trial to start on schedule Monday. He indicated a Saturday session would be used to accomplish this.

Maj. Robert E. Ehrhardt Sr. was one of the six members of the initial panel rejected by the judge following challenges.

Ehrhardt said he thought the Army made a "mistake" bringing Calley to trial, although he added that he would judge the case on its merits.

"I have been in combat, not only in Vietnam, but also in Korea," said Ehrhardt. "I know the stress and strain on the soldier. I have seen some of the things the Viet Cong have done to the people they are supposed to be liberating."

The prosecution successfully challenged Ehrhardt's presence on the jury.

In accepting Welch and Ford for the jury, Kennedy rejected defense challenges resulting from the officers' statements that they had seen news accounts of the alleged massacre before they had been named to the court-martial panel.

BESSIE BRADDOCK

LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND (UPI) — Former Labor Party MP Bessie Braddock died Friday in Liverpool. She was 71.

From 1945 to 1969, she was Britain's most controversial woman member of Parliament where she crusaded for and won significant reforms in housing and in care for the mentally ill.

She was called "Battling Bessie" in London but in Liverpool where she never lost an election in 39 years, they called her "Good Queen Bessie" and honored her as the first Freewoman of Liverpool this year following her retirement.

Funeral for Victor Jensen, 78, a retired Petaluma poultry rancher, will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Sorensen Funeral Home, Petaluma. Private burial will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

Jensen was found dead Wednesday at his home at 410 Fair Avenue. The Sonoma County Coroners Office said he died of apparently natural causes.

Jensen was born in Cedar Falls, Iowa, and moved to Petaluma as a child. He worked as a truck driver for Kamm and Hedges Lumber, Vonsen Feed Mill and Poultry Producers Inc. until 1945 when he purchased the poultry ranch. Jensen retired in 1960.

the Sausalito ferryboat terminal at this location."

The ferryboat system, already approved by bridge district directors, calls for purchase of a second vessel for the Sausalito service.

Luehring conceded that Sausalito officials, until recently, were unwilling to even consider a permanent terminal in central Sausalito. He said that getting the city to accept such a site will require "much negotiation."

Supervisor Michael Wornum commented that city officials now have "more confidence in our ferry operation."

Spaulding's recommendation for the central terminal said it would be far more practical because it would eliminate the cost of operating many feeder buses and because more passengers would be within easy walking distance of the terminal.

CLEANING A RIVER

The Kennedy, a U.S. Corps of Engineers dredging boat, slowly moves along the Mississippi River near the St. Louis riverfront. The Kennedy is a steam powered, sternwheeled, paddle boat, one of the few of its kind still in operation. It trails a long pipe, supported by small barges, to pump the silt and sludge dredged from the river channel off to the side. (UPI Telephoto)

Research Completed On Frogs In Space

MOUNTAIN VIEW (UPI)—Space agency scientists said today they have completed all their planned research projects on two bullfrogs blasted into orbit around the earth earlier this week.

Spokesmen for NASA's Ames Research Center, which is directing the experiment, said the projects were completed during the frogs' first 72 hours in orbit but that several "bonus" experiments will be performed during the next few days.

The purpose of the basic science experiments is to determine how sensory systems work. Electrodes were attached to the frogs' inner ears, the nerves leading to the brain and the brains themselves. they sent signals back to earth as the spacecraft flew in weightlessness or was revolved at 50 revolutions a minute to create a light artificial gravity.

Gravity activates the otoliths—tiny hairlike objects in the middle ear which tell the brain whether an animal is off-balance. In the weightlessness of space, the otoliths cease to function. By switching gravity on and off, scientists hoped to learn how one sensory system operates.

Dr. Torquato Gualterroti, a former Ames researcher now at the University of Milan in Italy, designed the project. Its findings are expected to extend to other sensory systems, including those of man.

The experiment, described as basic scientific research possible only in the weightlessness of space, cost $4.66 million.

Field Says 'Anarchy' Ad Aided Tunney

STANFORD (UPI)—The famous "anarchy" advertisement put out by Sen. George Murphy's forces the day before the election helped elect John Tunney, pollster Mervin Field said Wednesday night.

Field told a Stanford audience the entire last-minute flurry of Republican support for Murphy, including President Nixon's visit and the furor over a rock-throwing demonstration against Nixon in San Jose, was "counterproductive" and added up to a "disastrous loss."

"As a result, Tunney won by more than he should," Field said. "Now we'll see a lot of foolishness in the media linking Tunney with the late John F. Kennedy. Blame it on Murphy, because Tunney did better than he should have."

Field said one of his polls showed Murphy 6 points behind Tunney on the Thursday that President Nixon appeared in San Jose. Four days later, on the Monday preceding the election, he was 12 points behind.

That was the day Murphy's forces put full-page ads in newspapers around the state claiming the election the next day was a choice between "anarchy or law and order."

"The whole episode, including the President's endorsement, was counterproductive and turned into a disastrous loss," Field said.

Field said the late-minute effort for Murphy also proved once again that when a candidate reaches a certain level of public exposure, any more is harmful.

Field said Nixon's election eve national television appearance was also a mistake.

He said Sen. Edmund Muskie, who appeared for the Democrats the same night, came off so much better.

"If you had taken a controlled group of voters who had never seen either personality before, told them one was the county sheriff and the other the president of the United States, you would have had a 75-25 split in favor of Muskie," Field said.

Field said Wilson Riles' defeat of State Education Superintendent Max Rafferty was the most dramatic switch in voter preferences during a campaign he had seen in 25 years of polling.

Riles came from 25 points behind Rafferty to 1 per cent ahead between June and November, Field said, and finally won going away.

Part of Rafferty's defeat was the result of bitterness by moderate Republicans who had not forgotten Rafferty's 1968 primary campaign which defeated Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel in 1968, Field said. But before the campaign was over, he said, even Reagan-Murphy conservatives came into the Riles camp.

COLLEGE BUILDING BURNED

Firemen in El Cajon, Ca., mop up the blaze that destroyed an estimated 60 per cent of Grossmont College's fine arts building early yesterday. The fire also burned numerous paintings, sculptures and other art projects.

Bel Marin Keys Studies Creek Lock

The Bel Marin Keys Community Service District board last night decided to investigate the feasibility of placing a lock at the mouth of Novato Creek, said secretary Betty L. Zoeller.

The board will write John A. Blum and Associates of San Francisco, marine engineers, asking if such a project is feasible, the estimated cost and time to install, she said.

The lock would be automatic and could be operated by boat owners going in and out of the lagoon and creek at all times, she said. It would maintain a uniform water level in the lagoon and creek. The lock could be opened wide during periods of excessive runoff in the creek.

This was just a letter of inquiry and there is no estimate on the cost of a study or the work, she said.

The board voted to give the Bel Marin Keys Yacht Club $750 for a larger deck on the pavilion which the yacht club is enlarging, she said.

$6,000 Robbery By Masked Gunmen

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Two masked robbers, one carrying a shotgun and the other a pistol, walked in on an informal dinner for 17 Southern California lawyers at a country club here Thursday night and walked off with over $6,000 in cash, checks and jewelry.

Legion, City Explore Rec Center Venture

Talk of cooperation between the American Legion and the City of San Rafael to build a community recreation center was revived at last night's meeting of the city parks and recreation commission.

Members of the Legion's Wilkins Post No. 37 and city officials have discussed the idea for five years, but with no result.

No actual cash figure was discussed, McCown said today, but the city's unsuccessful attempts to finance a $300,000 center with a bond issue, and previous Legion offers were reviewed.

Fred Jensen, city councilman and commission member, moved successfully that the commission ask McCown and Mayor C. Paul Bettini to set up a small committee representing the council, the commission and the Legion post to explore the proposed cooperation.

Andrew J. Snyker, director of parks and recreation, also told the commission about the city's fall recreation program which will open Nov. 24. He noted that the program has been cut back from former years, because the San Rafael Board of Education has refused to contribute $24,000 to the program.

Snyder said the city will have fewer hired recreation leaders, will have programs for fewer children and must charge a fee for after-school programs, as well as for nonresident participants in any of the recreation programs, because of the withholding of the school funds.

Marin Students In Thoreau Play

Two Marin County drama students at Fresno State College have roles in "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," now playing at the campus.

Daniel T. Husak, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Husak of 100 Bayo Vista, San Rafael, is John in the drama, based on the jailing of Henry David Thoreau for refusing to pay taxes on the grounds that the Mexican War was unjust. Husak is a junior.

Judith A. Rude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Rude of 522 Palm Avenue, Kentfield, has the role of Lybian. She is a senior.

Suspect Booked On Stolen Goods

A Novato man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of possessing and selling stolen property, police reported.

Lawrence A. Sunstrom, 18, of 1001 Eighth Street, was booked into Marin County Jail with bail set at $1,000. He was scheduled to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported that Sundstrom allegedly sold on Oct. 2 a .22-caliber revolver which had been reported stolen in Marin county.

Bitter Resignation In Teachers' Pay Dispute

Gregg W. De Gear, resigned last week as president of the Novato Teachers Association in a bitter letter which he read before the meeting of the teachers representative council.

De Gear blamed the "old guard" who have always played it safe with their dealing with the district office. He said that in the past two weeks, when the pressure of a sanctions alert was given the board, he saw a retreat of the teachers from this position.

"Having failed to follow through, we will never know how far the school board could have been moved," De Gear wrote.

He said that he was too assertive to continue to be the president and could not capitulate on the district as the others have done.

Vice President John Enders took over the meeting. It was not known today whether the NTA would have to call a special election for a new president, or whether Enders could serve out the term of De Gear.

The Novato teachers and the district board were only one-half of one per cent apart today in their salary dispute but other differences remained to be ironed out.

The representative council of the Novato Teachers Association has approved dropping the teacher salary increase demands from 8.5 to 6.5 per cent, De Gear reported yesterday. The board has held firm on a 6 per cent increase.

Other points of difference between the teachers and board include special services pay, substitute pay and more teachers at San Jose Junior High School and fourth grade, he said.

The representative council was meeting again today to discuss these differences, De Gear said.

"When the negotiating council and the administration reach an agreement, it will have to be ratified by the entire NTA membership," he said. It would also have to be approved by the school board.

Only after that would the NTA lift the sanctions alert. It has not applied the sanctions because some progress has been made in negotiations, he said. The sanctions alert will remain until an agreement has been reached, he said.

Patrolman, Not Chief

Judy Fink of Novato, owner of one of six sailboats stolen in Greenbrae, said today that she complained about the theft to Patrolman Eugene Adrian, not to Larkspur Police Capt. Charles J. Mattos. It was Adrian, she said, who "almost laughed at me" rather than Mattos, as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

I-J Guard Testifies Of Harassment

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A security guard at the San Rafael Independent-Journal newspaper office testified Thursday that he was harassed and followed while driving a newsprint truck to San Jose for the struck newspaper.

Robert Folland, who worked for the firm providing security for the newspaper, said that a truck from Garden City Truckers delivered newsprint to the newspaper plant but the driver did not want to return the truck to San Jose because he said he had been threatened.

Folland testified in U.S. District Court that he himself drove the truck and was harassed and followed by two cars.

Two other witnesses testified at the contempt proceedings brought by the National Labor Relations Board against three unions.

They were San Rafael Police officer R. Maynard and John Henry, security officer for Lucky stores. Both testified as to observing picketing at food stores during the period the NLRB alleges the unions violated court orders against secondary boycotts.

Colvin Appointed To San Francisco Bench

Morton R. Colvin, longtime Marin resident and chairman of the state Workmen's Compensation Board, today was appointed a judge of San Francisco Superior Court by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Colvin resides at 1366 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, but said he maintains a second residence in St. Francis Woods in San Francisco, which is his voting address. He said "plans are indefinite as yet" on whether to continue the two residences on taking over the judgeship.

The appointment is to fill a vacancy on the San Francisco Superior Court bench. Colvin's name will be submitted to the electorate for confirmation in 1972.

Colvin has been in state employ since 1958, and for a decade previous to that practiced law in San Rafael.

He became law enforcement coordinator for the state Division of Forestry in 1958, and two years later became an attorney for the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department. In 1962 he was appointed a board referee for the Workmen's Compensation Board, and in 1967 was named chairman of that board by Governor Reagan.

He has been active in the Republican party and served as a member of the Marin County Republican Central Committee until resigning last year.

Marin City Plans Program Revision

The Marin City Council, trying to keep control of about $50,000 in federal planning funds, last night authorized its chairman and manager to prepare a plan for revising the planning program, Chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr. reported.

Banks said he and manager Jack Williams will spearhead efforts to have a new plan ready by Nov. 24, date when Marin County supervisors will decide whether the Marin City program should be terminated.

Kansas Voids Hippie's Election

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI)—An opinion by the attorney general of Kansas has voided the election of hippie Phillip Hill as justice of the peace.

Hill, who says he supports himself mainly by peddling dope, was elected Nov. 3, but the attorney general's ruling Thursday interpreted a 1968 law as saying the office has been abolished in certain cities, including Lawrence.

Hill said he plans to take the matter to court—"to the State Supreme Court, maybe."

This new car is the best reason not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle.

In a year when every car maker seems to be giving you one reason or another not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle, it might be a good idea to listen to the best reason:

Volkswagen's Super Beetle.

It has almost twice the luggage space as the Beetle of yesteryear.

It has a longer-lasting, more powerful engine.

It has a new suspension system for a smoother ride.

It has a flow-through ventilation system to bring in fresh air when the windows are closed.

The interior is, to be honest, much nicer.

The floor, for example, is fully carpeted.

In all, it has 89 things you could never find on a Beetle.

So of all the claims you'll hear this year by car makers that their cars are "better than a Beetle," there's only one car maker with 25 years experience in small cars to back it up.

Volkswagen.

Go-Ahead Given Sewage District

Stymied by Tiburon Sanitary District and the City of Belvedere in its plan to enter the sewage treatment business, the Marin Municipal Water District started over without them yesterday.

The district board passed a resolution of intent to form Improvement District A to provide sewage facilities for all communities draining into Richardson Bay except Belvedere and that portion of Tiburon served by the Tiburon Sanitary District.

No other change was made in the plan previously blocked by the Tiburon Peninsula dissidents.

The plan presented by Dr. William A. Hargreaves of the Tamalpais Community Services District calls for $190,000 to "evolve a long-term plan for the treatment, reclamation and disposal of waste water in the Southern Marin area."

Hargreaves is president of an advisory committee appointed by the water board and made up of representativse of the sanitary districts included in the proposed improvement district.

Of the advisory committees' new proposal, district General Mgr. William R. Seeger said, "In reviewing the proposed work outline I find it completely satisfactory and workable and see no reason why it, in its entirety, cannot be substituted for the one that we had previously recommended."

The board agreed unanimously and set a hearing on the matter for Dec. 10 since all members cannot be present on the regularly scheduled day, Dec. 9.

Prior to Dec. 10 — which Seeger hoped will end seven months of discussion — every affected community services district must endorse formation of the improvement district and agree to a joint powers agreement with the water district, Seeger said.

Hargreaves promised to get the required agreements and asked the board to set up a three-member committee to select a project manager for the pre-engineering study.

The committee set up by the water board is to consist of Seeger, a board member and an advisory committee member, Cyril Hansen.

The Tiburon Sanitary District board shied away from the improvement district because it opposes further studies. Its secretary, Robert A. Sterling said in August that three studies have already been performed and called the proposed pre-engineering study a "step backward."

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

TAMPERS — Awarded a $2,649 contract to John M. Cole Company of Redwood City for three ram tampers for compacting soil and a $4,509 contract to I. R. Equipment Corp. of Oakland for one vibratory tamper.

GRADING — Approved $5,196 contract for grading work needed for a new million-gallon water tank at the entrance to Tennessee Valley.. The contract went to Robert Mulloy Excavating and Grading Contractor.

FISHING — Agreed to allow fishing year round in district lakes in accordance with state law.

APPRAISAL — Hired Roy Farrington Jones of Farrington Jones and Co. for $450 to appraise land needed for the Bret Harte tank enlargement.

MARINCELLO FEE — Learned that Gulf Oil Corp. and Frouge Corp. have agreed to pay the Marincello annexation fee of $51,990 after the board asked the county to place the bill on the tax role.

RETIREMENT PLAN — Put over to the Nov. 25 meeting so that comparison could be made of private industry discussion of a new employee retirement plan that would increase retirement benefits by the amount of Social Security. It would add $76,000 to the present district cost of $177,739.

Justice Department Plans More Dialogue On Campuses

Department officials already have visited six campuses in a series of discussions with students "to improve communications through an exchange of information and views."

Mitchell began ordering the visits after he held several personal discussions in his office with students last spring following campus violence.

Mitchell has indicated he personally would visit a campus but the Justice Department Information Office said he merely intends to substitute at one of the scheduled visits as time permits.

The visits are:

Man Pleads Innocent To Statutory Rape

Reza M. Zolfaghari, 25-year-old Iranian student who lives in Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of statutory rape. A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 24.

Zolfaghari was arrested after he allegedly took a hitchhiker into his home and attacked her on Nov. 5.

Two Hunting Clubs Given The Boot

The Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday revoked the leases of two hunting clubs which rent about one-third of the district's 17,000 acres for $975 per year.

Directors voted 3-1 to give the Big Trees Hunting Club and the Redwood Gun Club 30 days to vacate the premises each has leased from the district since 1948. The leases pre-date district takeover in 1946, however.

Lame duck director Leo L. Stanley cast the only no vote. William A. Marcus left before the issue came up.

"I don't think it is fair to kick them out right now because somebody doesn't like somebody else," Stanley said.

However, board President Robert G. Anderson disagreed. "I strongly think the time has come to give all people use of water district lands," he said. The combined membership of the clubs which lease a total of $5,850 acres is restricted to 20 persons.

Director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. expressed worry about the danger of a riding and hiking trail now running through the leased hunting lands.

Directors also considered requesting that the state Department of Fish and Game declare the area a "game refuge," but decided against it since guns are not allowed on unleased water district land in any case, according to the district's attorney Robert W. Elliott.

Big Trees Camp has leased 5,000 acres in Lagunitas Canyon since 1948 for $625 a year. Redwood has leased 850 acres below Alpine Lake for $350 per year since 1954 and for $250 for the preceding six years.

The Big Trees lease was to run until 1973 and the Redwood lease until February, but each had a provision allowing the district to cancel them of 30 days notice.

The hunting club leases came before the board on the coattails of the Meadow Club controversy. On Oct. 29 the board hiked the rate for the exclusive golf club from $480 to $8,400 and served notice the hunting clubs would lose their leases.

General Services Aid Is Promoted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Chief Deputy Director Donald G. Livingston of the State General Services Department was promoted by Gov. Ronald Reagan Thursday to assistant secretary of the State Agriculture and Services Agency.

A spokesman for Reagan said Livingston's replacement would be named later. His new salary will be $27,200 a year.

Livingston, 32, a Republican from Carmichael, served as chief of the Division of Consumer Affairs before being appointed to the general services post.

In his new position, the governor's spokesman said, Livingston will assist Earl Coke in the overall supervision of the 12 departments in the agency, including cabinet functions in the Reagan administration.

Water District Directors Fire Back At Phoenix Lake Critics

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District lashed out yesterday at lay and professional critics of the district and took the stand that the district has not harmed the ecology of Phoenix Lake.

Directors absolved the district of blame after hearing a favorable report on its sludge disposal method from William R. Seeger, the district's general manager.

Seeger said the report prepared by the district staff showed that "sludge disposal causes only insignificant effect to the natural environment at Phoenix Lake."

Seeger presented cost estimates of other methods of disposal than by dumping sludge from the Bon Tempe plant into Phoenix Lake.

Alternate methods — that might be required for "esthetic" reasons, Seeger said — include building treatment beds for the chemical bearing sludge and trucking it away. Cost estimates were $80,000 to $97,000 capital outlay with operational costs up to $9,700 per year.

The report came in response to charges by Kentfield ecology enthusiast and the state Department of Fish and Game that the water treatment leftovers from Bon Tempe filtration plant have polluted the lake.

Dan K. Campbell of Kentfield and the Fish and Game agency complained to the San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board and that body slapped a ban on further dumping on the district.

The water quality staff told the water district to begin "positive containment" before Sunday, but gave no indication what the phrase means pending talks with the district.

Directors scolded the water quality control staff for acting before asking for the facts, criticized the press for printing "misinformation" and claimed the report takes the district off the hook.

"As far as I am concerned, the report of staff exonerates us," said director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. who was joined in praise of the report by the other directors.

President Robert G. Anderson said, "I am positive a lot of accuracy has gone into it," and added, "It is unfortunate that some individuals in the water quality control board took off without even a report to look at."

Director Dr. Leo L. Stanley said "It seems to me this whole thing has been very unfair to the water district. It has very dire results for the water district. I want to say I think it is very unfair and unjustifiable."

Martinelli questioned whether the water quality board might not give the district a clean bill of health after studying the report.

"It could be, but what was good 12 years ago might not be today," Seeger said .

Board member-elect Eugene A. Miller suggested a workshop involving water quality, fish and game, Campbell and whoever else wishes to participate. Seeger promised to set it up to review the report.

The water district reported:

Bon Tempe sludge is not toxic in Phoenix Lake; 12 years of dumping —terminated Oct. 8 in favor of landspreading on the hill above the lake —has affected only 1 per cent of the capacity and characteristics of the lake; and erosion from district opeartions has not been a "detrimental factor" to the lake.

All the findings read by Seeger yesterday have been disputed by the Department of Fish and Game.

The water district report stated that, "sludge is not toxic based upon the definition of toxic as: poisonous."

However, Seeger told the board nothing will grow in sludge because there are no nutrients in it.

Seeger said the district's new practice of spreading the fill on the landslide scar will not harm the hillside or the lake, but said it is not a long-term solution to the dumping problem.

He said the district must find an alternate to spreading the substance in drying beds since the district's San Geronimo plant now uses three acres for treatment of sludge and its capacity is to be doubled. "You haven't got enough land anymore," he said.

He claimed that dumping in the 1 per cent of the lake is less damaging environmentally than using acres of land.

Seeger said a centrifuge process may provide the solution, and said some method other than sludge beds will be used in the San Geronimo expansion planned for 1971-72.

Fish and Game recommended that Bon Tempe sludge "be deposited in a pond or basin, allowed to dry and, if conditions warrant, be trucked away to a permanent disposal site."

More Exempt On Tax Filing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An additional five million low income Americans will not have to file income tax returns next year, according to Treasury Department regulations announced Thursday.

The regulations, carrying out provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1969, provide higher limits on the amount of money a person may make before he must file a tax return.

The new limits are $1,700 a year for single persons, $2,300 for a married couple or a single person over age 65, $2,900 for a married couple where one spouse is 65 or older, and $3,500 when both husband and wife are at least 65. Previously the limits were $600 a year or $1,200 a year for persons aged 65 or over.

Shift To Juvenile Job Is Denied

Capt. William F. Johansen, head of the Tiburon sheriff's substation, yesterday denied reports that he has been named head of the Juvenile Bureau of the Marin Sheriff's Department, but a Tiburon official confirmed them.

Johansen said reports of the reassignment in the Ebb Tide, a weekly newspaper, were the result of "a mixup in communication." He did acknowledge that Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos is reorganizing the department and had said he might need Johansen in some other capacity.

Tiburon City Mgr. Lawrence D. Rose, however, said Mountanos approached him three weeks ago and said he may need Johansen as juvenile bureau chief.

Rose said he granted his "reluctant permission" for the move and understood Johansen would assume his new duties Monday. Sgt. Angelo J. Mecchi, now second in command in Tiburon, will take over there, Rose said.

Sheriff Mountanos said today that his department is being reorganized since Harvey Teague, former chief of the bureau, was made a captain but nothing definite had been done yet to fill the juvenile post.

Innocent Plea To Drug Sale

Robert Doyle Fuller, 20, of 208 San Felipe Way, Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of selling $10 worth of methamphetamine on Sept. 16.

A preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday.

Fuller was arrested yesterday when he appeared in court on another matter and a warrant was served on him which said that he had sold the speed in the presence of an undercover officer in Novato.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. released Fuller without bail on the condition that he live with his parents and be home each night by 9 p.m.

No Charges Filed

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Susan Graham, 21, of 9 Mendocino Lane, Novato, who had been arrested Saturday on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs for sale.

New Larkspur Open Space Plan Is Asked

Larkspur needs a complete master plan for open space and recreation, the Larskpur planning and park and recreation commissions, meeting in joint session, decided last night.

According to Harlan Barry, recreation director, the commissions voted to recommend to the city council that the Berkeley planning firm of Arbegast and Newton be directed to prepare such a plan which would tie into Larkspur's general plan.

If the council approves, Barry said the park and recreation plan could probably be completed by next summer. It would show what areas in Larskpur should be set aside for open space and formal parks.

If the plan is included in the city's general plan, Barry said the city could ask each future subdivider to provide either a park or funds to be used for a community park.

He said the recreation plan would include hiking trails and bicycle paths and would also show the needs of specific recreational areas to help the city decide, for example, whether a piece of land should be used for a tot lot or a community park.

Barry said the plan will also take into account recreational areas around Larkspur, such as Mount Tamalpais, to provide guidance so that complementary, rather than duplicate, recreational areas are developed in the city.

The commissioners also heard a report from Barry that the city is seeking an easement along property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vincilione, on Magnolia Avenue from Doherty Drive to Bon Air Road. If granted, he said the easement would tie paths in Larkspur to a proposed county bicycle path from Bon Air Bridge to College of Marin.

The parks commissioners directed Barry to contact Corte Madera officials to work toward synchronization of bicycle paths between both towns.

They approved and agreed to send to the city council a recommendation that the city, in conjunction with the Larkspur Corte Madera School, re-surface tennis courts at the school. City share in the project would cost $2,750, Barry said.

They directed the recreation director to continue seeking two young persons, between 15 and 21, to serve on the parks and recreation commission. Interested persons may contact Barry at the Larkspur city hall.

Novato Sanitary Bond Is Backed

The North Marin Federation of Homeowners board last night unanimously endorsed the proposed $5.5 million sewer bond issue for the Novato Sanitary District president Guthrie Greene reported today.

The federation will send letters to its 11 member organizations asking them to support the bond issue in the Dec. 8 election, he said.

A federation representative will attend the board of supervisors meeting Tuesday to protest the mobile home park proposed adjacent to the Los Robles Mobile Home Park off Bel Marin Keys Boulevard. Marvin Soiland proposed the mobile home park in conjunction with an industrial park.

MILAN, Italy (UPI)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left Rome today after talks with Pope Paul VI and Italian leaders and came to Milan as a sightseer.

Minor Change In Lot Split Delayed

The Cotati Planning Commission last night delayed action on a minor subdivision request to allow more time to study street improvement needs.

Ernest E. Ford had requested that his property at 190 East Cotati Avenue be divided into three lots. Planner Mel Pedersen said the commission should give some thought to requiring a street width there of 50 feet.

A special meeting was set for Nov. 24 at 7:30 p.m. to consider the street size. The commission agreed to change the date of the Nov. 26 meeting to Dec. 2 because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Petaluma's School Bulge To Continue

Schools may be overcrowded today on the eastside of Petaluma, but the worst is yet to come, school board officials told the city council last night.

Representatives of the Old Adobe School District board and Petaluma Board of Education said that some of their schools may be bulging at the seams now, but the 1971-72 school years should be even worse and asked for some control on growth so building programs can catch up.

Old Adobe Supt. Dean D. Magowan said his district now has three grades on double sessions at La Tercera School and two grades at Old Adobe School. He said the double sessions in the primary grades could spread to Bernar Eldredge School since 500 additional students are expected next year.

Board member John Thompson said the double sessions are hard on the youngsters since one group leaves home in the morning darkness and the second session returns home after dark. He said the concentrated four hours of school leaves few break periods for the youngsters who still have limited powers of concentration.

Magowan said the basic problem developed nearly two years ago when the state could not sell construction bonds at the limited interest rate of 5 per cent and building programs were halted. During that period, home construction in the district did not diminish.

Petaluma Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the district has solved the overcrowding problem at McDowell School by bussing 75 students to westside schools that have lost enrollment.

He said, however, that the rapid eastside growth has overcrowded Kenilworth Junior High School and Petaluma Senior High School and won't be abated until the new Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School opens in the fall of 1972.

Sol Fishman, president of the Petaluma Board of Education, asked the council representatives to slow down development until both districts can build enough schools and not have to depend on state aid. He said the districts could then depend soleding schools at will without havdin schools at will without having to justify everything to Sacramento.

Thompson said the district must show the state that enough house foundations have been poured to provide enough students for the proposed school. While the homes are completed in three months, it sometimes takes two years to build a school to house children from the homes, he said.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said the growth will be somewhat limited by the capacity of the sewer plant and length of the sewer lines. He said the present plant can handle an additional 5,000 residents which will probably not be realized until 1973.

Planning Director William C. McGivern said water and sewer lines are not extended past Ely Road or Casa Grande Road and that the districts need not fear any large housing developments beyond that point in the near future.

Meyer said the city council would hesitate to limit growth too stringently since home construction has become one of Petaluma's biggest industries. He said the city has also gained from sales tax revenue generated by new stores lured to the eastside because of rapid development.

Fishman warned that large residential development often inhibits industrial development which could broaden the tax base and benefit both the Old Adobe and the Petaluma High School district.

Meyer said the Petaluma School District would like population projections for after 1972 so that more thought can be given to planning.

Pot Possession To Superior Court

Thomas Keene Warner III, 27, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing marijuana on Aug. 14. He is to be arraigned Nov. 23.

Warner was arrested after an off-duty policeman noticed what appeared to be pot plants at a house next-door to one where he was visiting a friend.

Attack Fatal To Cashier At Store

A 55-year-old Mill Valley woman collapsed last night in the parking lot at the Montgomery Ward and Co. store in Corte Madera Shopping Center and died a few hours later in Marin General Hospital.

Mariellen Alfonso, of 338 East Blithedale Avenue, apparently was stricken by a heart attack, according to coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig.

She was a cashier at Montgomery Ward and was leaving work at 8 p.m. when the attack occurred, Craig said.

She is survived by her husband, Henry R. Alfonso.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Bon Tempe Lake Fish Kill Reported

There was a fish kill in Bon Tempe Lake this morning caused by the Marin Municipal Water District's efforts to control algae growth in the lake.

Estimates of the number of dead fish ranged from 150 carp, goldfish and shiners and a dozen trout by district Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger to about 1,000 fish by Frank Hubbard, spokesman for the state Department of Fish and Game.

Seeger said the fish seen floating in the channel near the lake dam by fishermen about 8 a.m. today were killed by the application of copper sulfate to the lake yesterday to kill an algae affecting the taste and odor of water.

Hubbard said fish and game was notified of the bluestone use, but added, "We are certainly not happy that it has resulted in a fish kill."

"We realize that public health is paramount, but we think that bluestone can be applied in reservoirs without fish kills," he said.

Seeger said 5 pounds per million gallons of water was applied; Hubbard said the department recommends one-fifth that dosage.

Seeger said no more fish would die from the bluestone that had to be applied for water quality reasons.

Agnew's Answer To Detractors: Hogwash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a major assessment of GOP strategy, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has strongly endorsed the much-criticized campaign waged by the Republicans in the mid-term elections.

"Where it fell short of our hopes," Agnew said, "I concede only that we undersold our message, for it was a good message for America and the right messare for America..."

The $150 a plate dinner in Agnew's honor drew many Republican luminaries, including Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, eight cabinet members, and Mrs. Martha Mitchell, who introduced Agnew.

President Nixon, returning from Paris, sent a telegram lauding Agnew as "one of the most able and dedicated Republican leaders I have ever known."

Agnew said the GOP "made political water run uphill" in the off-year election.

The vice president said the "one hard truth" about the elections was that President Nixon's "precarious position" in the Senate was improved.

Agnew said The New York Times and the Washington Post --two of his favorite targets — had dismissed Republican victories in state and national elections as flukes or of no importance.

"Well, my friends, for all that I have just one word: hogwash," he said.

"In a Senate that has decided key issues by one to five-vote margins for the past two years, a two to four-vote change is a parliamentary revolution," he said.

He said Republican campaign tactics forced Democrats to shift from their position of "cozying up" to radical dissenters to a position of support for law and order.

"As they fled, they stripped off their leather jackets, pinned on sheriffs' badges, then turned to their constituents transformed — now all Wyatt Earpy and sweating evermore to stand foursquare for law and order."

In Commerce, Tex., Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R1Ore., says Agnew practiced "the politics of revulsion" during the recent off-year election. But Hatfield said Thursday night he would not be part of any move to dump Agnewfrom the ticket in 1972.

"Why kick him in the shins for carrying out his assignments?" Hatfield said.

The subject of Agnew's future was discussed by Hatfield and a group of college students during a question-and-answer session following a speech in which Hatfield said the off-year elections were "a disaster for the Republican Party."

One student asked Hatfield if he knew of a "dump Agnew" movement brewing and asked if Hatfield was part of such a movement.

"I know of no serious move to dump the vice president and I would not be a part of it. I think he has a right to be on the ticket."

He severely criticized the strategy employed by Nixon in the recent campaign. He was especially critical of the "purge" against Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., in favor of the victorious Conservative Party candidate James Buckley.

He said this action will make it impossible for Nixon to rely on support on a purely partisan basis since the President already turned on a member of his own party.

But, Hatfield said, he doesn't think Nixon is in any shape to oust further liberal Republicans.

"The President isn't about to kick anyone on the shins in '72," Hatfield said. "He's going to be loving all of us."

Another Jet Is Hijacked To Cuba

MIAMI (UPI)—An Eastern Airlines jet bound from Richmond, Va., to Dallas, Tex., with 82 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba today shortly after takeoff from Raleigh, N.C., where it made an intermediate stop.

Capt. Thomas W. Mayberry set the DC9 down at Jacksonville, Fla., for refueling before attempting the over-the-water portion of the flight, then continued on to Havana's Jose Marti Airport.

The plane landed in Havana at 11:57 a.m., but it was not known when it would be allowed to return to Miami.

There was no immediate word on the number of hijackers, or their identities.

Scarves Can Make The Midi-Look Work

Fashion has many moods this fall, and a great variety of looks to choose from. The look dictated by fashion designers is longuette, but you can't just don a midi skirt or gaucho pants and hope for the best.

The magic of a scarf, properly placed, wrapped and tied can be the key to the total look.

Costume looks for fall can also be achieved with a scarf. For the Far Eastern look, long silk chiffon scarves with intricate all-over mosiac designs are perfect, and the peasant or poor girl look is perfect with a 24 inch square paisley patch around the neck and knotted in front. Try it turbanned or wrapped several times around the neck, and you can be a bohemian girl.

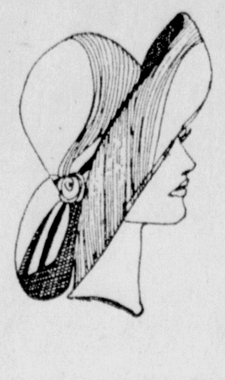
THE NEW freedom from conventional fashion dictates, eliminates the old coordinated look. Mix patterns — wear dots with stripes and paisleys with tweeds.

Multi-patterned scarves mix herringone tweed with window-pane designs and large circles or tweeds with large blocks of squares, giving the effect of two scarves.

Simple to do is the dog collar look. Fold a square on the bias, place it on your neck, ends to the back, cross the ends, bring them to the front and tie in a tiny square knot. The knot can go to the front, side or back. The dog collar is a great topper for midi suits or fin-de-siecle (mid-Victorian) velvet and brocade evening midis, held in place with an antique brooch.

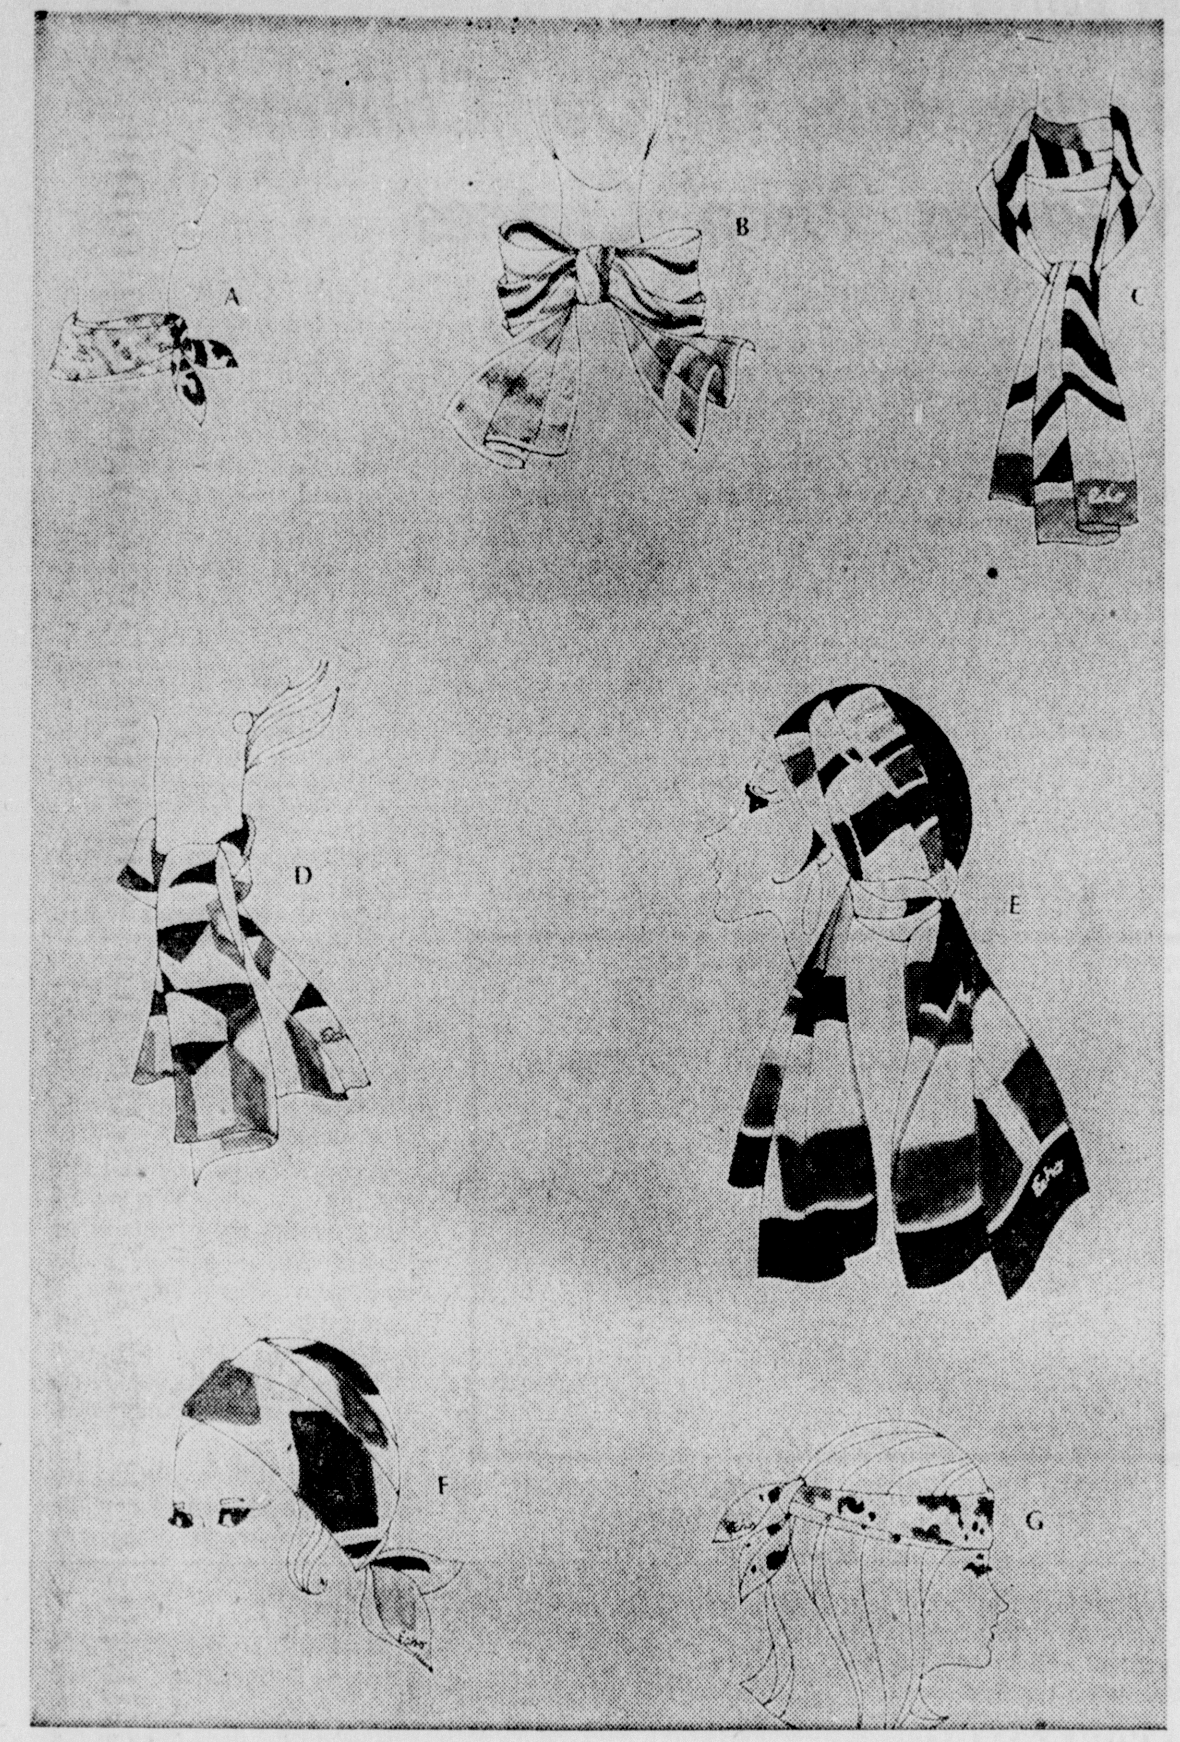
While long, floating chiffon is in, last year's signature scarves are out. Smart women are not discarding them, however, because there is enough material for use in peasant dresses or even curtains.

THE FOUR foot long oblong scarf is back, and tied once and left square at the side of the neck it looks good on body sweaters. It can also be used as an ascot, tucked into the jacket.

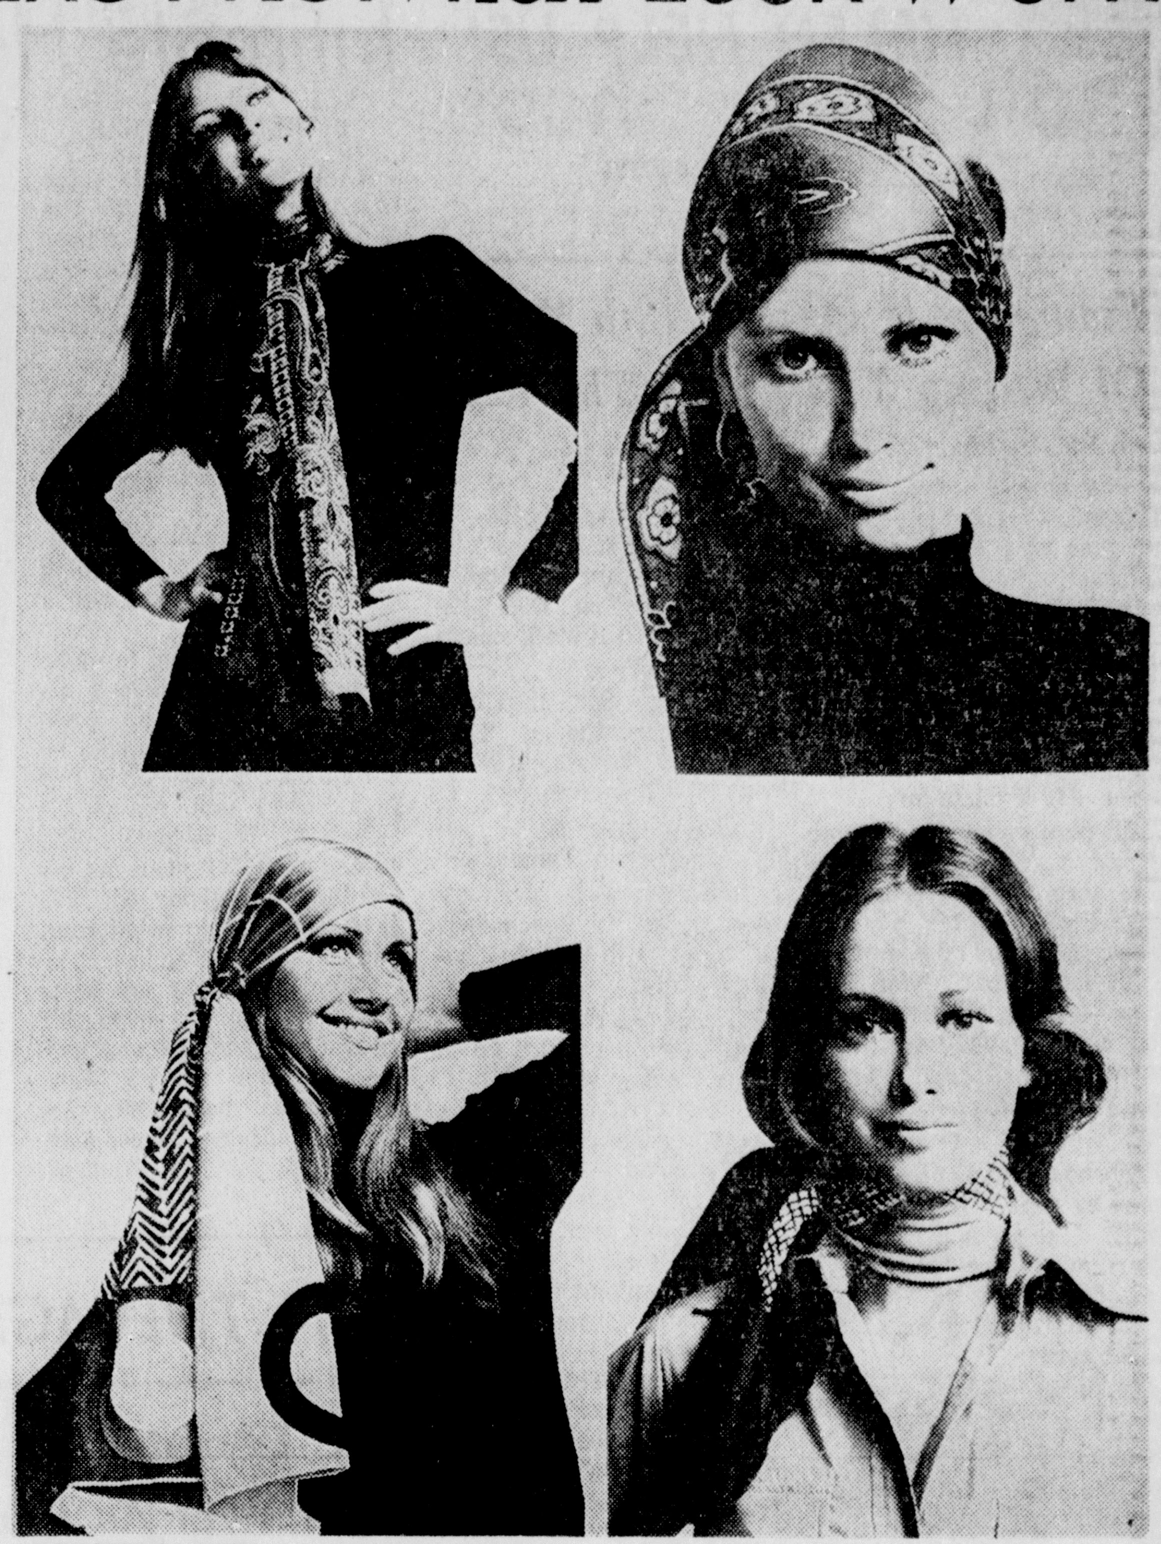


The head can be covered with a scarf for the new look. A long scarf from the forehead to the back of the head is tied just below the ear or if you like your hair loose an Indian headband can be made with either a square or an oblong scarf.

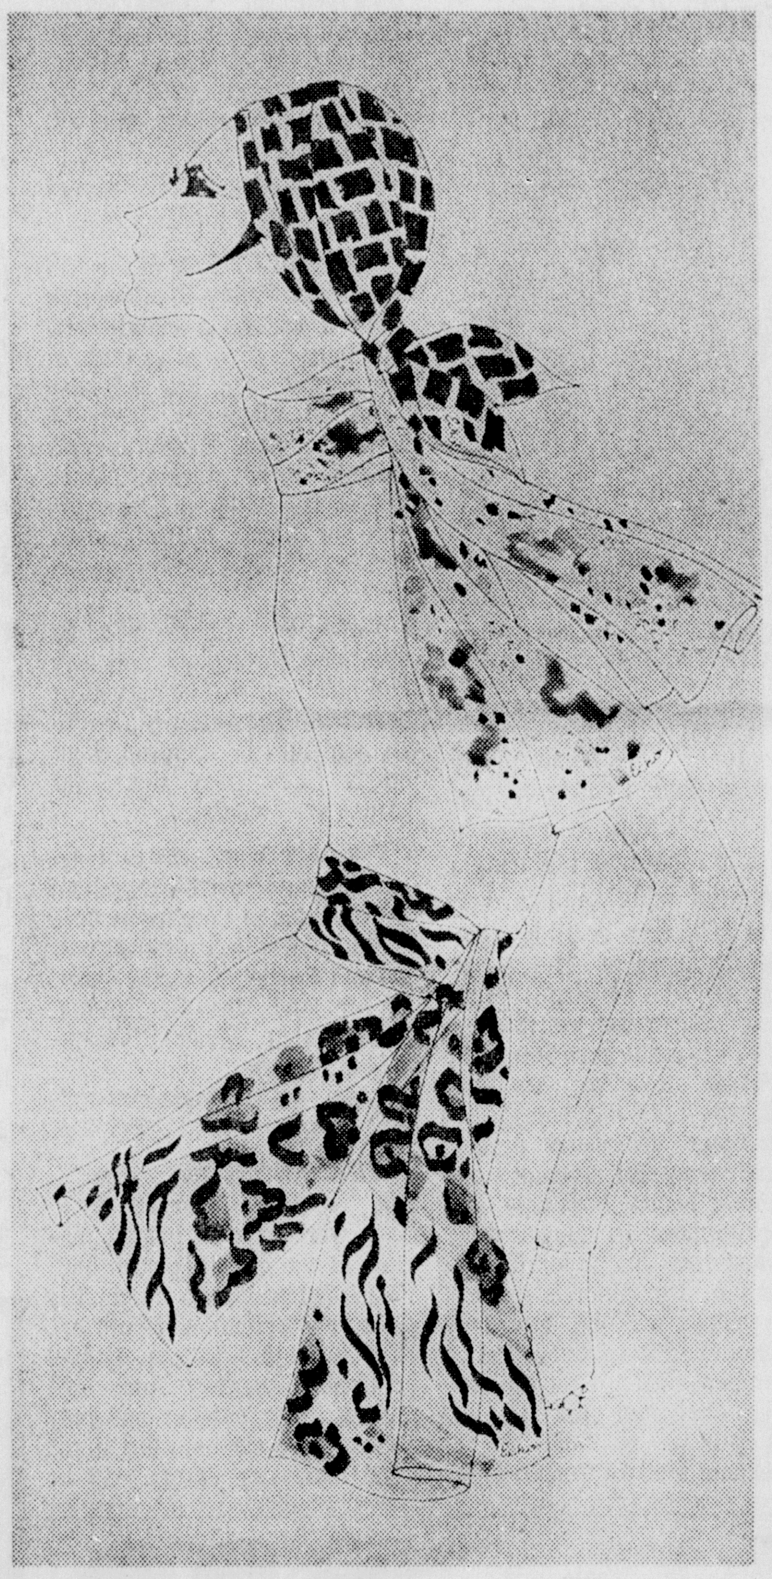
If you are a die-hard and won't wear the midi you can still have the look. No one will notice it's a mini with a midi-look scarf sparkling it up.



THE TRULY fashionable woman must have a whole bagful of tricks with scarves to pull her outfit together and create a total look. Here are some of the magic tricks to try: Top left, (A) — It's simple to fold a square on the bias, place it on your neck ends to back, cross them and bring them to the front and tie a tiny square knot. Leave the knot at front or move it to the side. Good with midi suit or evening midi. Top center (B) — the long floating chiffon ties into a front huge bow. Top right (C) — The wrapped-around-once look; center left (D) — the 48 inch oblong is tied once and left square at the side of the neck. It's good on body sweaters or worn tucked into your jacket as an ascot. Center right (E) — The small wrapped head goes well with the midi look, as does the style in (F). Lower right (G) shows the Indian headband for those who like their hair worn loose. The square or oblong scarf does the trick.



SCARVES ARE the magic accessory to complete the longuette look for fall. With the new freedom from conventional fashion dictates, comes the freedom from old coordinated looks. Wear the paisly scarf, top left, with a tweed coat, jacket or dress. Heads covered by scarves have a new look in geometric prints, top right, or patterns in motion, bottom left, which combines herringbone tweed, windowpane designs and large circles. A bright, bold effect, bottom right, is the choker for either a cowboy or a safari look. All scarves are by Echo.



ANIMAL PRINT scarves have changed slightly this season and now come in stylized versions of the old skins. Top cobra print and neck scarf in a "serpent" come in green, teal and plum as well as natural colors. The bottom print scarf is called "safari" and is a combination of leopard, giraffe and zebra.

Columnist Is On Her 13th Year Of Writing This Friday The 13th

DEAR READERS:

I was born on Friday the Thirteenth — and I'm on my 13th year of columning. Yet I've never once done a column that relates to my special day; so, as a pre-Thanksgiving reaction to all that gratefulness on the way, here's my:

Friday 13 Lament: What I'm Unthankful For

I am NOT thankful for:

High protein diets when you're dying for a large wedge of "Utterly Deadly Southern Pecan Pie" with whipped cream. (And what do you bet I get 25 letters asking for the recipe — which will make me even hungrier and more unthankful.)

Paid political ads in prime time.

Household appliances designed by men who must hate women. Like I bet they laugh with fiendish glee when they think of us getting leg whipped by instant-rewind vacuum cleaner cords.

The harsh way the world looks when I wear my glasses.

Brutally frank people who use "the truth" as a sledge hammer.

Those Gawdawful bright revealing lights in womens wear dressing rooms — especially when you have your glasses on.

Teen-agers who hike-hike 15 miles on Saturday (when they should be writing an English theme), then hit Old Soft-Touch up for a 10-block ride to school.

(And from Sue, the teen-ager: Mothers who say "Legs were made for walking" on Friday the Thirteenth.)

Families who don't let a columnist have the last word in her own column yet!

Youngish salesmen who call oldish matrons "young lady." And personnel in chic shops who call everybody "darling".

People who take an ego-trip with their automobile horns.

Static electricity. Especially when the north wind blows and some joker thinks is great sport to zap you with a spark. Haven't tried it? Rub your feet on nylon carpeting, touch a friend, and watch him jump.

People who interrupt a good story to correct the teller's pronunciation or grammar.

Cocktail parties where you might as well lip-sync because nobody hears you anyway.

Sewing pattern directions — and "new sizing" that is still not true to size. And polyester material priced at five times its worth, just because it is popular! Home sewers — awake!

Injustice collectors in general — except on Friday the Thirteenth, when you're entitled. — H.

Nixons Plan More Intimate Holiday

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The first family will have the traditional Thanksgiving dinner in the White House again this year. But this time, the gathering will be on a more intimate scale.

Last year, President and Mrs. Nixon invited about 200 persons from homes for the elderly in the Washington area to join them at the White House for the holiday festivities. Nixon made a welcoming speech, and the guests had a great time.

"They did not want to make it a custom," explained an aide to the First Lady when asked whether there would be a repeat performance this year. For the same reason, the aide said, "Tricia gave a Halloween party last year, but decided against giving one this year. They like to do different things."

While the Nixons are keeping their options open, it's clear they enjoy keeping holiday traditions in the White House even though they are likely to depart immediately afterwards for Key Biscayne, Fla., or San Clemente, Calif., where they have resort homes.

PAT NIXON

The Nixons' Thanksgiving menu includes fresh fruit cup, roast stuffed turkey with giblet gravy, celery stuffing, candied sweet potatoes, tiny peas, blueberry muffins, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie —all prepared by White House chef Henri Haller.

ON BEING BLACK

Today Many Of Our Children Wearing 'Pimp' Clothes

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

The obviously fatigued woman stood back a little impatiently as her young son paged through the rack of shirts in the department store.

"Well," asked the snappily dressed salesman after several rejected suggestions, "what did you have in mind?"

Without batting an eyelash, the 10-year-old youngster said, quite matter-of-factly, "A pimp shirt."

"Gregory!" His mother gasped in embarrassment.

They moved to another rack of shirts made of satins, brocades and velveteens. Some had ruffles or sequins down the front, others were made of filmy, see-through fabric.

"Yeah!" Gregory's eyes lit up in satisfaction. "That's what I want."

His mother adjusted her coat and tried to regain her calm. "And these are called what kind of shirts?"

"OH, MAMA, all the kids wear pimp clothes now. It doesn't mean what you think it means."

That's right, mamas across the country. Today many of our children are wearing what they call pimp clothes and the word does not mean what we think it means.

And it appears to be the latter definition that the young people are applying. Their pimp clothes are what we call dress-up, "good" or Sunday-best clothes.

Along with the look that one reflects while wearing his pimp clothes are certain other mannerisms — how he walks and acts. There emerges a certain cool demeanor. (The conventional word primp means "to dress or behave in a formal or affected manner.")

IT WOULD BE extremely naive of us to assume that our children are not aware of the procurer denotation of the word pimp. Indeed, most of them are more familiar with the owners of certain hogs (Cadillacs) than we adults are. Not only that, it's a known fact that local pimps (procurers) do dress "sharp."

The inner-city child, especially, is neither particularly shocked by the profession nor the word. It is we adults who feign shock and indignation at the mention of the word. Perhaps that is why some young people have adopted the word to describe their dress — for the shock value it has on the adult Establishment.

But "keep the faith" mamas: just like the mod and psychedelic fads, it will surely pass.

SCHOOL SAVING BY PAVING

When the Mill Valley Cooperative Nursery School faced closure unless paving work was done on a hazardous parking turnout in front of the school at 51 Shell Road, the North Bay Chapter of the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association came to the rescue, donating labor. For the children peering through the fence, the roller and operator from Ghilotti Brothers Construction Co. of San Rafael, was a main attraction at the school yesterday. The Hutchinson Quarry in Larkspur donated the materials.

Larkspur District To Join Rubella Fight

Larkspur School District will participate in the county's war against rubella (German measles) with immunizations to be held at district schools.

Supt. Milton S. Cohen estimated that 500 to 700 children in the district between the ages of one through 11 will be immunized Nov. 23 and 24.

The schedule is Nov. 23 at 10:15 a.m. at San Clemente School and 11:30 a.m. at Neil Cummins School; and Nov. 24 at 9 a.m. at Henry C. Hall School and 1 p.m. at Larkspur-Corte Madera School.

Larkspur School District trustees last night urged repeal of the law that requires school district unification elections to be held every four years during presidential primaries.

The district is within the Tamalpais High School District which would have to have another unification election district in 1972 unless the law is changed.

The Larkspur School District Board Also:

NURSING INTERN — Ratified an agreement with the University of California, whereby the district will obtain the services of a nursing intern one day a week at no cost.

HIRING — Authorized hiring Jane Purkey to teach the sixth grade at Larkspur — Corte Madera School for the remainder of the school year at a salary of $3,820.

ENDORSEMENT — Endorsed David D. Ring, Tamalpais High School District trustee, for election to the California School Board Association's delegate assembly.

$18,000 Worth Of Liquor Stolen

The theft of $18,000 in liquor over a seven-month period was reported to San Rafael police yesterday.

John Perry of United Liquor Co., 1556 Fourth Street, told police thieves entered numerous times by removing loosened roof boards and took several cases each time.

The thefts occurred between February and a September audit, Perry said.

Probe Of Generals Incident Commences

ANKARA (UPI)—A team of U.S. officials arrived from Washington yesterday to investigate the Oct. 21 flight of a light aircraft across the Soviet border with two U.S. generals, their pilot and a Turkish escort officer who were held in Russia for three weeks.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Maj. Gen. Edward C.D. Scherrer, Brig. Gen. Claude M. McQuarrie and the pilot, Maj. James P. Russell, who entered Turkey Tuesday after their release by the Soviets, would make no comment until the investigation was complete.

Mrs. Eisenhower Is 74 Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — She doesn't look or act like it but Mamie Eisenhower will be 74 Saturday.

The widow of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was honored at an advance birthday luncheon today at Washington's Congressional Club, with some of her longtime capital friends on hand.

Julie Nixon Eisenhower, wife of Mrs. Eisenhower's grandson David, also was among those attending the luncheon.

First Snow

LONDON (UPI)—Snow fell and ice coated roads in Scotland and parts of Northern Ireland Friday, bringing Britons their first taste of winter weather. Temperatures fell below freezing in many northern areas and dawn frost covered the countryside.

Historic Building Burns In Samoa

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI)—An historic building which housed the legislature of American Samoa was destroyed Thursday night in a spectacular fire which sent columns of smoke and flames over Pago Pago harbor.

The blaze occurred on the eve of a runoff election for the territory's first delegate to the U.S. Congress and as residents began preparations for the visit of Pope Paul Nov. 29.

The fire broke out in the rear of the sprawling two-story frame building, located in the heart of the territory's downtown village of Fagatogo.

The loss was estimated at about $200,000, and included most of the records of the government.

Bench Warrant Out For Garry

OAKLAND (UPI) — A bench warrant was issued today for attorney Charles Garry when he was found in contempt for not appearing at a scheduled trial of four Black Panther Party members.

Bail on the warrant was set at $600.

Garry had told the Alameda County Superior Court he would not be at the trial slated to start today, but had been told he must show up.

Marin Bankers See Lower Interest Trend

For the third time this year, banks across the country dropped their prime interest rates yesterday, following the lowering of the discount rate by regional Federal Reserve Banks — but the prime rate drop was down by only one-quarter of 1 per cent, compared with one-half of one per cent drops in March and September.

The new prime rate — sometimes known as the "wholesale rate" because it applies only to large commercial borrowers who usually must maintain at least 20 per cent of the amount borrowed on deposit in a non-interest bearing account — is now 7.25 per cent.

But the drop does have its effect on other loans. Locally there was a lowering of one-quarter to one-half of 1 per cent following the prime rate drop in September. Most Marin bankers see the trend as a gradual easing of interest rates in general. Some believe another one-quarter per cent drop from the current figure of about 8.5 per cent may occur by the end of the year.

Government insured home loan interest rates are determined by the Federal Housing Administration. Most banks handling such loans charge a one-time fee of 1 per cent to the borrower. Some also charge "points" (one point is 1 per cent) to the seller. Since the last prime rate drop this fee is down to about two points.

If government insured loans remain the same, there is a possibility the points may go down further. If government insured loan rates drop, the points may be increased.

The recent easing of interest rates has also caused some banks to extend their real estate loan commitments on "first grade" properties from 75 to 80 per cent of the value of the property and also lengthen the time of repayment in some instances to as long as 30 years.

Coward Improving

LONDON (UPI)—A spokesman for St. Thomas' Hospital said Friday the condition of Sir Noel Coward was "improving." The 70-year-old actor-playwright was hospitalized Wednesday with pleurisy.

El Capitan Climbers Reject Help

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Two mountain climbers dangling 2,000 feet above the Yosemite Valley floor today rejected efforts to rescue them. The National Park Service said they might be taken off anyway.

Comber Warren Harding, 46, shouted down to the base party at the bottom of towering El Capitan that he and Dean Caldwell, 27, could make it to the top and did not want to be rescued.

But a park spokesman said rangers might go ahead with a complicated rescue operation started late Thursday. He said a storm was expected over the huge stone monolith by Monday and if the climbers were to be taken off, it would have to be today.

Harding, a tough, veteran mountaineer who led the first ascent of 3,400 foot El Capitan in 1958, was pioneering a new route up the previously unclimbed "Wall of the Early Morning Light" with Caldwell when they ran into difficulties.

The ascent, which began Oct. 23 and was planned for a week, turned into an agonizingly slow operation in which the climbers spent 22 days on the sheer cliff, making less than 100 feet a day and buffeted by successive rainstorms.

They nearly ran out of food Thursday and park rangers ordered a helicopter to fly the 26-man rescue team to the top of the peak.

The team was waiting on top to begin the rescue when Harding shouted that he thought they could make it.

Concrete Lion Back To Center

Detective William Obershaw of the Corte Madera Police Department said the lion had been dropped off at the cafeteria dock at the school in Larkspur.

Soldier Cleared

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—S. Sgt. Rolando Sada, 27, was free Friday of charges he slapped, struck with his fists and shoved recruits at Lackland Air Force Base. His attorney told the court-martial panel that cleared him: "Real discipline involves unquestioned obedience to orders and in training fresh recruits discipline must be considered at all times. He got the job done."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Bad Break Just Waits Around, Waiting To Happen To Someone

The world is full of bridge players who don't get enough sympathy. If a bad break is flying around in the air, waiting for somebody to happen to, you can bet it will happen to one of the Unlucky Bridge Players. If you belong to this group, perhaps you should get one of the campaign button manufacturers to make a special pin for you, so that you can let the whole world know that you are an Unlucky Bridge Player. Like South in today's hand.

DECLARER WINS

West led the ten of hearts, and East captured dummy's queen with the ace. East returned the jack of hearts, and declarer refused the trick. East continued with the eight of hearts, and declarer won in dummy with the king.

As you can see, South was an Unlucky Bridge Player. East got in with the ace of clubs and cashed the rest of the hearts to defeat the contract. South would have made his game if West had the ace of clubs, or if West hadn't opened a heart, or if the hearts had broken 4-3 instead of 5-2.

ONLY DANGER

When South looks at the dummy he can tell that he can afford to lose one club and three heart tricks. There is no danger if the seven missing hearts are divided 4-3. The only danger is that East has started with five hearts headed by the ace-jack. Even then, however, South can act to limit East to three heart tricks.

South should play a low heart from dummy at the first trick. West continues with the nine of hearts, and South should play low again from the dummy.

CARELESS PARTNER

If west can lead another heart, the suit will break no worse than 4-3. If West has to shift to a different suit, South has no problem. And if East overtakes the second heart with the jack, he cannot capture dummy's king or queen of hearts and therefore cannot get four heart tricks.

Get a U.B.P. pin for yourself, and a C.B.P. pin for your partner.

ANSWER: Pass.

Pass or bid one heart.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, but some would bid. It would be more biddable if the hearts were headed by A-J-10 rather than by A-J-8, even though the point count would be unchanged.

The nickname "Creole State" signifies that part of Louisiana's citizens are Creoles of French and Spanish descent.

BEAUTY AND BEAST — Stripper Fiery Fluff — who provides the "Bump! Bump! Bump!" in the Novato Community Players' Fall Fling — gets carried away by leopard robed Harvey Teague. Fiery Fluff, played by Elaine Bernardi, will get carried away Saturday and Nov. 20 and 21 . . . and so will the audience, the players promise.

OPENING TONIGHT

Fall Fling Full Of Fun, Frolic, Fiery Fluff At Novato Show

"Burlesque ain't dead! Bump! Bump! Bump!" — The Fall Fling of the Novato Community Players will open at 8:30 p.m., Friday in the Novato Community House.

It will be repeated at the same hour Saturday and Nov. 20 and 21.

It is an original variety show written by Evans Burke and Thomas Winston with words and music by Evans and Elaine Burke. It is an adaptation of their "A Party of Five" which was produced on the Columbia Broadcasting Repertoire Workshop in Los Angeles.

Characterisitic of all flings, the show is filled with songs, dances and comedy skits.

Throughout the show, Elaine Bernardi as stripper Fiery Fluff "bump' bump! bumps!" across the stage, chased by stage manager Ray Backstedt who calls to her "Burlesque is Dead."

The show opens with "Headin' for the Big Time," followed by a skit "Judy Mint Julip Show," with Patricia Conway and Reed Griffin. Sally McGillis as "Dinah Ocean" does a series of black-outs entitled "The Good Old Days of Live TV."

Max Keeler and Dawn Scheiern do a spoof on Nelson Eddy and Jeanette McDonald in "I Always Get my Man." Harvey Teague sings "A Man Needs Someone to Love" and Vivienne Terry sings, "I go for Older Men."

Burke is the director with Chris Kollgaard assistant director. Jean Teague is the producer and musical coordinator. Lei Mann is the dance director and costume designer. John Prohaska is in charge of the lighting and John Carter, sound.

Lorayne Crozier on the piano will be assisted by Jeff Crozier on the drums and Randy Bechler on the guitar.

Set construction was under the direction of Jack Caruso with Barbara Caruso in charge of properties. Shirley Redley is in charge of makeup. Correne Prohaska did the publicity and programs. Vincent McGovern is the stage manager and Paul Terry the house chairman.

Thief Takes Wheels, Leaves An Older Set

A San Rafael man told police that someone stole the wheels from his car Tuesday night or Wednesday morning and left a worn set in trade.

San Rafael police said the tires, rims and hubcaps valued at $156 were taken from the auto of Robert B. Yager while it was parked at his 247 C Street home. The thief replaced them with three bald tires and used Yager's spare for the fourth wheel, police said.

FAMILY

"It's a Mad, Mad, Mad World." — Five strangers learn of hidden wealth from a dying gangster. This triggers the greed within each and a hilarious carnival of chases ensues. Fantastic slapstick comedy with huge cast of characters.

"The Out-of-Towners" — Refreshingly funny spoof on big city life glimpsed through the hilarious misadentures of a small-city businessman and his wife in New York City for final job interview.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Borsalino" — Entertaining French Gangster film about the "30's". Follows violent life of two bandits whose object is to control crime business in Marseilles. The gory brutal gang fights are almost continuous.

"Dr. Zhivago" — With magnificent scenery and music the story of Dr. Zhivago's life in Russia during the revolution is told in flash back. A monumental version of prize winning novel.

"Jenny" — An unwed pregnant woman and a man reclassified by draft board decide on a marriage of convenience. She does not fit in with his artistic, pot-smoking friends, so the quarreling begins.

"Mississippi Mermaid" — This mildly absorbing meandering French melodrama has enough suspense to make it enjoyable, enough nudity to make it marketable, enough wistfulness to create sympathy for a murderer, and enough hokum to camouflage its faults. Mature Teens.

"Monte Walsh" — Is a serio-comic study of lonely dispossessed men with no job market for their skills in the old wild West.

"Number One" — Movie covers week in the life of an aging football pro (played by) Charlton Heston who gives remarkable portrayal of a star 40-year-old quarterback whose life disintegrates as he tries to decide whether to quit the game. Footbsll action is excellent. Mature Teens.

BORDERLINE

"Catch-22" — Unusually biting anti-war film that graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Grotesque details of bodily functions, bizarre, morbid and gruesome sequences are shown in a matter-of-fact way.

"Cheyenne Social Club" — Set in frontier West . . . contrived story relates experiences of two cowpokes, one of whom finds his inheritance to be a bawdy house . . . some dialogue offensive.

"Lovers and Other Strangers" — Amusing, well-acted comedy about a couple who have been roommates and decide to marry. A series of vignettes about their relatives' marital affairs are inter-cut into the wedding preparations. Bedroom scenes abundant.

ADULTS ONLY

"Joe" — Chilling but excellent tragi-comedy about today's dangerous polarization of lifestyles. Language and explicit sex shocking but ring regrettably true as do film's implications about violence in America. Memorable performances.

"John & Mary" — A love story that starts with sex and ends with the awakening of love. An amusing, honest, and poignant film, extremely well performed, and with the added authenticity of fine New York location shots — nude scene prominent in party sequence.

"M.A.S.H." — Hilarious, subtle anti-war comedy of three army surgeons who develop outlandish life-styles to survive the gore that passes before their eyes. Sex, nudity and profanity.

"Myra Brackenridge" — A cinematic cesspool inexcusably indecent. Story is intercut with shots from old movies . . . technique overworked. Humor gets tedious as the movie becomes increasingly obscene. Film crammed with homosexuality, trans-sexual operations, sodomy, satyriasis, sadism and other perversions.

"99 Women" — Story deals with repressive atmosphere of a women's prison on a remote Spanish island. Confines are overloaded with everything from Lesbianism to torture. Poor.

"Paddy" — Within its limited scope, this handsome looking movie, produced in Ireland by a young American girl, is amazingly successful. Touching family scenes . . . explicit sex scenes. Very good for adults.

Paranoia" — Carroll Baker stars as wealthy widow who becomes victim of a young man and his sister, both of whom are her lovers. This unhealthy trio indulge in drugs, mental torture, and explicitly played scenes of group sex and incest. English dubbed.

"That Cold Day in the Park" — Wealthy spinster sees boy huddled on park bench in rainstorm, invites him in for hot bath and meal . . . locks him in . . . succession of sexy incidents accents the film's unhealthy atmosphere.

Test For Tax Spenders: Is This Cost Necessary?

Most Marin County taxpayers had to dig deeper to meet their tax bills this month than they did a year ago, and again will dig deeper for the second installation next April than they did last April.

Forecasts are for general tax increases next fiscal year, through both higher rates and increased property appraisals.

The "solution" of most of the taxing bodies is the familiar one of crying that Sacramento, or Washington, must absorb more of the costs of local government.

THIS IS NO solution at all. The state and federal governments must get their revenues from the people of California and the United States. It is a delusion to believe that they can do so without the cost being passed on to all of us. Any device such as excise tax, sales tax, inventory tax, or the much-talked-about "added value tax" is merely passed on eventually to the consumer. It results in higher prices, further inflation — and no tax relief.

IN AN ORGANIZED society, we pay the government to provide some services which are for the benefit of all, and which it would be difficult if not impossible for each to provide for himself.

We expect the government to do these things for us more cheaply than we could have them done by private contract. Otherwise, wherein lies the advantage?

If we wish more of a particular service than is felt necessary by the general public, we cannot fairly ask that government provide it. Thus, we may install our own fire alarm or sprinkler systems to add to the protection provided by the city fire department. Or we may enroll, at our own cost, in classes beyond those which need be provided for all by the public schools.

THE TENDENCY, however, is for the government — especially at the local level, where it is most easily reached by those with special demands — to extend its role, at the cost of all taxpayers, to provide services not needed by all.

The tendency also is for the government to regard much of what it does as for the benefit of itself and its own employees rather than that of all the people it serves. This tendency grows greater as the size of government increases, but the local school district or city is far from immune from it.

Now, while our tax bills have made us keenly aware of the increasing cost of our local governments, may be a good time to start bringing pressure on those who run them to more carefully examine the purposes for which they propose to spend our money.

WE SUGGEST a simple test, a variation of one that was applied quite widely and strictly during the gasoline and tire shortage of World War II:

"Is this trip necessary?"

The test must not be "is this expenditure desirable?" They all appear desirable. But is this expenditure necessary?

Strict application of this test could mean that next year's tax bills would be considerably lower than this year's. And the great majority of us would receive not one whit less in government services.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO — (CNS) — When the state in 1967 authorized the looting of the Long Beach tideland oil fund for the purchase of the Queen Mary for a super-dooper convention center and maritime museum, the acquisition cost approximated $4 million.

Now, according to the office of Alan Post, legislative analyst, the total costs have soared to approximately 10 times that amount, or roughly $40 million.

And the Queen Mary still sits in the waters of Long Beach harbor, without benefit of revenue.

IT WAS ON Aug. 28, 1967, better than three years ago, that incorporation papers for "Queen Mary of Long Beach, Inc.", were filed with the secretary of state, at a capitaliaztion of $25,000, and a stated purpose to "operate a hotel, restaurant and amusement facility at Long Beach."

As of March 31, 1969, the City of Long Beach had encumbered $21.5 million, and at that time, it was estimated that costs to complete the project would total at least $32 million.

It was expected the return from the investment would total $3.5 million at that time, but after more than three years since acquisition, the state reports so far, no return at all.

Furthermore, Post's office indicates the time for completion of the project has not as yet even been given the state.

THE CITY of Long Beach is in trouble with the concessionaires of the Queen Mary, the Queen Mary Diners Club. Suit has been filed against the city by the club, and the city has filed a counter-suit.

Post's office says the city has decided to go ahead and operate the facilities without a concessionaire in order to bail itself out, and this is another problem to be solved.

In some quarters, the Queen Mary has been termed the $40 million fiasco", and it has been pointed out that predictions were made when the proposal was first conceived that it would turn out to be a fiasco.

However, the money being squandered on the attempt to resurrect the ancient and worn out vessel legally belongs to the City of Long Beach as the result of a compromise settlement agreed to by the state in the disposal of millions of dollars received from the oil-rich tidelands, which originally were ceded to the city before there was any indication the revenues could be used to reduce state taxes.

AS A RESULT of the delay in getting the project under way, and the increased costs, the state is taking a new look at the project to determine whether the expenditures constitute a sound use of tideland oil money.

It is virtually certain that requests will be made at the legislature for an investigation of the Long Beach fiasco.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

View Of 'Them' Not Representative

The long and featured interview with Jacqueline Briskin (I-J, Nov. 9) about her version of the younger generation ("Them") raises some fascinating paradoxes. (Let us skip over such anachronisms as "under 25's" being born "during" World War II and 42 year-olds who "faced the depression.") Her young people are supposed to be bright and intelligent, though they are naive and stupid enough so that a middle-aged woman fools them about her age simply by putting on dark glasses. She calls them "very open" and praises them for "not covering up anything;" then she describes the devious and sneaky ways in which they lie to and deceive their parents. We are told that we can achieve real communication between age groups by listening to one side only. We are asked to trust and be optimistic about "them" even though their representative says, "I'm afraid of you because you know so much about me."

Most of the young today are not "aboriginal" freaks, naive, sneaky, simplistic, hypocritical, and escapist as she shows them. (She may not "hate" them, but with friends like her, they surely don't need enemies!) The truth is that there is nothing new about human nature. It only seems so to those (both old and young) who won't bother to study human history. Unfortunately, there are millions of them, and not all "under 25."

Decorate All Tunnel Entrances

Our concrete subliminal stimulus to destroy and our chain-link "safety" barricade atrocities. A hostile resentment builds against all such ugly restraining barriers. Thus, in subconscious irritation "a transcient madness" explodes. With berserker inner rage motorists "accidently" ram into each other, destroy miles of unsightly cyclone fencing, obliterate utility (above ground) poles and wiring.

Homo sap resents these particular trends which are all forms of pollution of our spirits and constant reminders that we are absolutely captive of our phony, artificial environment and no longer "captains of our souls."

It was necessary to scalp the landscape for (Upper) Highway 101 overlooking Sausalito, and it was necessary to further deface the once beautiful hills with two concrete mole holes that rate absolute zero in any artistic effort to relieve their dismal drabness. Therefore, it would seem that not just one bore but all four gaping gullets should receive pacifying camouflage — even if it is only paint. Surely any art student could improve on the hideous, bleak designs. Perhaps contests in all art classes (including kindergarden) would result in good plans. Perhaps the transformation could be changed each spring with new patterns. . .

Muscular Dystrophy Fight Needs Funds

An estimated 200,000 men, women and children in the United States are suffering from muscular dystrophy. The disease is characterized by progressive degeneration of the voluntary muscles until finally the patient is too weak to combat infections, and death usually results from respiratory failure.

For the most part, dystrophy is an hereditary condition, and there is, as yet, no effective treatment for it. Medical management is limited to relieving symptoms of the disease. Orthopedic devices may be prescribed at appropriate stages in progression.

Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America support basic and applied studies in the hope that these will lead to the complete scientific understanding and the eventual cure of this disease. The Marin County Chapter of MDAA provides assistance for local patients, in addition to providing contributions in the national research program.

November is the month traditionally set aside for the Muscular Dystrophy campaign. As Chairman for the Marin County campaign, I hope that your readers will be able to make a small contribution in response to the mailed brochure which they receive from us this month.

Rainbow Tunnel Brightens Commute

Three cheers to the highway department or bridge district, whoever painted the "rainbow" on the tunnel! It's great and I have heard so many good comments about it, it's unbelievable. A dirty, dark tunnel has been turned into something attractive with a relatively small amount of paint!

Bah humbug to Bertha Krug and Dr. and Mrs. (Alan J.) Davidson. Now the commuters happily have something better to look at than the ugly entrance to a smog-filled, blackened tunnel.

Railroad Should Keep Right-Of-Way

It is my opinion that the Northwestern Pacific R.R. should not give up its Tiburon right-of-way for any price. Although there is a condemnation suit on the railroad's hands, the suit is in fact invalid. I really don't see what the county is condemning. The actual right-of-way is in fine shape, and the only things that could be condemned, the tunnels, are covered with dirt.

Once again the pushy cities are forcing the NWP out of its land. Only three years ago Tiburon pressured the railroad into abandoning its Tiburon branch. As for the lady who is circulating this petition, why don't they build the bike path through her home? See how she likes it.

People talk about the pollution of the once marvelous Marin. Fewer people — less pollution. So why should cities get more land?

I urge the NWP into not selling the right-of-way, and show all the cities of Marin that the railroad still has a great deal of power.

THE DRUMMONDS

Advice By Modern Horace Greeley: 'Go South, Black Man, Go South'

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — "Go south, black man, go south!"

Today a modern Horace Greeley would have good reason to change the direction of his famous advice of a century ago.

Then, the beckoning economic opportunity — to those who could see it — was westward. Today it is southward.

Today the South is the most dynamic section of the entire nation. More people are moving into the South than out. Population is going up faster, income is rising more rapidly, poverty is dropping more substantially and every economic index in the whole South is more favorable than anywhere else in the nation.

These expanding opportunities may prove to be a special and crucial boon to Negroes at the very moment they can do the most good.

Here is why:

MANY BLACK workers have the skills to match the jobs now opening up as the South moves into the Industrial age so vigorously.

Most black workers do not yet have the skills to compete effectively for the jobs in the new and more complex Computer Age industries elsewhere in the country.

They can make it in the South. The black worker is having a very slow, painful, frustrating experience trying to make it in the North. This is why Dr. Zbignew Brezezinski of Columbia University offers this conclusion in a paper on "American in the Technetronic Age":

"Paradoxically, it can be argued that the South today stands a better long-range chance of fully integrating the Negro. American consciousness is changing, the Negro has stirred and the American South is beginning to move into the Inudstrial Age. The odds are that it may take the Negro along with it."

IT IS ALREADY beginning to do so.

The median income of southern white men went up by 71 per cent from 1959 to 1969 — more rapidly than any other region. The median income of Negro men in the South, though from a lower base, increased 178 per cent during this same period.

Take families, not just individuals. The trend is the same.

Median family income in the South increased 48 per cent between 1959 and 1969, compared to 39 per cent for the nation. Negro families gained comparably with whites.

Because of these income changes there is a striking drop in the number and per cent of persons living below the poverty line — and here the South has led the way.

Though still worse than the rest of the nation in the proportion of its population in poverty, the South made more progress than elsewhere. In the past decade the number of persons in the South under the poverty line dropped from 19.1 million to 11.2 million. Outside the South, the number declined from 19.7 million to 13.1 million.

THE PRINCIPAL reason is that new industry has been surging into the South, and the impact of it all is just becoming clear from the 1970 census.

There is no part of the South which hasn't benefited.

The Census Bureau's canvass covers the District of Columbia and 16 states where 61.5 million people now live — nearly one-third of the nation's population.

So southern state is lagging, and it is noteworthy that the states in the heart of the old South performed strongest.

This burgeoning economy is also enabling the South to put more money into education, into teachers' pay, into better schools.

This is the New South, and it is going to need a mounting labor force of diverse skills, black and white alike.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Speaking Of Law, Order: How About The Prisons?

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — All fall we were subjected to the gradually more hysterical efforts of one party to convince America that the other party was somehow in collusion with, maybe even responsible for, all the pimps, pornographers, dope pushers and bombers from coast to coast. Now that the election is past, we see that as political tactics it didn't work.

Even the authors of the great law-and-order crusade see now that it didn't work. Richard Nixon himself called in a group of journalists he thought were safe and friendly last week and told them so. Herb Klein, only one step away from the horse's mouth, also says the Republicans are going to abandon that line of talk as they look ahead to future politics.

All of which testifies to the cynicism with which the line was put forth to start with.

A WEEK AGO it seemed a great relief to have the voting over and to be able to look forward to writing about something else for a while. But then the President and his advisers tried to keep the subject alive long enough to convince everybody they had won a great victory, so now anybody who disagrees with them is obliged to have another word.

If all that stuff about permissiveness and obscenity and crime, and how the public could somehow straighten it out by voting Republican — if all that stuff was so moral and urgent, how come it can be abandoned so speedily once it fails to produce at the polls?

The most charitable explanation is that we have here another example of setting public policy on the basis of public opinion surveys — what we have called Mr. Nixon's bold followership. The most realistic explanation, however, is that the President's political strategists based their fall campaign on such polls showing that the broad issue of law and order was the single thing that concerned the public most — and therefore adopted it as the thing Spiro Agnew, Mr. Nixon and their followers would hammer home hardest.

Well, if they really are interested in doing something about crime, let them take a look at the federal, state and local prisons in America. Start with the basic fact that 80 per cent of all felonies in this country are committed by repeaters, people who have been convicted of crime, punished and sent back out into society.

WHAT DOES THAT say about the efficiency of the prisons, which presumably should have some role in preventing crime? What does it say about the attitude of priorities which devotes 95 per cent of all spending on correction in this country to prisons and guards and only 5 per cent to health, education and other rehabilitation work?

Admittedly, this is not the sort of issue you would expect Murray Chotiner or John Mitchell to recommend to the President. It seems to be pro-prisoner, what Agnew might call squishy soft on criminals, in calling for more rehabilitation instead of thicker walls and more expensive alarm systems.

It might, God forbid, be interpreted by some of the President's admirers or his voter target groups as being pro-poor, or pro-black, because that is what so many prisoners are. It's unlikely that that would sit well with authors of the late, nationwide "southern strategy" which is now in the midst of such hasty rewriting.

THE ADMINISTRATION line has been pro-cop, and it is hard to see how it could abandon that very conveniently. But that line is a totally oversimplified version of what really would help the police most. Experts in the field maintain that the administration could shift the whole Vietnam war budget into law enforcement as it is commonly conceived — more weapons, mace, radios and prisons — and in the long run end up worsening the crime situation because more people would end up being sent to crime school.

The prisons are crime schools. To convince the public that they deserve the kind of attention and reform that would bring down that 80 per cent felony repeater rate would require high-level leadership. Not the kind based on advance public opinion polls, but the kind that is willing to work for an unpopular cause because it is right.

Marin residents on a modest budget who think they can save money by buying a used car without a dealer warranty, read on — I have a sad tale to tell.

It all started late in July. I knew I had to get another car because my old one was falling apart rapidly, but I didn't have much money. The natural choice was a Volkswagen, an economical and dependable (or so I thought) car.

After shopping around, I found a nice looking, sweet running little sedan at the shop of a San Anselmo dealer-repairman, who shall remain nameless, through no merit of his own.

The car had everything — sunroof, radio, low mileage, good interior. It even was a pleasing shade of blue.

I PICKED IT UP the second Monday in August and happily drove it to a Tiburon City Council meeting that night. I was so glad to be rid of my old clunker, I didn't even mind that the radio didn't work.

This happy state lasted exactly 12 hours. The next morning, on my way to work, the car did a funny little number in the middle of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. It wouldn't budge. I shifted into every gear the car had — nothing. Finally, by dint of much shifting, we got going again.

That night, I took the car back to the dealer. He reminded me that the car didn't have a warranty. (I knew that — it would have cost me $500 extra). Then we went for a spin around the block, after which he assured me that the car was sound. "I wouldn't have sold it if anything had been wrong," he said soothingy.

Somewhat mollified, I continued to drive the car without trouble, but a week later it pulled the same trick again, this time for real. I was in Mill Valley, and had the bug towed to a garage. The problem? Someone had taken the transmission apart and neglected to put it back together again properly, with the result that two gears had engaged at once. The bill? $160.

WELL, I THOUGHT, I'm still ahead. The warranty would have cost $500. That belief lasted exactly three weeks. On Sept. 20, with the prospect of a week off, I was headed toward Arizona to visit friends when, north of Los Angeles, it ally went. One moment I was cruising along at 50 miles an hour, the next -- rattle-gasp-clunk! — I wasn't.

The car was towed (for $28) to a garage where the proprietor glanced at it and told me I needed a new engine — special this week, $400.

Not having that sort of money, I left the car there and took the bus back to Marin, where I spent the rest of my vacation in bed.

It's hard to focus my mind on the next month. I tried to borrow a car to go tow my VW back. No luck. I inquired about renting a car. With mileage, tow bar and other accoutrements, it would run about $100.

FINALLY, last weekend the garage owner in Southern California told me I had to get my car or he would sell it. I called an attorney. Yes, he said, that's legal. So I scraped together $100 and rented a truck and car trailer and drove all week end to retrieve my poor car, still broken. The rental fee? $85. The storage fee at the garage (which no one had mentioned to me) $97.

The car now is back at the original dealer, because he said he would be a nice guy and fix it for half price, "even though I'm not legally obligated to do anything." My comment about moral and ethical obligations didn't seem to bother him.

I'm not sure I'll be able to pay the $200 or so to fix the car. I may have to sell it to pay the bill. Total expenses in buying the VW: $895. Total expenses for repairs and related costs: $588, not to mention a lot of bother on my part. A warranty would have been $88 cheaper.

Fortunately, I kept my old car, which runs beautifully. At this rate, I may have it for a long, long time.

Driver Reports Shot Fired At Her Truck

Mrs. Thomas Johnson, 795 Bernice Avenue, Rohnert Park, told Petaluma police that a shot was fired at her pickup truck Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. while driving in the 1200 block of ePtaluma Boulevard North.

Mrs. Johnson said she thought a tire had blown out, but found a small bullet hole in the windshield below the rearview mirror when she stopped.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Hoo-Malli-Malli At Civic Center, And Indians Heading For Potlack

Fusselman

Well, it looks like Mr. "I'm Going To Run This County and Don't You Ever Forget It" can add some more stitches to his motto tapestry, such as, "I'm going to lock it up tight. Just try and stop me."

From the I-J: "County Administrator Alan Bruce said today that after 'the judges said please' could they have keys, the keys fitting the new locks were delivered to the superior court judges late Friday."

Here's another: The bad news about the insurance companies getting off the coverage had to be processed by Bruce-Barrows & Campanella before the supervisors were permitted to know about it. Hence the ceiling hitting at the board meeting Tuesday. Oh what a hoo-malli-malli: the elected-by-the-people judges and supervisors treated like second-class members of the official family. "Ferhevinssake" just how long is the board going to let such screwball egoism continue?

THIS FROM my files of the state Chamber of Commerce reports of operational costs of the counties (San Francisco not included):

1954-55 per capita cost of operations

San Mateo 57 (bottom of list)	$45.90
Marin 56 (next lower)	$53.39
Sonoma 32 (from top)	$103.73
Santa Cruz 30 (from top)	$108.37

We hadn't been blessed (?) yet with "the most powerful man in county government." Check our rating now and wonder about it for awhile.

NOW ABOUT the British Columbia Indians (judging by the phone calls readers were most pleasantly interested). This week I called up an engineer friend of mine and asked him to check the miles those sturdy people paddled to the Puyallup River Valley hop fields and back. They started from up the Frasier River just south of Vancouver, B.C., and from areas north of that city.

It worked out, as the crow flies, about 300 miles each way. However, when one considers that they stayed fairly close to the shoreline while going through the rough Juan de Fuca Straits and other bad water, it undoubtedly exceeded that figure.

The canoes were big affairs requiring two or more men at the paddles. They travelled day and night to Seattle — over 200 miles.

Because of the night traveling, each canoe carried a torch in the bow, something like the hula torches we have in our gardens at night in the summer when we barbecue. That was the delight of this youngster, when he would hear the chant of the paddlers — something like "Hi-Hoo" with each stroke — followed by the darting lights all over the bay as they came in for a landing on the beach.

IT'S WELL to keep that picture in mind, for what comes later, when I was 23.

When the hops were picked, we would suddenly find a relative few camped along the beach again. Those were the frugal ones who stopped to go up town and shop for the winter's supplies.

The others were splashing their way northward in a hurry to get to the annual potlach held just north of Bellingham.

I will try and paint the picture for you of this eye-bugging event next week.

234 Owners Said To Be Delinquent

The Greenbrae Property Owners Association has agreed to press collection of 234 delinquent maintenance assessments which have accumulated over the last four years.

Beth M. Reilly, association secretary, said yesterday the bills were turned over to the association when it accepted maintenance anda rchitural review responsibilities from the Schultz Building Co.

She said the association will continue the Schultz policy of collecting between $10 and $15 per year from each of Greenbrae's 1,200 homeowners.

Mrs. Reilly said the association will consider placing liens against 19 property owners if the bills are not paid.

In other action Wednesday night, the association also signed a contract with Forster and Kroeger landscape maintenance firm of Corte Madera to handle maintenance of Greenbrae's public areas. The firm was hired on a cost plus basis, Mrs. Reilly said.

Money For Litter

HOUSTON (UPI)—Mrs. C. E. King told members of the C.E. King High School band she would donate $1,000 for their trip to the Rose Bowl Parade if they spend Saturday picking up litter on C.E. King Parkway.

Resigns From City: Not 'Super Tom'

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Augustus H. Davis, the black director of Bridgeport's model cities program has resigned, saying he is not the "super Tom" Mayor Hugh C. Curran needs to run the city renewal agency.

Davis, who took the Bridgeport post last May after serving as model cities director in the Bronx, N. Y., for two years, said Wednesday, "The mayor has never been used to a black man being in position to make independent decisions."

"What the man needs is a super Tom," a reference to Uncle Tom, Davis said, "someone who does not mind running the program with all kinds of strings attached."

Switchboard Helping Musicians Need Aid

Marin Musicians Switchboard may go out of business for lack of money, so its founder has turned to a public appeal for donations to keep the service in operation.

The switchboard helps young musicians find jobs, link up with other musicians to form groups, and tells fans where groups are playing in the Bay Area. It does not charge for its efforts, according to David Hutchinson of Muir Beach. He has operated the swichboard since Jan. 14.

Most of the music switchboard's users are rock or folk musicians, but it also serves jazz and classical musicians, Hutchinson said.

He added that he has filed a formal request with the Marin County Youth Commission for financial aid, but that this would take more than a month to bear results. Meanwhile, "we need $100 by Dec. 1 to help with rent and phone bills. We also need volunteer workers," Hutchinson said.

He said donations are tax deductible, and may be made to Post Office Box 1314, San Rafael.

Winnebago Shares Good For Long-Pull

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Winnebago Industries has been recommended to me for the long pull. What do you advise? — K.L.

A. In view of Winnebago's above-average outlook, the stock of this leading motor home producer appears fairly priced at present quotes. Over the past five years, company sales have advanced tenfold to $44.9 million for the fiscal year ended February 28, 1970.

In the same interval, per share profits surged from 6 cents to 53 cents. And for the most recent period, the six months ended August 28, 1970, Winnebago reported further gains. Per share net reached 45 cents (versus 33 cents); and sales topped $40.3 million, up from fiscal 1970's $26.4 million.

Motor home sales, on an industrywide basis, are expected to increase about 30 per cent over 1969. Winnebago, with about 40 per cent of the market, is expected to lead the way. Shares have long-pull appeal.

Q. I would like some information on Rowe Price New Horizons Fund. — H.M.

A. Rowe Price New Horizons Fund reopened its public sale of new shares after a lapse of almost three years. Share sales were stopped in October, 1967, because the fund was unable to find suitable investments at that time to meet $1 millio-a-day inflow of subscriptions.

Although the fund's performance in the first six months of 1970 has not been up to par, New Horizons is among the top 25 funds which have made substantial recoveries since the market bottomed-out in May. Horizons is a speculative no-load, but one with an excellent long-term record.

Q. My husband wants to buy several hundred shares of Ling-Temco-Vought $5 convertible preferred for income. What do you suggest? This represents our life savings. — A.M.

A. On September 1, 1970, directors of Ling-Temco-Vought suspended preferred dividend payments indefinitely, with prospects of resumption indeterminate. This, coupled with the fact that LTV is currently operating at a deficit, is extremely top heavy with debt and possesses little recovery appeal at present, hardly makes this a situation worthy of any capital investment — let alone your life savings.

Sun Appears To Be Setting On Rolls Royce's Auto Empire

LONDON (Toronto Telegram News Service) — Like the Bank of England, the Tower of London and Buckingham Palace, the fame of Rolls Royce rings out all over the world as something which is true-blue British.

After all, the modern-day chariot fits into a class of its own — and its name has found a prominent place in the English language that signifies the height of luxury.

Yet even the mighty can be shown at times to have feet of clay, for the Rolls Royce company now is going through a crisis that appears to be packing a disastrous punch.

Trading shares of Rolls Royce, once considered a glamor stock, are having the daylights shaken out of them as they bump along in a friendless market.

It is true that the company's factories still produce peerless cars for long queues of wealthy buyers, but airplane engines have lately become the main Rolls Royce concentration.

And it is so expensive engaging in the costly business of modern jet research and construction that the company no longer has the financial resources to stay in the big league where it competes with major U.S. firms.

Although the company sells successfully all around the world (and provides the power units for many U.S. aircraft), the time has arrived when Rolls Royce must ask the British government for more monetary help or lose its independent identity by joining hands with North American or European manufacturers.

The plight of Rolls Royce is so serious that it recently had to turn to the Bank of England to raise fresh capital in the city of London. This is normally the desperate last throw before a knockout, and underlines the precarious financial position of the company.

The move for Bank of England assistance came after Rolls got a $50 million loan earlier this year from a government agency.

To make the company's cash problems even more worrying, the present Tory government has adopted the attitude that British industry must stand on its own two feet.

There is to be no more feather-bedding at the expense of the taxpayer.

Yet Rolls Royce is a special case.

It is a large employer of labor, and industrial cities like Derby would suffer badly if its factories closed. Rolls Royce also earns large amounts of foreign currency — and with new projects in mind, the company is potentially an even bigger export-earner for the United Kingdom.

The modern jets produced by Rolls Royce are first class. The problem is financing the building of the engines and the long gap the company has to wait before money starts flowing back from sales.

International business now is becoming so big — with powerful U.S. interests making deep penetrations in the European markets — that even a company as famous as Rolls Royce can no longer hold itself upright for long.

Textile Imports Up

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Belgian textile imports reached an all-time high of $1,240,000,000 last year, up almost 20 per cent from the figures for 1968.

Big Sales Tax Increase In Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Texas' sales tax collections jumped a whopping 63.1 per cent in 1969.

Most of the increase in collections was due to a 1-4th cent boost in the sales tax rate, extension of the levy to many items not previously covered, and imposition of local sales taxes in many cities.

Market Falls Sharply For Second Day

Working against the list was selected profit taking after recent good gains, normal pre-weekend evening up pressures, and concern over the possible inflationary effects of the General Motors settlement.

Shortly before the close, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 8.21 at 759.79. Of the 1,603 issues traded, 973 declined, while 350 gained.

A turnover of around 12,750,000 shares compared with 12,520,000 shares traded on Thursday.

Closing prices included AT&T 45 3-8 off 3-8, Bethlehem Steel 21, Chrysler 24 1-4 off 3-8, Du Pont 118 3-4 off 1-2, Ford 48 3-8 off 1-2, General Motors 70 3-8 up 1-4, Southern Pacific 30 1-2 off 3-4 and U.S. Steel 29 3-4 off 1-4.

Monte Gordon, analyst for Bache & Co., said the three events—the GM agreement, a one-quarter point drop in the Federal Reserve discount rate, and a similar reduction in the prime interest rate by many commercial banks—all have disappointing characteristics.

He noted that the GM settlement carries with it major inflationary implications which are likely to affect settlements in other industries, including aluminum, steel, and can manufacturing.

As for the interest rate cuts, Gordon noted many traders had been hoping for one-half point reductions, not one-quarter.

Federated Department Stores, Honeywell and National Cash Register were among the most active issues as a result

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Trillion Dollar GNP Forecast For 1971

Next year, the U.S. output of goods and services will exceed the trillion dollar mark for the first time on a calendar year basis, according to the 1971 outlook of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on business and economics.

Gross national product in current prices is seen as possibly reaching $1,046 billion, or up 7 per cent from its 1970 level. This compares with a 5-per cent rise now estimated for this year. The rate of inflation is expected to slow somewhat, though perhaps not signigicantly.

Other economic trends forecast by Metropolitan indicate the continuation of relatively tight financial markets and less than full employment of the labor force.

Northern coastal California experienced a slight drop in business activity during October, according to Security Pacific National Bank's business index which has declined for the second successive month. However the regional economy continues at 3 per cent above year-ago tallies.

INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CORP. directors have declared an increased quarterly dividend of 28.75 cents per share, payable Jan. 15, which will be equal to an annual rate of $1.15 per share. International has reported record sales and earnings for the third quarter and first nine months this year. The nine months net income was up 30 per cent over the 1969 period.

THE EMPORIUM CAPWELL CO. has announced it will start construction of a 207,000-square foot Emporium department store at Tanforan Park in San Bruno next spring. An opening is scheduled for the fall of 1972. It will be the 10th Emporium store and the company's sixth on the Peninsula. Approximately 85 per cent of available store space in Tanforan Park has been contracted for. It is a regional shopping complex of 48 acres. First phase to be completed next February will contain 68 stores.

LONGS DRUG STORES has announced a 17-per cent increase for the nine months ended Oct. 31. Unaudited sales were $119 million against $101.4 million a year ago. Sales for the three months ended Oct. 31 increased from $35.6 million a year ago to $41.5 million - also up 17 per cent. Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 16 cents per share.

SAFEWAY STORES, INC. has elected William S. Mitchell to the presidency, succeeding Quentin Reynolds, who was elected chairman of the board. Reynolds will be chief executive officer and Mitchell will be executive officer in charge of operations.

BOISE CASCADE CORP. has broken ground for a new $7 million particleboard plant in Ukiah. It will convert over 130,000 tons of sawmill and plywood plant residues, previously burned or discarded, into 85 million board feet of particleboard to be used in home construction as well as furniture.

ST. LOUIS SOUTHWESTERN RAILWAY CO. (a subsidiary of Southern Pacific Transportation Co.) is asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve its plan to acquire one-half ownership of the Alton and Southern Railroad, to be purchased from the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Co. for $8 million cash.

PACIFIC SOUTHWEST AIRLINES has applied to the California Public Utilities Commission to have Stockton and Fresno included in its route structure between San Francisco and Los Angeles. It would provide Stockton and Fresno with four daily roundtrips to San Francisco and four to Los Angeles.

Goodrich Producing Stick-On Signs

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Something new for the sign maker: A magnetized sheet material that is self-adhering and can be formed to create three dimensional effects and raised letters.

The flexible material comes in 100-foot rolls and is expected to find its biggest market in advertising signs and identification panels for commercal vehicles, says the manufacturer, B.F. Goodrich.

Fresh Crab Supply Doubtful, But Sabella's Will Get Along

Fresh crab at the restaurants this week was considered doubtful when this was written, though there may be some change by the time it comes out in print.

The fishermen were asking for more money, saying they could not afford to take their boats out at last year's prices. Restaurant owners countered that they couldn't afford to pay what was asked without pricing their menus far out of reason. So there the matter stands.

Fresh crab probably won't be served to any extent until the first part of next month when the catch from northern waters hits the market. In the meantime the crab you get will be cold storage crab. There is nothing wrong with it and you have been eating it since the last season ended four months ago.

ACCORDING TO LOU SABELLA, some local crabs may be sold during the rest of the month — but not many, and the season is now considered to get its real start with the catch from Eureka and Oregon in December.

This has never been of much concern to Sabella's which has so many seafood items on its menu it's hard to tell when one season ends and the next one begins.

Incidentally, Sabella's will close on Thanksgiving this year — the first time I can remember that this has happened.

WHEN I TALKED to Stan Valan at the Grotto in San Rafael, he, too, was skeptical about much fresh crab being served this month. But at the Grotto fresh sole, fresh salmon (from Oregon) and other fresh fish is quite another matter.

The Grotto recently has been trying out a "late menu" for after 10 on Friday and Saturday nights and it appears that this will now be made more or less permanent. It still provides quite a few selections for latecomers — seafood cocktails, chowders, French fried seafood and also steaks if you want to go that route.

THE LAST I HEARD, Franchini's Chateau at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley Road was planning on delaying its scheduled Friday night crab cioppino spread this week, so before you count on tucking a bib under your chin at Niki Franchini's tables it would be wise to phone and make sure he's serving fresh crab.

AL BARTHEL, who has succeeded in getting permission finally for a tile roof to brighten up the exterior decor of his Senor Alfredo's Mexican Restaurant in San Anselmo, has expanded his selection of California wines, which he claims are particularly suited to Mexican food.

"People forget that when California belonged to Mexico, grapes were brought here and planted by the padres. Not many of those Mission grape vines are left today but the popular wines we now produce are a good accompaniment for enchiladas and the rest of our dishes. Mexico no longer produces much wine — and none for export, so Mexicanos have gotten into the habit of drinking pulque, beer and tequila with their meals," he explained.

Senor Alfredo's will also be closed on Thanksgiving. The way it looks now, if you are planning on restaurant dining Thanksgiving Day it might be a good idea to start phoning ahead to find out if your favorite spot will be open.

LA PETITE (shortened from Le Petite Gourmet), on Reed Boulevard near Strawberry Town and Country Village has also changed its decor, added waitresses and adapted its menu to a fuller meal.

Among t oher things it has added a prime rib dinner for $2.95 which includes baked potato, tossed salad and warm French bread. Crepes, sandwiches and wines are still served.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

AMERICANS probably never will match the French in wine drinking — but they're catching up a bit.

This year's consumption by the average adult American will be about 88 three-ounce glasses. Economists predict that this will increase to 117 glasses by 1980.

Californians drink more wines than the residents of any other state — our own products and those from other areas combined. They still drink more table wines than people elsewhere in the United States who seem now to be switching over gradually from sweet wines.

In the first eight months of this year, the California wine industry shipped 122.7 million gallons to market — an increase of 14.2 million gallons from the same period last year. Table wines increased 12.5 million gallons, sparkling wines 3.3 million gallons and sweet wines dropped off 2.7 million gallons.

It takes food to bring out the best in a glass of wine.

PIER 15 in San Rafael is preparing for its annual Liars Dice Tournament. Closing days for all entries will be Dec. 1. Trophies and other awards will be given. Last year's winner Bill Patterson, co-owner of Pier 15 has disqualified himself from competing again this year.

Bill is another one of those restuarant people who have bought places in the boondocks to get away from it all periodically. But Bill's hideaway isn't a duck club or pheasant club like some. He has a cabin and about 50 acres in the wilds west of Healdsburg where I understand the wild boar and deer hunting is good.

LOOKING for a good restaurant to try out on a Monday evening when so many places are closed? The Normandie on the San Rafael Miracle Mile, which serves French food expertly prepared by Andre Marquer, is one.

If you haven't discovered it by now — where have you been? It has been here a whole year — in fact is just celebrating its first anniversary this week.

HAMANN ENTERPRISES, INC. of Rohnert Park, which operates Hap's Hangar Restaurant at the Sonoma County Airport and is rebuilding its Blue Yonder restaurant recently destroyed by fire at the Marin County Airport, has been authorized to operate the new restaurant facility planned for the Reid-Hillview Airport in San Jose. Detailed design is being handled by Lieb and Quaresma, Petaluma architectural firm. The restaurant expects to begin operations next March.

VINCE GUARALDI is featured at the Lion's Share on the San Anselmo Miracle Mile tonight and tomorrow night. Sunday you'll find the Brotherhood and Jerry Hahn entertaining.

Consumers' Film

The film "You Don't Have to Buy War, Mrs. Smith" featuring Bess Myerson Grant, New York City consumer affairs officer, will be shown Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Fellowship, 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

Controversy On Auxiliary Apartment Ends In Ross

The Ross Town Council last night ended an eight-month controversy over the use of an auxiliary cottage at the home of Joseph E. Tilt, 18 Olive Avenue, by reversing a previous stand.

In August the council denied a use permit to allow the second dwelling to be used as a guest cottage or maid's quarters, but reversed that stand last night on a motion by Councilman John H. Chase.

Chase suggested a conditional use permit be granted provided Tilt files an affidavit indicating the exact use and the extent of use. The council agreed 4-0 with Roy Farrington Jones abstaining.

The permit will be revoked in 60 days if the affidavit is not filed or is unsatisfactory, Chase said.

Tilt had threatened court action, according to Town Atty. Robert W. Elliott.

The controversy over the apartment arose in March when Tilt bought the property. A renter who had lived in it for eight years had been allowed to stay because he pre-dated an ordinance banning rentals in single family zones, but a variance was required when ownership changed hands.

The council refused to allow the renter, Marven C. Rowlette, to stay despite pleas by his neighbors.

Reference To Stalin Deleted

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union deleted praise for Josef Stalin in republishing the text of a message from Communist China congratulating the Soviet government on its 53rd anniversary.

"The Chinese people are firmly confident that the Soviet people educated by the great Lenin and Stalin can continue to develop the glorious traditions of the October (1917) revolution," the greetings from Peking said.

Russian censors deleted the reference to Stalin in printing the greeting in Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper.

Income Forms Help Offered

The Sonoma County Veterans Service Office will assist anyone in completing the annual income forms required by the Veterans Administration by Jan. 15.

Lester E.G. Setser, veterans service officer, said his staff will assist veterans, their widows or dependents, fill out the income questionnaires.

He said that if the forms are not returned or are incorrectly answered, the veteran or his widow may suffer a reduction in assistance or pensions. The veterans office is located at 2555 Mendocino Avenue, Santa Rosa.

Stiff Fines Approved For False Fire Alarms

The Ross Town Council last night passed a tough ordinance governing fire and burglar alarms with a fine up to $500 for repeated violations.

The ordinance, first of its kind in Ross, was passed almost without comment after a year of discussion on how to solve the problem of malfunctioning alarms in private homes.

The ordinance calls for no fine for the first false fire alarm, but charges a $100 fine for the second, a $300 fine for the third and a $500 fine for the fourth.

False burglar alarms will carry no fine.

Installers of each type of protective device will be required to obtain a license from the town and sell only alarms accredited by a nationally recognized testing laboratory.

Owners, when the ordinance becomes effective in 60 days, will be required to obtain a permit for $5 and to renew the permit annually. They must also post a notice on who to call to repair the devices.

Attaching the alarm to an automatic telephoning device is also banned under the ordinance. However, alarm companies may set up a special line with permission of the police or fire chief.

The Ross Town Council Also:

FLOOD INSURANCE — Put over to Dec. 10 a discussion of applying for federal mudslide and flood insurance to study effects of federal strings regarding zoning.

DEBRIS BOX — Decided to place a debris box for leaves in the Ross post office parking lot for two weekends beginning Nov. 21 on an experimental basis to see if it eases the debris disposal problem.

QUORUM — Declined to act on a request by the City County Planning Council which wanted to change its definition of quorum from 13 of 24 members to representatives of six different municipalities and the county.

HOUSING COMMITTEE — Called for applicants to serve on a town housing committee to study the applicability to Ross of county findings on the housing.

Lear Engine Test To Begin Soon

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—Industrialist William Lear said today torque and horsepower tests will begin within two weeks on his vapor turbine designed for steam-powered vehicles.

The prototype turbine weighs 20 pounds, has a capacity of 250 horsepower and should "dramatically" reduce air pollution, he said.

"The new turbine will be powering a General Motors Chevrolet Monte Carlo by mid-December and a GM 50 passenger bus by next March," Lear said.

A newly developed fluid he calls learium will be used in his steam-propelled vehicles.

A SPECIAL SHOE

The special shoe New Orleans Saints' kicker Tom Dempsey wears on his malformed right foot has become the target of Dallas Cowboys' owner Tex Schramm who says he will recommend the shoe be ruled illegal unless it has a kicking surface the same as other kickers use, because he thinks Dempsey has an advantage. In defense of Dempsey, who kicked a 63-yard field goal last Sunday, Saint Gen. Mgr. Vic Schwenk says, "We had no protest from the other teams when Dempsey was missing field goals earlier in the season." (UPI Telephoto)

NO ORGANIZED CRIME

Only Antitrust Matters Involved In NFL Probe

CLEVELAND (UPI) —The Justice Department said Thursday that next week's Grand Jury investigation of the National Football League involves only possible antitrust violations and "excludes any other areas of speculation, such as organized crime."

Only a few NFL teams remained to be subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury beginning here next week.

Boston, Miami, Houston, Oakland and Washington were the only teams left that had not received subpoenas to have a representative bring records of personnel matters, such as contracts, waivers and histories of such transactions before the Grand Jury.

Before the end of the week, all 26 NFL teams are expected to be subpoenaed. The NFL also has been ordered to provide its records for the proceedings.

A spokesman for the antitrust division of the Justice Department in Washington said, "There is a Grand Jury. It is an antitrust Grand Jury and it is a conventional antitrust proceeding involving only possible antitrust violations. That excludes any other areas of speculation, such as organized crime."

The Grand Jury was called by the Great Lakes Regional Office of the Justice Department's antitrust division, possibly in connection with former AFL and NFL player Walter Beach. However, Beach's attorney, Bob Bicks, refused to comment on his client's involvement, saying only, "I am a counsel to Mr. Beach, and I have been acting in that capacity for some time."

When the AFL and NFL merged, they were given exemption from antitrust legislation. The two leagues formally became one this season, called the National Football League with an American Conference made up predominantly of former AFL teams and a National Conference composed of old NFL teams.

Kent State's Coach To Quit—'Negativism'

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — Kent State University football coach Dave Puddington announced Thursday night he will quit at the end of the current quarter because of "negativism on campus" since the killing of four students during disorders May 4.

"The fatalism around us and the current tendency to politicize every facet of life—even sports—has certainly affected the young men in our football program," Puddington said.

The Canton, Ohio, native has compiled an 8-26 record during his two and a half years at Kent State. His team has won only two of its eight games this year.

Puddington, 41, said the failure of his team this season also was responsible for his resignation along with the "prevailing contagious negativism on campus and in the community."

He said the newly created Department of Intercollegiate Athletics will have the opportunity to pick the football coach of its choice, but department director Mike Lude said he accepted the resignation with "sincere regret."

"I have been unsuccessful in my efforts to have him reconsider his decision," Lude said.

Kent State President Robert I. White said "all involved know there has been no pressure on him and that we have applauded his dedication and efforts."

Puddington, a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University, formerly coached at Washington University in St. Louis where he compiled a 36-16-3 record in six years.

WEST COAST FOOTBALL

Year Of The Quarterback

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It's the year of the quarterback in college football and the West Coast has a talented bunch of throwers who face tough tests this Saturday.

First and foremost, there's Jim Plunkett of Stanford, the soft-spoken guy who has already led the Indians into a New Year's date with the Big Ten champ at Pasadena. Plunkett has also broken the NCAA passing and total offense marks and is battling Notre Dame's Joe Theismann and Mississippi's Archie Manning for All America honors and the Heisman trophy.

He has clicked on 154 of 286 passes for 2,253 yards and 16 touchdowns.

Plunkett gets a big test Saturday when he leads the Indians, who are 8-1, in against Air Force, also 8-1. The Falcons want this one badly, for a win would probably land them in one of the big bowls, too.

Pass defense is considered the Falcons' major weakness, however, and last year's 47-34 Stanford win might be considered a model of decorum compared to this year's rematch.

Two more golden-armed Coast tossers meet head-on in the madhouse at Seattle when UCLA calls on the Huskies.

Dennis Dummit, who has let the Bruins to a 13-4-1 mark in his nearly two years at the helm, has hit on 128 for 253 and 1,804 yards in eight games this year.

The Huskies have uncovered a soph whiz in full-blooded Indian Sonny Sixkiller, who has clicked on 151 for 293 and 1,770 yards and 10 touchdowns. But Dummit has had only 13 intercepted and Sixkiller has seen 21 stolen in what might prove to be a key difference.

The fourth outstanding signal-caller in the Pacific Eight is soph Danny Fouts of Oregon, who passed for almost 400 yards against Air Force last week and has clicked for 1,908 yards and 14 touchdowns.

He leads the Ducks against weak Army at Michie Stadium Saturday in a game that should be a great showcase for the young quarterback and the Ducks' magnificent and underrated trio of stars, Bobby Moore, Bob Newland and Tom Graham.

In more action involving Pacific Eight squads, California and Oregon State, both 4-5, are expected to even their records at the expense of San Jose tSate and Washington State respectively. USC takes the week off.

Turning to the PCAA, San Diego State and Long Beach State are roaring to their big shootout next week.

San Diego State figures to waltz through Santa Barbara while Long Beach Thursday night muscled past Los Angeles State 40-7. Leon Burns was his usual awesome self, rolling up 86 yards and two touchdowns on 14 carries, but Randy Drake added variety to the 49ers attack by passing for 258 yards.

In more teams involving the PCAA, UOP calls on Colorado State and Fresno State is at Northern Arizona.

Far Western Conference teams have a busy schedule with Chico at San Francisco State, Hayward at UC Davis, Humboldt at Sacramento State and Sonoma entertaining USF.

One more game Thursday night found Cal Poly San Luis Obispo taking care of Fullerton 28-18 with the winners scoring two safeties.

Warriors Routed By Royals

Streak Snapped At Four

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Tom Van Arsdale scored nine of Cincinnati's final 23 points and finished with a game high 29 Thursday night as the Royals routed San Francisco 121-107 in the National Basketball Association.

The loss snapped the Warriors' four-game winning streak and dropped them 2 1-2 games behind Los Angeles in the Pacific Division. The victory boosted Cincinnat's record to 5-10 and kept the Royals three games off the pace in the Central Division.

10,000 POINTS

Cincinnati's veteran forward Johnny Green became only the 40th player in NBA history to score 10,000 points when he hit a jump shot midway through the first period.

A 16-2 outburst in that quarter gave the Royals an 18-8 lead and they never were headed thereafter.

While the Royals were on their spree, the Warriors failed to score a field goal for five minutes. Van Arsdale, Green, guard Norm Van Lier and center Darrall Imhoff each tallied four points in the decisive spurt.

14 REBOUNDS

Van Arsdale also led the Royals with 14 rebounds. Guard Flynn Robinson entered the game with less than one minute remaining in the first quarter and contributed 24 points for Cincinnati.

Former Royals' star Jerry Lucas led San Francisco with 24 points and a game high of 17 rebounds.

The Royals were torrid in the second half, connecting on 24 of 45 field goal attempts to keep the Warriors at bay.

Frank Selke Resigns From Seals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Frank Selke has resigned as general manager of the California Golden Seals, according to a report in San Francisco newspapers.

Selke, general manager of Oakland's National Hockey League entry since 1968, reportedly informed team owner Charles O. Finley of the resignation plans on Monday.

Jack Fiske, veteran sportswriter of the Chronicle, made the disclosure following a phone interview Thursday night with Finley, who spoke from his office in Chicago.

Selke, contacted in Oakland, would not comment on the resignation report. But Finley indicated Selke resigned at least partly because of contracts with prior owners of the club.

Finley said Bill Torrey, executive vice president of the Seals, has yet to make a decision on whether to remain with the club.

Finely did say, however, that he expects coach Fred Glover will sign a two-year contract.

"I expect to get his contract, a two-year one, in the mali Saturday," Finley said. "Glover has no financial problems with previous owners."

Finley said Torrey, like Selke, was having problems claiming money from the Seals' former owner, Trans-National Communications, Inc.

"I've tendered Torrey a contract for two years to June, 1972, and he's in Buffalo right now to contact the Knox brothers (of Niagara Frontier, Inc.) who guaranteed his contract. He will let me know by Saturday if he'll stay. Right now he doesn't know under the circumstances."

Li'l League Expansion

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) —The Little League announced Thursday that the seating capacity of its World Stadium here will be increased from 5,000 to 15,800 before the Series next August.

CLUB PRO TOURNEY

Pair Of Golfers Share The Lead

SUNOL, Calif. (UPI) —Dick Whetzle and Francisco Lopez are about as different from each other as night is from day.

But today they are the co-leaders going into the second round of the $50,000 Club Professionals Golf Championship.

Whetzle, a graduate of North Texas State and a former All-America golfer, made some money during a brief fling on the pro tour but now he's the head pro at the posh Prince Georges Country Club in Landover, Md.

COLOMBIAN

Lopez, four years older than Whetzle at 39, is a native of Colombia who never made a dime in his try for riches on the PGA tour. Now, he's a teaching pro at Skywest Public Golf Course in Hayward, Calif.

Whetzle, playing a good round by his own description, shot a 35-33-68 at the Sunol Valley Club's Palm Course in the opening round Thursday. Lopez, playing erratically, shot a 34-34-68 at Cypress.

Whetzle had five birdies and no bogies on his card; Lopez had seven birdies and three bogies.

Because this year's tourney, a chance for the club pros to pick up some extra money, drew 261 entries, play was divided for the first two rounds over Sunol's two courses. the Palm layout plays a little tougher than the Cypress although both courses are pegged at even par 72.

Only five players beat par on the Palm layout in the first round while 24 were under regulation at Cypress.

The players flip flop today. Those who played the Palm course in the first round shifting over to Cypress for the second. After today's play the field will be cut to the low 90 and ties for the final two rounds which will be played at the Palm course only.

OPENING SCORES

Ten players were only a stroke behind Whetzle and Lopez with opening round 69s, all shot at Cypress. They were Eddie Langert of Green Bay, Wis., Bob Bruno of Oakland, Bill Collins of Purchase, N. Y. Al Chandler of New Orleans, Bob C. Smith of Fortuna, Calif., Chris Gers of Oklahoma City Okla., Bill Ogden of Chicago and Juan Elizondo of Omaha Neb.

Eight players were tied at two under 70 and eight, including former tour stars Rex Baxter and Ed Kroll, were at one under 71.

"This was an exceptional round for me," said Whetzle of his 68. "I dont think I can play any better than this, especially on a tough course as the Palm layout."

"I think I'm at the top of my game now," said Lopez. "I've been practicing a lot for this tournament. I could use the money."

First place in the club event is worth $8,000, second is worth $4,500 and third place is worth $3,300.

NO DEFENDER

The club tourney doesnt have a defending champion this year because Bob Rosburg, the 1969 winner, did not qualify. He played in more than 12 tour events this year, Jim Wright of Inwood, N.Y. who lost out to Rosburg by a shot in 1969, was the pre-tourney favorite this year but he opened with a 37-36-73 at Cypress.

Tommy Bolt, now 52, was another favorite. He had a opening round of 38-35-73 at Palm. Bolt played on the tour for 18 years, winning the 1958 U.S. open. Now, he's a driving range owner in Sarasota Fla.

49er Defense Gets Praise From Wiggin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The day may be near when the San Francisco 49ers' defensive unit comes up with one of these catchy nicknames.

Off hand there's Minnesota's "Purple People Easters," "The Fearsome Foursome" of the Los Angeles Rams and the "Doomsday Defense" of the Dallas Cowboys.

San Francisco's defensive line coach Paul Wiggin said Thursday there is justification in top-rating the 49er defense.

"This is the best defensive team I've ever been associated with," said Wiggin, who played on a couple of championship teams during his 11-year career at Cleveland.

"I'm not saying this is the best defensive line," he added, "but we're getting there. I'm talking about the overall defense."

MARIN WINS THIRD PREP CAGE TITLE

Marin Catholic High School's Class C basketball team completed its undefeated championship season yesterday with a 56-21 triumph over San Rafael High School's "C" team.

Mike Ahern led the scoring with 14 points.

The Wildkittens finished the campaign with a 12-0 record in the Marin County Athletc League and has stretched its win streak to 16 over the past two seasons.

It was Marin's third straight Class C title.

Hickerson Did Play In Bowl

A story in yesterday's Independent-Journal sports section was in error when it reported former Drake star Bill Hickerson didn't play in last year Camellia Bowl in Sacramento.

Hickerson, a linebacker for the University of Montana Grizzlies, did play in the game, won by North Dakota State, 30-3. Karl Stein, also a former Drake and College of Marin star, is a star defensive back for the Grizzlies but had to miss last year's game because of rules involving transfer students.

Stein, Hickerson and the rest of the Montana football team will get a chance to avenge last year's loss when they take on North Dakota State in this year's Camellia Bowl game, scheduled Dec. 12.

Davidson Still Gets Hate Notes

OAKLAND (UPI) —Ben Davidson's fan club may have its work cut out in trying to defend him from a deluge of letters he's received from Kansas City partisans.

NOT FANS

It's been almost two weeks now since mustachioed Ben tumbled on Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson—after the play was dead, claim Chiefs' fans.

GRAMMAR

In commenting on the mail Thursday, Davidson said most of the writers apparently were so angry they had no time for such niceties as spelling and grammar. "Here's one letter that has 23 words and six of them misspelled, and he calls me an idiot."

It Won't Be Same Without Hodges

It won't be the same on the baseball beat without Russ Hodges who announced his play-by-play retirement the other day. He will be particularly missed whenever the Giants visit Cincinatti. It was in Cincinatti that Hodges got his start in radio as a hillbilly disc jockey before switching to sports announcing four decades ago.

Thus, it was only natural that nostalgia occasionally would overwhelm Hodges during the bus ride from Cincinatti's airport into the city. And on those occasions, Hodges was at his best in story telling, especially when the bus approached Covington, across the Ohio River from Cincinatti.

Hodges grew up in Covington and, as the bus threaded through its narrow streets, he would make the blue grass country of his boyhood come alive for his radio-press companions with a little urging from them.

Hodges' conducted tours through Covington always came to an end when the bus approached Covington's city limits on the western banks of the Ohio.

"Now," Hodges would say, "if you look to the right you will see the city's unique landmark."

Hodges rarely would be permitted to conduct his tour without considerable heckling. "How come you gave up hillbilly singing?" was a standard rib which always received a standard answer: "To please my mother who always thought I'd be an opera singer."

During his sports announcing days at WCKY in the '30s, Hodges picked up a law degree and passed the Ohio bar. "But salaries for fledgling lawyers in 1933 were unheard of," Hodges said. "They worked for experience. So I kept my $25 a week radio job."

When he tried for a raise to $30 in 1934 at WCKY, the owner of the station was shocked. So Hodges moved on to a Rock Island station where he did get $30. From Rock Island Hodges' next stop was Chicago to broadcast White Sox and Cub games. There was an intermediate stop in Washington, broadcasting Senator baseball games and Redskin football games, before Hodges made it to the big city, New York, in 1945.

For three years Hodges was second man to Mel Allen of the Yankees and then in 1949 he became the "Voice of the Giants." Two years later he made his most famous broadcast when Bobby Thomson hit the home run that gave the Giants their 1951 pennant.

"The Giants win the pennant," Hodges kept screaming as Thomson's homer landed in the lower left field deck of the Polo Grounds.

The sports world remembers Hodges for that broadcast but his press-radio bus pals never will forget him for his conducted tours through Covington.

Australians In Early Lead In World Golf

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —If the Australians feel as "bloody good" on Friday the 13th as they did on Thursday, then 42 other golf teams from around the world can count themselves mighty unlucky.

Aussies David Graham and Bruce Devlin humbled the par-72 Jockey Club Course in the opening round of the 1970 World Cup tournament with a 65 and 66 respectively to take a three-stroke team lead over Argentina at 13 under par.

Graham and Devlin were scheduled to tee off early Friday to try and open their lead over the Argentines and David Stockton-Lee Trevino of the United States and to go after the individual lead of Argentine Roberto de Vicenzo.

De Vicenzo fired a sizzling 8-under par 64 Thursday while his partner in the two-man team play, Vicente Fernandez, carded a 70 to put the team 10-under-par.

The United States came next at seven-under-par with both Trevino (70 and Stockton (67) complaining about the greens.

"I've seen some bad greens", said Trevino on the 17th, "but never anything like this." The usually-chipper crowd pleaser hardly smiled when his ball rolled into an ant hill on the 15th fairway and he needed an official ruling to move it.

Scotland (Ronnie Shade at 68 and George Will at 71) and New Zealand (Brian Boys, 69, and John Lister, 71) were the only others pressing the United States for third place.

One stroke behind New Zealand at 141 were Holland, Denmark and England.

In the battle for individual honors, Hsieh Min Nan of Nationalist China fired a 66 on Thursday and Stockton and Henrik Lund of Denmark were right behind with 67s.

Allan Henning of South Africa, Manuel Camacho of Puerto Rico and Shade had 68's while U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin of England shared 69 with three others.

Lund scored a hole-in-one on the par-three 12th hole. He used a 4-iron to pop his ball into the cup on one bounce on the 176-yard hole. He won a gold wrist watch for his efforts.

While Devlin was saying "there's not a five on either of our score cards—and you won't see that again for a long time," the Romanian team was compiling a rather unusual scorecard of its own.

It was a horrible day for the only Communist country entered. Fifty-seven-year-old Paul Tomita, chewing on a pipe, fired an 85 and his teammate, Dumitru Munteanu, a 93 to finish 34 over par.

BIGGEST BATTLE ON THE BOTTOM

Marin Grid Season Comes To Close

The 1970 Marin County Athletic League football season draws to a close this weekend on a note of anticlimax. The only thing really up for grabs is last place.

Had the San Rafael High School Bulldogs beaten Terra Linda last week, they would go into tonight's 8 o'clock game against the Drake Pirates at San Rafael undefeated with a chance to win the title, or if they lost at least tie for the top spot. But the Trojans clinched the title by winning last Friday night, 19 - 7, and the best San Rafael can hope for is sole possession of second place.

Should the Bulldogs lose, and that is not out of the question, the Novato Hornets could tie them for second with a win tomorrow afternoon over the Redwood Giants, one of three teams currently occupying the league cellar. But the Hornets could end up being tied for third also. If Drake wins tonight and Redwood pulls an upset tomorrow, the Pirates of San Anselmo and Novato would end the season with identical 3 - 3 records.

Odds are, however, that Novato, winners of three straight league games after losing their first twi, will dispose handily of the Giants in the 1 p.m. game at Novato. But the Larkspur team will have company in last place, because San Marin and Tamalpais, the other teams with 1 - 4 records, have to play each other tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 at Tamalpais in Mill Valley.

The mismatch of the week, and at the same time the most interesting game in the county, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Kentfield, where the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats will host Northern California's eighth-ranked Cardinal Newman High School of Santa Rosa and their incredible halfback, Percy Grogans.

Last week the Wildcats feasted on a 35 - 8 win over Justin of Napa, but the chances for that kind of show tomorrow are bleak. Grogans, a 5-foot-11, 185-pounder who covers 40 yards in 4.6 seconds, has carried the ball 184 times this season for 1,304 yards and 22 touchdowns. Almost needless to say, he leads all Northern California players in both rushing and scoring.

But even if Marin is able to stop him, the Cardinals have some other dandy weapons. Quarterback Tom Bonfigli has thrown for 921 yards and 11 touchdowns this year, and Jim Wilkey, his favorite receiver, has caught 28 passes for 604 yards.

Wildcat coach Rev. John Heaney is going to need more than God on his side to upset this team. He's going to need the whole heavenly host.

In other games tomorrow, San Rafael Military Academy hosts Menlo at 10:30 a.m., and Rancho·Cotate of Rohnert Park entertains Piner of Santa Rosa at 8 p.m. In college action, College of Marin plays Santa Rosa in Kentfield at 1 p.m., and Sonoma State is at home against University of San Francisco at 8.

Boat Show Opens Tonight

The Northern California Boat and Sports Show opens tonight at 7 o'clock in the Oakland Arena.

Seals To Begin Road Swing On Buffalo Ice

BUFFALO (UPI)—The California Golden Seals embark on a swing through the East, starting tonight in Buffalo, and it will be a long time before they see home ice again.

With a four-game winning streak going, the Seals open a seven-game road trip and won't be back until the day before Thanksgiving. Stops after here include Pittsburgh, Boston, Montreal, Philadelphia, Toronto and Chicago.

Despite some fine skating of late, the Seals, who got off to a wretched 0-7-2 start, remain last in the NHL West, two points behind sixth place Pittsburgh.

But coach Fred Glover is confident the team will return home in a better position.

NBA ROUNDUP

Cavaliers Finally Win First Game

By United Press International

The rumor that the Cleveland Cavaliers would not win a game this season is entirely unfounded.

The Cavaliers, winless in their first 15 games tying a National Basketball Association record, rallied in the last period Thursday night to beat the Portland Trail Blazers 105-103 in a battle of expansion teams.

Coach Bill Fitch, who before the game joked that his team might become famous for not winning a game, went through the contest with a toy skull at his feet, a novelty item purchased earlier in the day.

The skull, with a miniature rat attached to the top, was still at Fitch's feet when Bobby Lewis scored with 30 seconds remaining and Walt Wesley hit a foul shot with eight seconds to go to insure the Cavaliers' initial NBA victory.

In other NBA action, Baltimore edged New York 110-108 and Cincinnati ripped San Francisco 121-107.

Russell's wrist was fractured when he fell scoring a field goal with about five minutes remaining in the game. His arm will be in a cast for six weeks.

Gus Johnson's two foul shots with 14 seconds remaining gave the Bullets their victory over New York in a game in which the Knicks' Cazzie Russell was lost for six weeks with a fractured wrist.

Marin Tars To Host Santa Rosa In Finale

College of Marin's worst football season in recent memory comes to what may be less than a merciful end tomorrow when the Tars host powerful Santa Rosa Junior College at 1 p.m. in Kentfield. The game will mark the 35th annual homecoming for Marin.

The Tars have won only once in eight games this year, and are mired in last place in the Camino Norte Conference with an 0-4 record. In Santa Rosa they face a 6-2 team, second in the CNC at 3-1.

Both the Bearcubs and Marin lost chances to improve their lot last week. The Tars dropped a 14-12 decision to the Contra Costa College Comets, who prior to that hadn't won in league play, and Santa Rosa got bombed by undefeated West Valley, i.e., 42-21.

College of Marin coach Dick Read said yesterday, "There's no doubt about it that Santa Rosa is stronger then we are. But the boys know it's the last game of the season, and they'll be giving it their all."

Unfortunately, it looks as though the Tars may have less than their all to give. Quarterback Jim Peters, who missed the Contra Costa game with a badly twisted ankle, still is doubtful. If he can't start, Read will go with either Kevin Peak or Pete Carroll.

FISH AND GAME

Bass Being Caught In Channel Waters

By AL GIDDINGS

Hazel Eddings of Buck's Landing at Santa Venetia is provoked with me. Too much running around writing about deer, trout, ducks and chukers while lots of big bass are just laying off China Camp and Buck's place (that's Hazel's husband) on Santa Venetia Slough.

The boys around Buck's Landing took eight big fish using bullheads and grass shrimp this past week. I talked with Joe Mello of Santa Venetia about all these rumors and he says they are true. He added another list of fishermen catching big ones to 23 pounds, so maybe we better be getting out there. Where? Out by the pumphouse in the deep channel waters. Use bullheads with sliding sinkers for best results. Let 'em take the bait with free line, then sock it to 'em when they've gone about 20 or 30 feet. Just guide the line out so you don't get a backlash. It's exciting!

WITH SALMON season closing Sunday in the areas outside the Golden Gate, except north of Tomales Point including Tomales Bay, (San Francisco, San Pablo and Richardson Bay between the Carquinez Bridge and the Golden Gate Bridge remains open all year) this weeknd is your last chance to nail a big one. Current reports have it that the fish are not plentiful, but if you connect, the fish are generally big ones.

Pheasant season opens a week from tomorrow on Saturday, Nov. 21. In Marin County, pheasants in the wild are almost nil, but the local pheasant clubs are already in operation and providing top hunting. St. Vincent's just north of San Rafael has just about reached their 200 member quota for this year.

JIM JOHNSON, who runs the Pierce Point Pheasant Club near Inverness in West Marin called to say that he has 4,000 birds at his Sebastopol ranch for planting on the Pierce Point Club. He has room for 75 more members out there. This is Jim's fourth year of operation on the club's 1700 acres. This year a membership for 60 birds has a $400 price tag on it. You can buy a half membership if desired.

The club shoots every day except Monday. The area is generally low rolling hills with scattered high grasses, some lupine and a scattered brush pile here and there. Lots of excellent cover for the good dog to work in. You can call Jim at his home in Sebastopol, or take a ride out to the club. Jim's wife, Betty, works at the Inverness Store if you need further information.

ARE YOU having problems with your dog on pointing, holding or retrieving? While out at St. Vincent's, I talked to Ben Warren who trains and uses dogs to help hunters on the club grounds on Saturdays and Sundays. He looked like he knew what he was doing. He has room for the training of about five more dogs. He's been in the business the past 20 years, and has worked dogs the last four years at St. Vincent's. He says he can do a pretty complete job with your dog in about two months. This includes board and room, all for the price of $250.

TWELVE STATE and federal areas will offer public shooting during the 1970 general pheasant season, Nov. 21-Dec. 20, the Department of Fish and Game has announced. An extra two weeks has been added to the season this year.

Five state wildlife areas — Honey Lake, Gray Lodge, Grizzly Island, Los Banos and Mendota — will provide public pheasant hunting.

Honey Lake, in Lassen County, will limit pheasant hunting to the waterfowl shoot days of Saturday, Sunday and Wednesday.

Gray Lodge, Los Banos and Mendota are scheduled to open for pheasant hunting every day from Nov. 21 to 29 with the exception of Nov. 26, and on Saturdays, Sundays and Wednesdays in December through the close of the season.

IN ADDITION, the refuge portion of Gray Lodge will be open to pheasant hunting on Mondays and Tuesdays, Nov. 23-24 and Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

Grizzly Island will be open on waterfowl shoot days and will also offer special pheasant-only hunts on 3,600 acres of unflooded land on Nov. 23, 24 and 27.

Five national wildlife refuges open in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will offer pheasant hunting only on waterfowl shoot days. They are Colusa, Delevan, Merced, Sutter and Sacramento.

Tule Lake and Lower Klamath national wildlife refugees will have certain days open to pheasant hunting. Hunters should obtain details at the Tule Lake Refuse headquarters located seven miles west of the town of Tulelake.

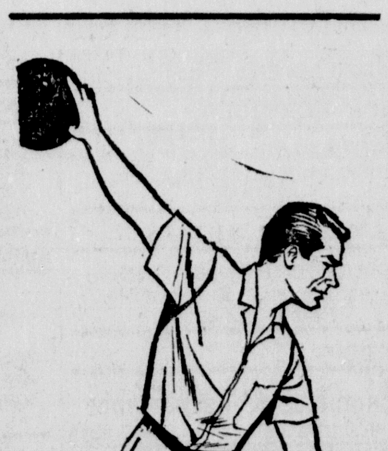
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



One of the dangers of a high backswing is that it will cause excessive speed. If a ball is going to roll, it must be delivered with moderate speed so it has a chance to stop skidding long before it reaches the pins. Very few good bowlers let the ball go as high as the bowler in today's illustration.

Richest Auto Series In History

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United States Auto Club will stage 13 races, including one in Argentina and three 500-mile events next year on its $3 million Marlboro Championship Trail, the richest series in auto racing history.

USAC's Triple Crown will include the Indianapolis 500 on May 29, the Pocono 500 at the new Pocono (Pa.) International Raceway on July 3 and the California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway Sept. 5.

The series will be kicked off on Feb. 28 at the Auto Dromo de Rafaela in Argentina, but no points will be awarded toward the series' Marlboro Cup from the twin 150-mile invitational races.

The only other track on the Marlboro circuit for the first time will be Mountaineer Speedway, now under construction at Parkersburg, W. VA. The track will open with a USAC Championship event on July 18.

Other races on the schedule will be at Hanford, Calif., March 14 and Oct. 10; Phoenix, Ariz., March 27 and Oct. 23; Trenton, N.J., April 18 and Sept. 26; and Milwaukee, Wis., June 6 and Aug. 15.

For the first time, the championship trail will not include any races on dirt tracks or road courses. Races on these types of courses will be included in other series.

Al Unser is the series champion this year with 10 victories, including the Indianapolis 500. One race remains on the schedule at Phoenix Nov. 21, and Unser has already won $448,145 in prize and accessory money.

St. Louis Icemen Triumph

By United Press International

St. LOUIS (UPI) —The St. Louis Blues don't intend to let their National Hockey League West Division dominance be taken away by the intruders from the East.

The Blues virtually have dominated the division since its inception four years ago but were expected to run second to the Chicago Black Hawks when that team was switched from the East after last year's expansion.

St. Louis is proving the Black Hawks will have to earn the West title. The Blues moved to within two points of the first place Black Hawks Thursday night with a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Red Wings in the only scheduled NHL game.

Gary Sabiurin and Tim Ecclestone supplied the offensive strength and defensemen Jim Roberts and Barclay Plaguer supported Ernie Wakely's goaltending as the Blues scored their sixth straight victory at home, a club record.

Ralston's Warning On Tickets

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford athletic director Chuck Taylor. Thursday warned fans hoping to go to the Rose Bowl Game to "investigate before you invest."

Taylor made his observation after announcing that Stanford, the Western representative next New Year's Day in the Rose Bowl, is not selling tickets to outside organizations such as travel agencies advertising tours to the game.

Stanford ticket manager Theodore Glarrow was especially miffed because some ticket agencies, he claimed, are saying that Stanford is their source of tickets.

"Stanford is receiving a limited number of tickets for the game," said Taylor, "and all of these will go to members of the Stanford community, including students, season ticket holders and certain specified groups.

"No blocks of tickets will be available to commercial organizations."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Main Objection To Marijuana Is Unpredictable Effects

Van Dellen

A worried aunt writes: "We suspect that my nephew is on marijuana. Is there any way we can prove it?"

Ask him. If he admits it, you will have your answer, but not the solution. On the other hand, if he denies smoking "pot," the problem of recognizing a user is more difficult. The weed (Cannabis) is usually smoked, and you may have your answer if such cigarets (sticks, reefers, joints) are found on his person.

THE CIGARET is prepared by rolling the marijuana in a double thickness of brownish or offwhite paper. Reefers are smaller than a regular cigaret and twisted or tucked in at both ends. They often contain seeds and stems and are greener in color than ordinary tobacco. Marijuana smoke smells like burnt rope and is detectable on the breath and clothing. The odor might be an important clue when this young man comes home after being with his friends.

We mention the latter because pot users smoke in groups. Cannabis burns rapidly, and each smoker takes one or two puffs, inhaling deeply. The cigaret is passed along quickly to the next person. Now and then, it is cupped in the palms of the hands to inhale all the smoke possible.

THE EFFECTS of marijuana seldom offer any clues unless the user is observed soon after the cigaret is smoked. Stimulation is the immediate effect. The user looks hysterical and becomes vivacious, talking rapidly and loudly. Later, he becomes sleepy and somewhat stuporous.

Technically, marijuana is a mild hallucinogen, but the federal government classifies it as a narcotic. Although physical addiction does not ensue, the drug may lead to moderate to strong psychic dependence. One of the main objections to pot is the unpredictability. All too often, continued usage leads to extreme lethargy, self-neglect and preoccupation with the use of marijuana. With tobacco, alcohol and civil unrest, we have enough trouble.

ACNE PITS

A reader writes : I am interested in finding the answer to acne scars. How can one get rid of them? I would like to konw about the least expensive method of eradicating them.

REPLY

If the acne pits are not too deep, they can be eliminated via dermabrasion. In this procedure, the skin is anesthetized and sanded down with an abrasive or wire brush. As for the cost, consult a dermatologist who does this type of work.

DIABETIC'S FEET

G. W. M. writes: Why did your health hint tell the diabetic to pay special attention to his feet?

REPLY

Because diabetics are predisposed to poor circulation earlier in life than nondiabetics. Any infection or injury might require a long time to heal and occasionally gangrene results.

MORNING COFFEE

K. T. writes: My morning coffee has a laxative effect on me. Is this a natural occurence?

REPLY

Yes, but is is more of a habit pattern than anything else. Some persons get the same result from a glass of warm water, a cigaret, or breakfast.

FACE SOAP FOR DENTURES

J. D. writes: Will brushing false teeth with regular face soap harm the dentures in any way? P.S. We all use the same bar of soap.

REPLY

No harm, so long as it gets the dentures clean.

Today's Health Hint — Muscular strain and poor circulation are common offenders in leg cramps.

Mobile Home, Sign Approved

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments yesterday approved a mobile home and sign request from Southern Sonomans.

Approved was the request of Manuel Gonsalves for a mobile home for an agricultural employee at 4485 D Street extension, Petaluma, and the request of Arthur L. Ibleton for a detached sign at his Christmas tree farm and sales office at 1492 Lowell Avenue, Cotati.

The board denied the request of Parley Smith for a mobile home at 6067 Gilmore Avenue, Cotati, because he is not exclusively employed in agriculture.

A burglar stole an undetermined amount of candy and possibly a record player sometime between 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and 10:30 a.m. Wednesday from Red Hill School, 100 Arbor Drive, San Anselmo, police said yesterday.

Officers said the thief entered the school by breaking two windows. It is the second burglary within a week at the school. On Saturday, burglars stole $5 and candy from the same snack bar broken into Wednesday.

Soviets Blamed For Collision

MOSCOW (UPI)—The British government today formally blamed the Russians for the collision in the Mediterranean Monday between the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal and a Soviet destroyer spying on the carrier.

A British note to the Soviet Foreign Ministry accused the captain of the Russian Kotlin class destroyer No. 365 of failing to observe international regulations for the prevention of collisions at sea and reserved the British government's right to make a claim over the incident.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Criminal Act And The Intent

As a rule, to charge someone with a crime the district attorney must show that the accused did his act on purpose. Not always that he meant to break the law, perhaps, but that he did not do so accidentally or unintentionally.

For example, the fact that a person acts negligently does not always mean that he also committed a crime. However, "criminal negligence" is enough to show a crime. An example: Harry takes pot shots at passing motorists and drives 100 miles an hour down a busy street endangering life and property. He may be guilty of a crime.

A special rule applies to some crimes, such as vehicle manslaughter. The negligent driver who runs someone down in the crosswalk may be convicted of manslaughter. He need not be drinking, speeding, or doing anything that shows gross negligence.

His mind may merely have been wandering when he failed to see the pedestrian. Still that death is manslaughter.

For example, a sleepy, inattentive driver hit a parked truck. The impact killed his passenger and the district attorney charged him with manslaughter. A higher court upheld his conviction even though the driver's act was only that of ordinary negligence.

"A negative act," caused by neglect, may also be a crime. For example, the person who neglects to file his income tax or the doctor who fails to report a gunshot wound to the police is guilty of a crime.

The motorist who fails to aid the victim of an auto accident involving his car is also guilty of a crime. So is the failure to support a child.

Sometimes the criminal "act" might be an agreement to do something criminal as in a conspiracy, or in encouraging someone to commit a crime. "Acts" may also be an inaction such as the mere possession of something prohibited by law such as a gun, drug, or stolen goods.

ONTO EVERY CAR A LITTLE RAIN, SNOW, OR SLEET MUST FALL.

Life for an automobile is not all palm trees, polo ponies and white sandy beaches as some car ads would lead you to believe.

At Volvo, we accept life as it is. For better and for worse.

For instance, before we send a Volvo out into the world, it's covered with six coats of paint and primer, instead of a ton of chrome.

It's a fact of life.

"By No Means Neutral"

Ernest B. Furguson's provocative new column on the I-J Editorial Page

"Unlike any editorial section writer contributing today"

Furguson has been said to write from the "radical center"

Furguson best describes himself

"Center does not connote in my case a consistent agreement with the attitudes of Middle America. Readers can expect strong opinions and a skeptical approach to politicians, combined with a deep and old-fashioned love of country. I oppose both extremes. But I do not run with any pack and am by no means neutral."

"My recent experiences in search of material include mucking around in Vietnam paddies; toasting vodka with Krushchev; breakfasting Texas style with LBJ; arguing politics in Siberia; uncovering hippie culture in New Mexico; exploring people and politics in all 50 states and more countries than that."

Furguson, national affairs columnist with the Baltimore Sun, has been chief of the Moscow bureau, Senate correspondent, White House correspondent, Saigon correspondent and national political correspondent.

Hitch: Can't Cover-Up Incompetence

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Some University of California faculty members are going to spend more time teaching president Charles J. Hitch declared Thursday.

The university president made his prediction at a news conference and said it was based on a survey he made in 1968 comparing how the faculty spent its time then compared with eight years previously.

He found that two years ago, the university's professors taught only four hours a week in the lower division and nine in the upper division, compared wth seven hours and 12.8 hours respectively previously.

Faculty members, he complained, have been in "ever-larger measure" turning over the undergraduate teaching load to lecturers and teaching assistants.

But he said he was somewhat cautious about experiments in which teachers conduct "encounter groups" in which emotions are expressed freey.

"I am a little skeptical about encounter groups on the basis of what information I have," he said.

Asked if his plans for evaluation of teachers by means of classroom visits by committees didn't constitute snooping, Hitch declared: "I don't think academic freedom involves the right that incompetence should not be discovered."

Latrielle said the association will prepare an entry for the community miniature Christmas tree festival in December. It will be decorated with pictures of members' homes.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Is It Irrelevant, Or Just Plain Bad?

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Inevitably, public soul-searching has begun in the television industry over why themes of so-called "relevancy" in new weekly series have generally failed to attract large audiences.

All sorts of imposing and sophisticated arguments have been put forth as reasons. Could it be the silent majority didn't want to hear or see any more problems? Was it wrong to flaunt youth-oriented shows in the face of traditional viewers? Who's really watching television?

Alas, Alas. The simplest answers are often overlooked in such involuted, painful self-analysis. Nobody seems to want to face the simple fact that the shows just weren't very good. Period.

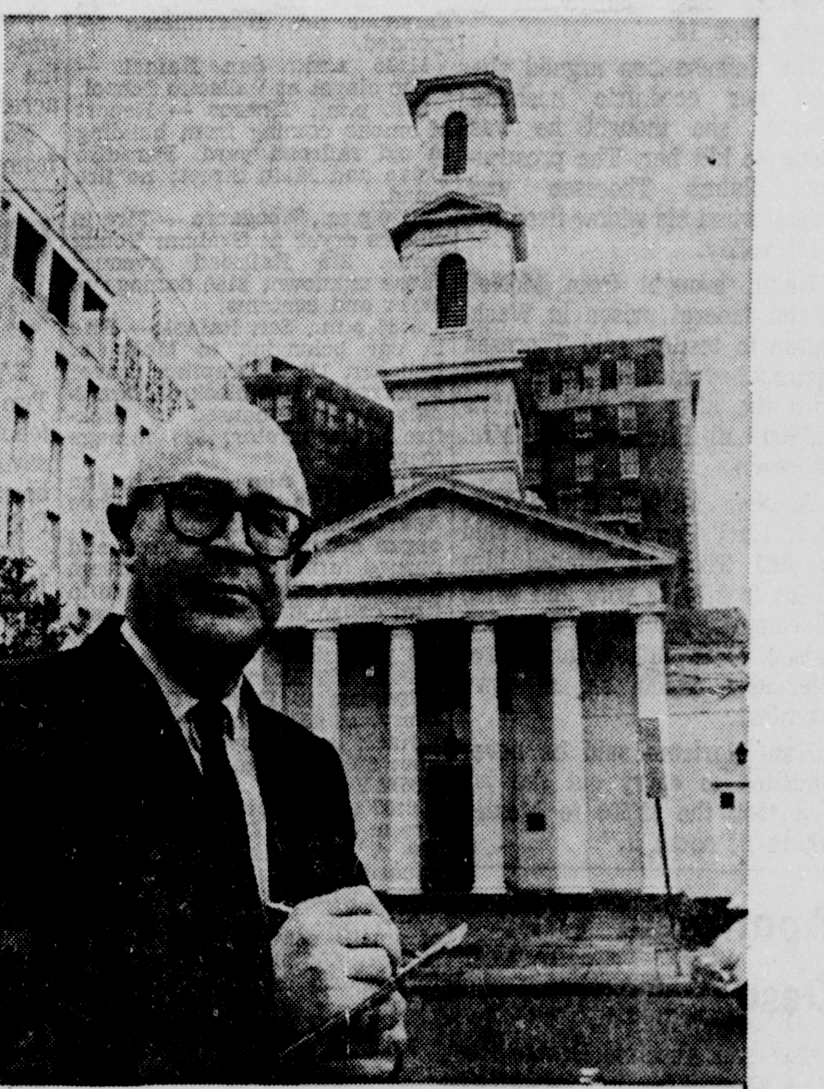
The analysts might consider the significant fact that early this year, an original two-hour NBC-TV movie, "My Sweet Charlie," which told of the friendship of a white southern girl and a black northern lawyer — both on the run — finished No. 1 in the national ratings.

It was more truly relevant than anything seen since in television entertainment. It came at a time just as fraught with problems for the silent majority and everyone else. The secret is that it was excellent. That's the key word to everything: excellence. Too many video people are always figuring, figuring, figuring the angles—what will sell, what will get an audience, ad nauseum. And the answer is so simple again: do something good, really good. That is what contemporary young people want—not cynical series aimed at exploiting them. And ratings for shows like "My Sweet Charlie" prove the middle-aged audience isn't so different in its goals. Not when it has a chance to see a truly fine program. The separation occurs in the choice between young junk and middle-aged junk.

It's important to realize that relevant series haven't bombed out. What have bombed out are the new series that were advertised as emphasizing social relevancy. The false promotion, the false shows, the false promises, the false relevancy have bombed out.

Relevancy has, in fact, been almost non-existent on television this season. What we've had is topicality exploited in the same old plots. There's a slight difference there.

And video has a problem because most of the people best equipped to genuinely deal with relevancy long ago left the merium for other entertainment outlets.



A world view of religion

by a writer of international repute HUGH CASSELS, SENIOR EDITOR, UPI.

This is the broad view of religion by a Senior Editor and Washington news analyst of United Press International. His column which now appears in more than 500 newspapers throughout the world goes beyond sectarian views to the essence of religious experience. Far from being dry or "churchy" it provides insights which offer the reader a stimulating new perspective.

CASSEL'S column grew from his conviction that religion should receive the same kind of professional in-depth coverage that modern journalism attempts to provide on politics, economics, diplomacy and science. Rights Panel Wants Supervisors To Reconsider $300,000 For Security

Admittedly bitter because its trimmed-down budget has made it hard to hire a director, the Marin County Human Rights Commission last night voted to ask the board of supervisors to reconsider its $300,000 security program at the Civic Center.

The commission voted 5-0 to ask supervisors to reevaluate the security measures instituted after the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom.

Commissioner Stephen Boxer said he had had several complaints from persons who had been searched before entering the Civic Center.

Boxer made it clear that while some of his concern was based on the possibility that the searches were a violation of civil liberties, the $300,000 appropriated for the extra security also galled him.

"I wonder if all this protection we are buying is really doing any good," he said, adding that he felt deputies were concentrating on searching long haired types and ". . . those without neckties and carrying attache cases."

Boxer, who said he has been searched twice, said the search was a "great inconvenience" to him personally.

Boxer complained that the commission has been unable to hire an executive director because the county trimmed its budget so severely insufficient money was available to pay an attractive salary.

Boxer indicated the commission should ask the supervisors how they managed to find $300,000 for security in a contingency fund when there apparently wasn't enough money to finance a fulltime director for the human rights commission.

While it was Boxer who did most of the talking the other four commissioner present appeared to agree with him.

Many in the audience supported Boxer's claims that the search was unconstitutional in their opinion.

One member of the audience said that while he was entering the building deputies made it clear that "hippie types" would be subjected to a more stringent search than other persons.

"One deputy told us that anyone with bells, beads or anything else that makes noise would not be allowed in the building," he said.

"Why protect the Civic Center any more than San Rafael High School or the Novato library," he added.

Several in the audience said this program was just another step to a "police state."

The commission also heard Bryce W. Anderson, executive city editor of the Independent-Journal, outline how the newspaper's "Secret Witness" program would work, but made no recommendation.

Kill Plot On Thoresen's Wife Related

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—A convicted bank robber testified Thursday that while he was in jail millionaire gun collector William E. Thoresen II approached him and offered to post his $25,000 bond if he would murder Thoresen's wife Louise.

Thomas Keith said he thought Thoresen was jesting.

"That was the weird part about it," Keith testified at the trial of Mrs. Thoresen, accused of murdering her husband. "I jokingly said 'why don't I blow her head off with a shotgun?"

"But he replied 'no, that's too messy,'" Keith told the court.

Other witnesses, including a psychiatrist and three of Thoresen's former attorneys, said Thoresen was prone to violent moods and that he once tried to throw Louise out of a 20th story window.

Mrs. Thoresen is accused of firing five .38-caliber revolver shots into her husband's back as he lay in bed at their Fresno home June 10.

The defense has argued she shot her eccentric husband because she thought he was going to kill her. The prosecution claims Thoresen was asleep when his widow fired the fatal volley.

Keith, brought from McNeil Island federal prison in Washington to testify, said Thoresen approached him in jail in 1967 with the offer to post Keith's $25,000 bail if he would kill Mrs. Thoresen.

Another McNeil Island convict, Earl Van Blaricom, said in 1967 Thoresen offered him $5,000 to kill his wife and when Blaricom refused Thoresen raised it to $10,000 and gave Blaricom $2,500 as a down payment.

Van Blaricom said he never intended to carry out the job and took the $2,500 to Mexico where "I spent it."

Apartment Unit Design Approved

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee has approved building designs and landscaping for a 10-unit apartment at 51 Essex Street.

Secretary Thelma Foster reported yesterday that developers Grant Perkins and Max E. Holsinger must still submit irrigation plans.

In other action Wednesday, the committee referred back to applicant Wayne Temple building, parking and landscaping plans for revision. Temple is proposing a House of Kwanyin beauty salon at 510 Red Hill Avenue.

Never Too Late To Fix Teeth

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Many persons with ugly misaligned or protruding teeth can avoid a psychiatrist's couch by having their teeth straightened, an Atlanta dentist said Wednesday.

Dr. Marvin C. Goldstein told the American Dental Association convention that no adult was too old to have his teeth straightened provided there was enough bone to hold the tooth.

"Tooth realignment and repositioning in the adult may keep a particular person from growing older as far as appearance and the condition of oral tissues are concerned," he said.

Southland Brush Fires Burn Out Of Control

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Five brush fires, fanned by warm 60-mile-an-hour Santa Ana winds, raged out of control near here today, blackened close to 6,000 acres of valuable watershed and destroyed at least three homes.

All schools were closed in the Rim of the World school district in the San Bernardino Mountains because of fires burning in heavy timber and steep terrain.

No structures were reported in immedite danger and the move was made as a precaution.

California Division of Forestry spokesman Dave Flohr said the major mountain blaze, called the "Bear Fire," was burning out of control two miles south of the Big Bear Lake dam and had consumed approximately 2,000 acres of brush.

The second fire was a flareup of a two-month old blaze in the Lytle Creek area. Forestry spokesmen said that the winds had rekindled the flames which had been burning in roots underground. It had seared 100 acres and according to Flohr, was "moving fast."

The division of forestry said a number of persons had been evacuated from the Reche Canyon area, 10 miles east of here, where two homes were burned in a third fire.

Another home was destroyed in a blaze south of Loma Linda, in San Bernardino County. It had burned over 1,000 acres.

A fifth fire was located in the Box Spring Mountain region, near the Riverside Raceway. It covered 1,800 acres and was threatening some structures in the area.

Still another blaze near Baine was reported contained during the night after charring 150 acres.

No injures were reported from any of the fire areas.

More News Next Week On Earhart

NEW YORK (UPI)—McGraw-Hill, publishers of the controversial book "Amelia Earhart Lives," said today they will have another news conference in Los Angeles Nov. 18 to reply to denials of the book's thesis.

The book was written by Joe Klaas and researched by retired U.S. Air Force Maj. Joseph Gervais. It contends that Mrs. Irene Bolam, a widow now living in retirement in New Jersey, is really Miss Earhart, who disappeared with copilot Fred Noonan in the Pacific in 1937.

File Suit On Civil Liberties

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two Negro policemen filed a federal court suit Thursday saying their civil rights had been infringed by the Oakland Police Department.

Officers Henry W. Myers of Union City and Donald Knox of Oakland said department regulations say they cannot wear Afro hair styles and that their superiors had ordered them not to make public statements without permission.

Their statements had been made during efforts to organize what they called a "viable black officers association."

The suit was filed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Father To Jail On LSD Charges

MERCED (UPI)—A Louisiana man accused of forcing his 8-year-old son to take drugs has received a six-month jail sentence and three years probation for possession of LSD.

Fretz also ordered Vail's companion, 21-year-old Sharon Hensley, San Francisco, to serve 21 days in jail and be placed on three years probation for the same offense.

Marin Realtors Play Key Role

MARIN REALTORS' HOME — Present headquarters of the Marin County Board of Realtors was designed by architect Harold Stoner and opened in 1956. At first some space was leased to other business firms, but by 1964 the board needed more room and the building at 255 West End Avenue, San Rafael was remodeled under the direction of Edward Hageman. Facilities now include board offices, reception room, printing department and duplicating room, directors room and large library.

This year, too, marks the 50th anniversary of another Marin County organization — the Marin County Board of Realtors.

Now embracing 225 offices and more than 800 members, the Marin County Board of Realtors has played an important role in the growth of the county since the early days of the 20th century when Marin county was but a few communities of summer homes for San Franciscans.

Today realtors are among the most active citizens in the community in all areas — civic affairs, junior athletic programs, city projects, and in matters of county and statewide interest, the realtor takes, and has taken, an interest for the betterment of the entire community.

The board began in 1920 as the Marin County Real Estate Board. James Leach of San Anselmo, now in his 90s, is thought to have been its first president, though records are a bit sketchy. Robert Carey, now deceased, was also one of the first presidents, as was Thomas Minto, now and still a twice-a-week golfer at the Meadow Club.

It was Minto and his partner, Tom Kent, who, along with Leach and Carey, provided much of the spark for the first years of the organization.

"One of the first meetings was held in our office on Sir Francis Drake Blvd. in San Anselmo," recalls Minto. "We had about 14 people there. That was virtually all of the real estate people in the county. Dues were $1 a month, and we used it for stamps and incidentals. We met once a month, usually in a member's office, sometimes in one of the old-time hotels such as the Tamalpais and the Rafael. The Board barely kept itself together during the depression, and was virtually inactive. It was tough sledding for everyone, including the real estate industry. But, in 1935, we were re-organized under the guidance of U.S. Turley, and have been an important organization ever since.

"I remember the land where the present College of Marin is located. My partner and I had the listing on it, but the two of us decided that this parcel of land, seven acres with a home on it, should go for a junior college site. We were losing people from Marin county to other areas because of the lack of educational facilities.

"We were able to sell the idea to the school district — even though they didn't have the full amount the bank was asking. I agreed to go out and raise the rest of it so that the land could be used for a school.

Down through the years, the Board of Realtors has been active in many important projects. They were among the first to help engineer Joseph Strauss in his dream for the Golden Gate Bridge; they backed it every way they could.

The board was active in the location of Hamilton Air Force Base in Marin county. In 1946, it initiated the campaign to make it a state law that all real estate salesmen had to have two year's experience before they could apply for a broker's license. It is state law today, and realtors feel the public is much better off with that law.

In 1951, the board opened its first office, a 10-foot by 12-foot room in the Cheda Bldg. in San Rafael, and Dan Deedy was hired as Executive Manager, a post he still holds today. Soon it moved to larger quarters at 819 A Street and then, in 1956, into its own building at 255 West End Avenue in San Rafael off the Miracle Mile.

Today th realtor still doesn't have — in the parlance of the publicity man — "a good image." In days gone by, he was mistrusted; there were no codes of ethics; license laws were lax, enabling almost anyone to get a license; there were misfits in the industry.

"Even today," says 1970 Realtors' president W. Bruce Shafer of Sausalito, "everytime one of our members gets on a public body, it seems as though he is fair game for all sorts of criticism. But the record shows that the realtor is amoung the most consientious servants on public bodies, such as the Board of Supervisors, Planning Commission, etc., and renders fair decisions for the benefit of all the public. Sure, once in a while, someone gets selfish, but that's jority of realtors who serve on jority of Realtors who serve on public bodies do a fine job. It is too bad we are suspect. We should be no more suspect than anyone else in any type of business."

The record of the Marin County Board of Realtors shows many examples where the industry has provided outstanding civic service. Shafer points out that "almost all of our more than 800 members live and work in Marin, and participate wholeheartedly in community activities. This benefits the entire county economy — no commuters. And we are one of the largest employers in Marin — probably exceeded only by the county itself and the school district."

Realtors' Board Active In Wide Range Of Activities

Working within the framework of the Marin County Board of Realtors are 14 separate committees covering many activities:

Hardwood Floors In Kitchen? Yes!

Kitchens don't have to be ugly to be efficient, and one way to give a kitchen an aura of gracious living is to install a hardwood floor.

Until recently, the idea of an oak floor in a kitchen where all those spills could damage it and heavy traffic would cause it to show wear would have been unthinkable. But not any more: New moisture and scratch-resistant polyurethane finishes for oak floors solve the problem.

Happy Birthday, McBor,
You're a bonny, fine lad.
You'll mature—we all do,
'Tis a habit not bad.

You're just fifty today,
And we've passed our three score,
But we're proud of you, Son.
Here's a cheer for McBor!

'Twas in nineteen and ten
We first hung out our sign.
We've housed many since then
And we're still doing fine.

From cottage to castle
Real estate's a good game.
From ocean to mountain
F. H. Allen's the name!

FIRST MARIN REAL ESTATE CLAIM

As far as anyone knows the first written real estate instrument in Marin County was Sir Francis Drake's famous "Plate of Brass" said to have been posted on the coast in the 16th century. Drake claimed "the whole land" in the name of Queen Elizabeth I of England. Replica of the brass plaque was presented to the Marin County Board of Realtors by the late Capt. A. S. Oko of Inverness.

Time-Saving Tips For Prospective Buyers

BRUCE SHAFER
President, Marin County Board of Realtors

Your decision to buy a home represents planning for future happiness and security.

It may have been made because your family situation demands it, because you can afford it, or because—in your circumstancees — owning is less costly than renting.

Perhaps you want the seclusion a home provides. Like many others, you may like to redecorate, remodel, or garden on your own. Or it may simply be that you have always lived in your own home and are uncomfortable otherwise. Whatever your reason or reasons, the highway to home ownership may be traveled with ease and safety if you observe one of the key road signs resulting from the experiences of millions who have preceded you.

Q. How can I find the right home for myself and my family without looking at every house listed in the "for sale" columns in the newspaper?

A. In buying a home, as well as purchasing most merchandise, consult an expert. A professional in providing the right home is a Realtor, who can use this registered term as one who has qualified through education and experience to become a member of the local board of Realtors and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. He is thus pledged to conduct his business affairs according to a strong, nationally-recognized code of ethics.

Take him into your confidence. He needs to know certain key facts in order to find you the proper home, so don't bristle with indignation, for example, when he may ask such personal questions as, "How much can you pay?"

Q. What other kinds of facts does the realtor need to know?

A. In attempting to help you find the right home, he will probably cover such points as:

1. The type of neighborhood into which you prefer to move.
2. The architectural style or styles of homes you prefer.
3. Your personal preferences in schools, churches, clubs, hobbies, and recreation.
4. Your financial situation — income, savings, and family obligations.
5. The size home you need — rooms, bedrooms, bathrooms — as a minimum to accommodate your family, the price bracket you have in mind, and the monthly payments you can comfortably assume.
6. The size home you prefer, for the comfort of your family, and the monthly payments you consider desirable, or those you consider the maximum.

The general rule of thumb is that the price of your home should not exceed two and one-half times the annual gross income, although this guide can be considerably affected by your other obligations.

Central Vacuum Cleaning System

Can today's homemaker find happiness wiht a central vacuum cleaning system — or is the cost out of sight?

An average installation, in a six- or seven-room house, would now cost from 500 to 600 dollars. Not inexpensive, certainly, but still within dream - come - true range.

A built-in central vac can be permanently installed in older — as well as new — homes. Power unit, in basement or garage, connects by tubing to wall receptacles in various rooms.

To vacuum, the homemaker plugs a lightweight hose into the wall receptacle.

A little word of but four letters--but one of great significance.

To the fortunate buyers it means satisfaction and profit. To those who saw these properties and realised the bargains they represented but could not "make up their minds", it means disappointment. To the wise man this little word is a sign of warnir a definite proof that conditions are improving and the days of remarkable opportunities growi less. We still have some outstanding bargains, but they are growing fewer and fewer.

TRUE THEN — TRUE NOW

Early real estate advertising copy stressed forthcoming price increases and some buyers held back even then. The format of today's ads may have changed — but the message contained in the last line above is still the same.

Realtors In Battle To Save Land

Realtors of America have risen to the challenge to improve the total environment of the nation in a broad-based program called Make America Better, Dean Weibel, chairman of the Make America Better Committee of the Marin County Board of Realtors, said recently.

Weibel pointed out that hundreds of the 1,570 boards of realtors in the 50 states have activated projects designed to help solve the problems of America's cities and towns. Many more are in the planning state.

Fighting pollution — air, water, and noise — is the newest area in which the National Association of Real Estate Boards is becoming involved in its Make America Better program.

Anti-crime drives focused on lighting the night as one method of thwarting the criminal have been conducted by hundreds of the boards of realtors. In New Jersey, for example, 26 of the boards are combining in a crime-fight campaign which will reach 80 per cent of the population in the state.

"In Charlotte, North Carolina, the board's 'Light the Night' campaign was so successful and impressive that a local television station made a motion picture of it," said Weibel. "Similar anti-crime programs in Long Island, New York; Oakland, California; Lubbock, Texas; Hayward, California; and other communities are credited with reducing the crime rate.

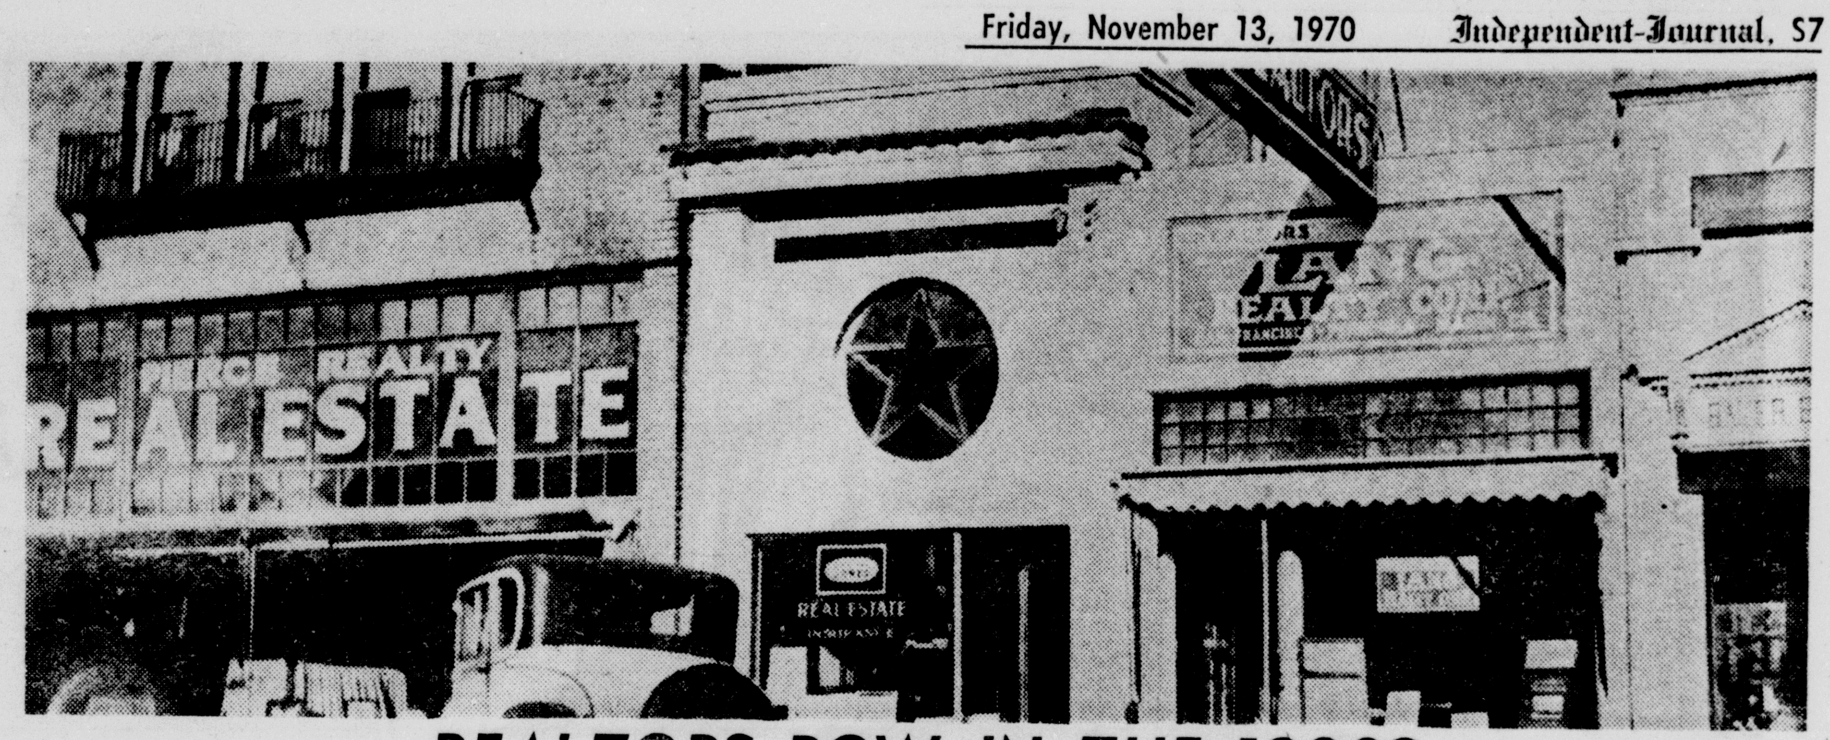
"Positive action as part of a six-objective program is the secret of the success of the Make America Better program," he said. "In our six objectives we have 43 proposals for action. This is not just talk, or theory, our boards are doing something to solve our nation's problems.

"There are many activities undertaken by boards of realtors in our Make America Better program. The program is growing to major proportions. Part of this is the result of the excellent cooperation we are receiving from municipalities, civic organizations, the news media, utilities companies, and individuals. We invite cooperation, since this is a job for every concerned American."

Excess Humidity Can Be Problem

The one cause of window condensation is excessive humidity, and it's cured by opening windows to admit fresh dry air after bathing, washing or drying clothes.

If excess moisture persists, the following key points should be checked: roof and walls for water seepage; attic for ventilation; crawl spaces for ventilation and vapor barrier; and rainware for leaks. Installation of aluminum storm windows will also reduce condensation.



REALTORS ROW IN THE 1930S

At one time San Anselmo and Fairfax together had as many real esttae offices as San Rafael. In San Anselmo they were grouped along the east side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, opposite the Northwestern Railroad station. Besides those shown, other Realtors in the "lineup" included Frnak Howard Allen, Leach Realty, Robert Carey, August Lang and Kent and Minto.

Realtors Back Plans For Trades Training

Vocational education, for years the forgotten stepchild in America's school system, is getting more attention nowadays, partly as a result of a program sponsored by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Technical and vocational training is beginning to get the emphasis it deserves. A number of boards of realtors among the 1,570 in the national association have organized projects designed to help young people learn trades, particularly in the building trades.

Vocational education has been made one of the focal points in the 43-point "Make America Better" program of realtors because of the belated recognition by educators and national leaders that the present system is just not working. Many students, unsuited for academic studies, demonstrate this lack of interest by dropping out of school, perhaps to the welfare and juvenile delinquency probing with their hands.

Skilled labor is needed in our society. It is in short supply, and will become even more so when restrictions are lifted on the pent-up housing demands. More important, emphasis on technical and vocational training literally will save the lives of young people who might otherwise wind up in an endless cycle of handouts and welfare.

Many students from grammar school through college have little interest or little use for what constitutes a college degree, yet they might have the capacity to develop unusual skills in worklems of the nation.

BOARD OF REALTORS

Vacancy Rate Only 1.5 Pct. In Marin

Marin County has an overall vacancy level in apartment housing of only 1.5 per cent.

The highest vacancy rates occurs in the Belvedere-Tiburon Strawberry area — 5.2 per cent, the lowest in San Anselmo, where no vacancies at all were reported.

Vacancies in Santa Venetia, Marinwood and Terra Linda are rated at 1.7 per cent; Fairfax 1.5 per cent; Novato-Ignacio 1.2 per cent; Ross-Kentfield-Greenbrae 1 per cent; Larkspur-Corte Madera .9 per cent; San Rafael .6 per cent; Sausalito .5 per cent; and Mill Valley-Tamalpais .4 per cent.

These are findings of a survey conducted last May and June by the Real Estate Research Council of California, an affiliate of the Bay Area Council. Multiple housing studied for the report included structures and complexes of four or more units and it is estimated that approximately 93 per cent coverage was achieved. The survey was applied to 9,727 apartments, out of a county total estimated at 10,488 apartments.

The council's report also showed that vacancies were highest in apartments having three or more bedrooms (2 per cent), lowest in studio apartments (0.9 per cent). One and two bedroom units showed 1 and 1.8 per cent vacancies respectively.

Of all apartments surveyed, 93.5 per cent were unfurnished. Children were found to be acceptable in 36.9 per cent of all units; pets in 19.4 per cent of the units. In 88 per cent of the apartments offstreet parking was included in the rental.

Realtors See Need For Better Financing

The housing crunch is easing, but its presence has revealed weaknesses in real estate financing that should be fixed.

This is the opinion of Melvin L. Mould of Long Beach, president of the 50,000-member California Real Estate Association.

"It has become apparent," he said, "that some of our financing tools need to be streamlined and guidelines applied to some of them to prevent abuse."

Specifically he points to savings and loan associations as one area where abuses occur, and notes that the association has proposed to the California Savings and Loan League that it develop a voluntary code of fair practices which would put limits on prepayment penalties, assumption fees and late charges.

"We need a uniform note and deed of trust for conventional mortgages so they can be bought and sold like securities," he said. He believes a good guide could be the one worked out by the Federal National Mortgage Association under its new authority to establish a secondary market in them as well as FHA and VA mortgages, already uniform.

He suggests as new sources of financing: Tax exempt certificates of deposit for mortgage purposes; state treasure debentures that can be sold to pension funds, puting the proceeds into a secondary mortgage market; lengthening FHA mortgage amortization schedules beyond the present 30 years to allow more potential buyers to qualify,

WEEKLY HOMES INSPETCION — One morning each week a "CAMO Tour" is held by Multiple Listing Service. Interested Realtors and their salesmen inspect new listings, make their own notes about the properties and give their individual opinions as to their market values.

Multiple Listing Service Is Boon To Marin Realtors

Multiple listing, considered the sales backbone of organized real estate for seller, purchaser, and broker, has a modern history in Marin County that actually dates back only 20 years.

The first multiple listing Service started in 1936 with approximately 25-30 members. But the organization did not have enough vigor or zip, soon was somewhat ineffective, and died.

In 1949, the late Archie Culpepper and his wife, Mabel, attended an all-day realtors' meeting in southern California on the subject of multiple listing. Upon their return to Marin County, the late Maynard Redmond was appointed temporary chairman of the service, and the Multiple Listing Board, as differentiated from the Real Estate Board, was revived on April 1.

Listings were distributed by a stenographic service; breakfast meetings were held, and the brokers chartered a bus after each meeting to visit homes that were newly listed.

Two years later, the Marin County Real Estate Board and the Multiple Listing Board merged, and the modern-day history of multiple listing began.

Multiple listing sales totalled $3,000,000 during the first year; there were 70 members. From that beginning, the service has grown to sales of more than $85,000,000 in 1969.

Today it is customary for sales to total more than $8,000,000 per month in Marin County. Since 1951, sales have totalled more than $756,000,000.

Multiple listing is now a service of tremendous benefit to everyone concerned in organized real estate — to the seller, the buyer and the broker, according to W. Bruce Shafer, 1970 Marin County Board of Realtors' president.

Real Estate Business Will See Revolutionary Changes

"The real estate broker of tomorrow will be required to be more technically competent in the fields of economics and forecasting, financial analysis, probability theory, and computer application than his counterpart of today," Donald Beacock, vice-president elect and chairman of the Long Range Planning Committee of the Marin County Board of Realtors, said recently.

"Great breakthroughs in communication and data handling are already changing the real estate business. All phases of our industry, brokerage, management, and appraisal will be undergoing tremendous changes as will related fields such as construction, financing, and title work," he added.

"Computerization will do more to change the marketing activities of real estate than any other single action in the history of organized real estate, and computer access will be as important to us in the future as our telephone is today."

He quoted a 1967 article in Business Week entitled, Homebuilding, Happy Future. . . "The demand will nearly double in the next decade, and the industry is now remodeling itself to meet the challenge."

Said Beacock: "Today, nearly four years later, 75 per cent of our population cannot afford the housing we are producing, and the remaining 25 per cent has difficulty obtaining the necessary financing to purchase what we have produced. Our housing needs and our population trends are changing, and the industry must be flexible enough to move with the change. Rapid changes will be sparked by new housing technology and material, practical application of computer technology, and new concepts.

"On the occasion of the Marin County Board of Realtors' 50th birthday, we must enter this new era with the knowledge that the past 50 years must be considered so that we may effectively plan for the next 50 years. Our industry's future objectives should be to increase even more our professional standards, to promote and protect real property ownership, to held find constructive solutions to the problems of our communities, and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness with which the industry serves the public."

Realtors' Home On Miracle Mile

A rambling one-story building at 255 West End Avenue, San Rafael, overlooking the Miracle Mile, is the home of the Marin County Board of Realtors:

A staff of nine persons headed by executive manager Daniel F. Deedy works here. Their responsibilities are principally to local board members and their relations with the public — but their services go beyond this. The office furnishes speakers on salesmanship to schools; the building is frequented by real estate students using the library — and as a place to call or visit and ask questions about real estate.

"It isn't entirely our idea," said Deedy, "but we also seem to function as an unofficial Chamber of Commerce, giving out weather reports, industrial information and answering inquiries often unrelated to real estate. We get mail from all over the United States that we refer to Chambers of Commerce and the proper agencies. The public often thinks of our building as an official state building — which it is not. And people think of it as a landmark — which is quite flattering."

Here is a sampling of some of the questions answered every month:

"I am doing research. How many sales did you have in 1890?"

"How do I go about getting back my deposit on a house?"

"Do you have maps of Marin County? Of San Rafael?"

"Where is the unemployment bureau?"

"Is hitch-hiking against the law in Marin County?"

"I am being evicted. How much notice is my landlord supposed to give?"

"I am moving to Marin County. Are your schools having racial problems?"

"Will you watch my dog while I go to the rest home next door?"

BOARD PRESENTS TREE

Home Workshop Can Prove Rewarding

Working with the hands can be a relaxing and rewarding hobby. Countless young family men make this discovery every year, a leading home improvement consultant observes. They find setting up a home workshop or hobby area to be an economical approach to home maintenance and also rewarding in terms of personal satisfaction.

Workshops set up by these budding handymen can range from simple to complex, and the location can be basement, porch, garage or utility room.

The center of the workshop is a workbench, which can be built by the handyman at low cost as a beginner's project.

In planning the workbench and its location, the young handyman should consider not only the bench but equipment, electrical power and lighting outlets.

CIVIC MATTERS

Realtors' Contributions Make Long List For Year

The Marin County Board of Realtors claims the following accomplishments and stands on civic matters during 1969:

It recommended to the Marin-County Board of Supervisors that the selection of possible routes of Highway 17 to the Point Reyes National Seashore be narrowed from 10 to two and given high priority.

It recommended that the life of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission be extended.

It urged appropriation of sufficient funds to complete the acquisition of private lands within the authorized boundaries of the Point Reyes National Seashore.

After recommending in 1968 that McNear's Beach be acquired by Marin County it later recommended that it be named Ada Fusselman Bayfront Park in honor of the board's first recipient of its Man of the Year award.

It asked the Marin County Planning Commission to adopt a minimum two-week period between the time a staff-originated policy recommendation or new ordinance comes out and when it is acted upon by the commission to allow time for citizen study.

It urged the Marin County Board of Spervisors and the California State Highway Commission to reactivate studies immediately on the relocation of State Highway 1.

It contributed more than $3,000 to 27 different and worthy Marin County organizations.

It sponsored an essay contest in Marin County high schools on the merits of private ownership of real property.

It conducted an anti-litter campaign.

It held many educational seminars at local high schools and at the College of Marin.

It joined the Ecumenical Association for Housing using private enterprise.

It conducted a voter registration drive.

Numerous Realtor members served as teachers in night schools and the College of Marin.

Members served on the Marin County Board of Supervisors, as head of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce and the Boyd Junior Museum and with other groups.

Air Conditioning Filters Need Cleaning

The filters in your central air-conditioning system are traps for the dirt and pollen that otherwise would settle in your home, and they should be cleaned or changed frequently, preferably three or four times a year.

If you have "permanent" mechanical filters, cleaning them is easier than remembering to do it. They are simple to remove, and may be washed in the laundry tubs or hosed off outdoors.

After washing they should be treated with a viscous spray that adds to their ability to remove particulate matter.

Disposable filters cost less that a dollar at hardware stores and in many groceries and are easily replaced.

These mechanical filters will collect a great deal of the airborne dust and pollen in the air in almost every home.

Intern Program Termed Success

A unique 1970 "summer intern" program, a pilot program designed to show and interest career-minded college students in the real estate field, has been pronounced a "huge success" by W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors.

The Marin County program, said to be the largest of any of the programs of its type in the state, included six interns. Said Shafer, a southern Marin realtor: "Of the six interns, three are definitely going into the field of real estate, and the others are interested in entering the industry at a later date.

"The Marin County Board of Realtors is most pleased with this program, and plans to proceed with it on a larger scale in 1971. This year we wanted to walk before we ran; next year, we will run. Interesting young people in productive careers, whether it be real estate or any other industry or field, are very important, particularly in these times."

The six interns were Stan Carter, a 25-year-old Santa Rosan, a recent graduate of Sonoma State College; Larry Kay, a Yale student who is planning on transferring to UCLA; Kevin Madera of San Rafael; Mrs. Tommie Scott of Marin City; Frank Silva of Corte Madera; and John Thomas of San Anselmo.

The participating realtors were Frank Howard Allen, Mill Valley; Earle and Solveson, Corte Madera; Gallagher-Sturiale, San Anselmo; Stephen Kramer, San Rafael; Lucas Valley Properties, San Rafael; Robert Roumiguiere, Inc., San Rafael; and Stewart Associates, Corte Madera.

The three definitely committed to entering the field are Frank Silva and Larry Kay, both are in their 20s and plan to take their real estate examinations shortly; and Mrs. Tommie Scott, who returns to the College of Marin for another year's study before taking her examination.

Probably the most unusual summer real estate intern was Mrs. Tommie Scott, a 55-year-old black mother of six who was studying for a teacher's degree at the College of Marin until this summer.

Mrs. Scott, a Marin county resident for 15 years, and a mother of six children (age 6 to 24), is "very excited" about her new future. "Getting into this field was an abrupt about-face for me," she said. "I had been studying to become a teacher when I heard of the real estate internship, and I applied.

"After 10 weeks of working in the field — doing such things as being involved in sales meetings, going on house tours, typing, mailing, spending half-days at the Recorders' Office, at the Assessors' Office, savings and loan firms, title companies, Board of Realtors' meetings, just plain answering the phone, and other projects, I have decided that the real estate field is for me.

"I think there are great opportunities in it, and I am looking forward very eagerly to finishing up my 15 additional credits at the College of Marin, and then taking my real estate examination next June. I've worked in the restaurant industry in the midwest, owned a small variety store there, but I think my new career in real estate is going to open up wide horizons."

Kevin Madera is going to the University of San Francisco, but has shown interest in pursuing real estate at a later date. Stan Carter also has shown interest in the field for the future, while John Thomas has already accepted a position with a contracting firm, a field allied to real estate.

Persons interested in the summer intern program for the future may contact the Marin County Board of Realtors, 225 West End Avenue, San Rafael.

Wide Range Of Services In Real Estate Business

The service of the realtor in fulfilling the need of the home seeker and seller too often overshadows his other important roles in the whole spectrum of the real estate field, according to W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors, which is now celebrating its 50th anniversary.

"The expansion and increasing complexity continually developing in industry and commerce point up the mushrooming need for the expertise of the realtor in ALL real estate matters, not only industry, but government is taking advantage of the realtor's professional services," Shafer said.

"For example, our growing network of interstate highways and the continuing urban renewal programs require the services of appraisers to estimate the value of properties taken under eminent domain. As part of this activity, the appraiser, who is usually a realtor, in many cases appears as an expert witness for either the government or the property owner in court cases arising out of condemnation proceedings.

"Housing for low-and moderate-income families is a current and legitimate concern of government and society to assure that this type of housing is properly maintained and administered, there is growing use of professional property managers in each development, many of them realtors. These professionals in the management function assure that both private developers' and public investment is protected and that tenants needs are dealt with fairly.

Today's rapid growth of industry almost requires that large companies maintain a real estate department. For some, however, because of size, budget, and the like, this may be impractical. Both categories, however, recognize the need of outside impartial advice, as do educational and other institutions, banks, and almost all types of business. Members of the newest branch of real estate specialization — counseling — serve as advisors in property acquisition, disposal, and use, much as a lawyer counsels in matters of law. Retained on a fee, retainer, or per diem basis, the counselor has no direct interest in the outcome of a given transaction.

"Any discussion of corporations and their need for real estate for expansion or transfer of operations, brings to mind the large number of brokers who specialize in the sale or lease of commercial property. These realtors, by virtue of their broad experience in the wisest and best uses of store, shopping center, and office structures, and through their exposure to and participation in educational programs geared to their particular specialty, are able to best handle any transaction involving business properties. They provide a unique service to today's sophisticated businessman.

"A relatively new phenomenon in business property is the industrial park, in which light manufacturing and warehousing facilities are provided for an area, which, otherwise, would have no industry to provide jobs and a broadened tax base. Many of these have been developed through Realtors who specialize in industrial property, an area which gained prominence during and immediately after World War II. The ingenuity of these men and women has brought industrialization and its many benefits to many of the medium-sized and smaller communities of our country."

Air-Conditioning Cost

The seasonal cost of operating a central air-conditioning system is surprisingly low today — much less than the outlay involved in a single three-day weekend away from home. One estimate averages the seasonal cooling expense for a normal three-bedroom home at about $71.

Hazards At Home Worse Than Highway Risks

What's a potentially greater safety risk than traveling the highways on nice sunny weekends? It isn't mountain climbing or even sky diving.

The truth of the matter is that staying at home can be dangerous. The home injury rate in one recent year was doubled that for people injured in auto accidents. And home falls and fires claimed more than 28,000 lives.

The home may be crying for major home improvements or renovations. Putting off necessary repairs can be hazardous; faulty wiring, a leaking roof, ancient water pipes can cause costly damage if ignored.

In most cases a small investment for repairs can prevent a good number of hofe mishaps. And the homeowner who is short on cash for extensive, but necessary, repairs can get a reasonably-priced home improvement or personal loan.

Safety Tour

Even in today's tight money situation, homeowners have found little or no difficulty getting money from full service banks for home improvements.

A safety tour of the home is an easy weekend chore for the entire family. Start by searching out and repairing obvious hazards such as worn or curled carpeting which can cause serious falls.

Many small repairs are easy to handle. Doors with loose hinges, knobs that don't work, cabinet doors that stick, cracked window panes — all are jobs which can be done inexpensively.

And those small repairs are important. A dripping pipe in the kitchen, bath or basement can result in a slippery puddle. Staircases should have no weak or broken steps and sturdy handrails are a must.

Ideally each room should have a window large enough to use as an emergency exit and the basement should have a door to the outside as well as at least one large window.

Bedroom doors should close tightly so that, in case of fire, smoke and flames can be kept to a minimum.

If the house lacks enough exits, installation of larger windows and extra doorways should be looked upon as an investment in family safety rather than an expensive project for a time when you have ready cash.

Another area for careful inspection is the kitchen. How many new appliances have been installed without added electrical capacity

Check Wiring

Let a qualified electrician inspect and make any necessary additions or repairs to circuits and wiring. Such an inspection is especially important where a family has been living in a home for some time and has acquired a great number of large and small appliances.

For really big plans in mind such as modernizing the kitchen or bath, a bank home improvement loan may be the answer.

If only a small amount is needed, the bank will lend that, too. A personal loan, for instance, could cover the costs of a rewiring job, new pipes or a number of small fix-ups throughout the house.

Convert Bar Into Compact Party Center

If the party's at your house this New Year's Eve, remember that simply propping bottles of cheer and mixer, an ice bucket and a few glasses atop your home bar won't make hosting any less frantic.

However, there is a way to make party-giving less work and more fun, no matter if it's a gala year-end fete or an informal Saturday night gathering of friends: convert your bar into a compact refreshment center.

The ingredients you need are a small sink, fitted with a high, fountain-type faucet, a mini-refrigerator and behind-the bar-storage cabinets. The sink will eliminate the need to keep running to and from the kitchen every time a pitcher has to be filled with water or a glass rinsed; the mini-refrigerator will give you a place to keep ice, frozen party delights and beverages, and the cabinets can be used for convenient storage of glasses, plates and other party things.

Garbage Can Is A Key To Health

Something as commonplace as a garbage can is easy to take for granted, but it's a mistake to do so, city health officials warn.

Actually, a sturdy, well-canstructed refuse container is one of the most important geys to your family's health and wellbeing.

In addition to removing a possible source of rodents, flies, and vermin, galvanized steel garbage cans of the type available today will prevent unpleasant odors from getting into the air.

Some of the things to look for when buying new garbage cans or replacing old ones are close-fitting covers, heavy enough construction to keep them from blowing over in the wind, sufficient capacity to meet your needs, and side handles for easy carrying and unloading.

One thing you don't have to be concerned about on your shopping trip is whether the can will resist rust and corrosion. If it is a hot-dipped galvanized steel can, this protection has been built in with a coating of zinc.

Health officers point out the wisdom of using two cans in many cases to avoid overloading. This makes it easier to move the cans and also prevents possible "springing of the cover.

It's a good idea to hose out your garbage cans at regular itnervals to prevent odors. Many homeowners stencil their house numbers on cans and covers to avoid accidental loss or theft.

Cool House Becoming Staple Item

Most homeowners buy central air conditioning simply to stay cool and comfortable during the summer. But it's also a plain dollars and cents fact that air conditioning is about as good a home improvement investment as can be made. The point is that central air conditioning helps protect the value of your home. It will make it more saleable and much of the cost of the system will be returned to you in the form of a higher sales price.

A survey conducted by the U. S. Savings and Loan League among 331 member firms in 43 states disclosed that two-thirds of these institutions "strongly recommended" that builders include central cooling in new construction.

Air conditioning, according to 31 per cent of those surveyed, will become a standard feature in American homes by 1972 in homes priced over $20,000 and by 1977 in homes selling for less than $20,000.

FHA Great Boon To Home, Building Field

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Department of Housing and Urban Development has inherited a $73 billion investment.

A look at where this money has come from and what it has bought shows that the government is much deeper in the business of supporting private housing than it is in building public housing or clearing slums.

About $55 billion—more than two-thirds of the investment—represents money that private citizens have put up to purchase their own homes. The government comes into the picture through the Federal Housing Administration only by insuring the mortgages.

Since its beginning in 1934, FHA mortgage insurance has been a great boon to the private home building industry.

The Public Housing Administration — another agency absorbed by the department — helps local housing authorities borrow the money to build housing for poor people. FHA then makes annual contributions to keep the rents at levels the low-income tenants can afford.

So far, about 725,000 units of low-rent public housing have been built with federal aid. The total cost: $7.2 billion.

The Urban Renewal Administration lends or gives money to local communities to clear slums. URA is back of 1,500 projects at a total cost of $2.7 billion.

Anti-Noise Begins At Home

The most effective anti-noise campaign you can wage starts in your own home. And the best defense is built-in sound control.

Noise invades a home in two ways: by transmission (as when voices carry from one room to another, and traffic sounds come through windows and doors), and by reverberation (caused when interior sounds bounce, echo-like, off walls, ceilings, and floors). To control noise in a room, it is necessary to block transmission of sounds from outside sources and to absorb sounds that originate in a room.

When you're remodeling is a good time to consider the elimination or reduction of noise in the house. Then you can select building materials with an ear to their sound-controlling properties. Here are the main areas where you can build in noise-control:

Windows and glass doors — Insulating glass or storm sash transmits less sound through windows than single-glazing, because noise must pass through double panes of glass. Closed windows can also reduce transmission of street noises into air conditioned homes during the summer.

Interior walls — Paneling can reduce noise while beautifying walls. When installed over a drywall or plaster partition, or on both sides of an insulated cavity wall, pre-finished hardboard panels are a sound deadener. They are also effective in "child-proofing" a room, since they resist dents, mars and scuffs, and can be kept clean with an occasional damp-wiping.

Ceilings — There are a number of good acoustical ceiling tiles on the market that effectively absorb sound and keep it from traveling to other parts of the house.

U.S. Homeowners Growing Rapidly

Nearly seven out of every 10 American families own their own homes — a record equalled by few, if any, other nations in the world — and newly popular forms of ownership, coupled with the almost universal desire, will increase the percentage in the future, according to W. Bruce Shafer, president of the Marin County Board of Realtors.

As examples of the emerging ownership forms, Shafer cited condominium and cooperative buildings, which are common in major metropolitan areas, and are being developed in many smaller cities.

Under these plans, occupants either own their own apartment (condominium) or own shares in the corporation which owns the building in which they live (cooperative). These two plans provide a form of ownership for those who prefer apartment living.

Many who lease their year-around place of residence own a second or vacation home; thus, they are landowners, also.

"Despite this expansion of, and desire for, real property, periodic attacks are launched on the concept of home ownership by those with varying and often hidden reasons. There are some who argue that single-family homes take too much space; that we must discourage or do away with home ownership," Shafer commented.

"Certainly, in some major urban centers there is a criticism of urban sprawl, but the idea that we are running out of land is not supported by the figures. At present, about 70 per cent of our population lives on only 3 per cent of the land. Obviously, there is still ample room for single-family home ownership," he declared, "although in some cases obvious problems of utilities, transportation, and the like must and will be solved."

Shafer observed also that home ownership is almost always financially superior to leasing.

"But more important to many is the fact that they are able to express themselves in decorating and landscaping; they are able to keep pets, entertain, and in general, decide how to live without consulting the resident manager or worry about the neighbors upstairs," he said.

The Great Outdoors Begins At Doorstep To Your Patio

Want to bridge the generation gap within your family? Then move out into the great outdoors. You don't have to go far — the gap begins to shrink right at the doorstep to your patio, where the great outdoors begins. So give your family a new room — outdoors.

Patio size, decor and degree of elegance are up to you and your pocketbook. Just remember that an outdoor family room can be fun whether it's a tiny, geranium-bordered back yard furnished with brightly painted second-hand furniture or a lavish, landscaped, canopies conpex.

Most important is the feeling of freedom and friendship the whole family experiences the moment they move outdoors together. That's one reason homes with patios sell faster and bring better prices.

You can get more use from your pool and patio area if you equip it with outdoor gas appliance — a pool heater, "people heaters," grills and lights. A thermostatically controlled gas pool heater, for example, can increase useful pool time as much as 50 percent.

Add gas infra-red heaters on the patio and your outdoor living season can be extended by two or three months. In some areas of the country they'll make it usuable the year 'round.

When you climb out of a heated pool and towel off in the warmth of a gas patio heater, you'll never realize there's an autumn chill in the air. Like the sun, gas infra-red heaters, either portable or permanently mounted, can make a generous section of your patio or pool-side cozy after the sun goes down, and for months before and after the days are warmed by the sun.

With an outdoor gas grill, open-air meals can be fun without fuss, and they get Mother out of the kitchen during nice weather. The permanent briquettes in gas grills transform heat from the flame into a radiant glow that gives food a char-broiled flavor. Gas heat is instant and easy to control, and clean-up is minimal.

To light up your outdoor suppers and make life in the open air as attractive as it is comfortable, install gas lighting on the patio and around the pool.

EARLY REAL ESTATE OFFICE

In the early part of the century, a real estate broker's principal listings were usually displayed prominently both inside and outside his office. The Rocca Bros. office shown here was first opened in San Anselmo in 1908 and was moved in 1912 to Fairfax, where a street named after the owners still survives today.

SHELF SYSTEMS

New shelf system eliminates need for attachments to walls, floors or ceilings. Stanley "Flaire" shelving systems use tension poles and bookcase frames as basis for creating shelf arrangements and room dividers.

Nationwide Construction To Advance 10 Per Cent

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Nationwide construction will advance nearly 10 per cent in 1971, to $74.35 billion, with housing in the lead by a wide margin, according to the annual forecast of construction markets recently released by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

Total construction contracts for 1970, with eight-months figures already tabulated, will reach $68.25 billion.

This picture of the 1971 construction industry emerged in the 1971 F. W. Dodge Construction Outlook presented by George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of McGraw-Hill at the company's 31st Building Products Executives Conference.

Residential building is expected to rise 21 per cent in 1971, to $30.05 billion, according to Christie, with apartment construction carrying the largest share of the gain. Non-residential contracts are expected to increase 2 per cent, to $25.83 billion, and non-building construction (road, utilities, sewers, etc.) are also expected to show a 2 per cent rise, to $18.48 billion. Greatest overall gains should occur in the south, with an estimated rise of 11 per cent, followed by the west with 9 per cent, the northeast with 8 per cent, and the midwest with 7 per cent.

Christie said it has taken a half year of monetary expansion and deficit budgeting to spark the business recovery that is now underway.

Although a temporary sag in business capital spending is expected in 1971, it will be more than offset by consumer spending and the pent-up demand for housing.

"Next year's economic environment will be an extension and development of the recovery that is now still in its formative stage," he declared.

All the available indicators — early investment plans, capital appropriations, profit prospects —point to a fairly brief period of reduced sending for business related construction and a total for the year of approximately the same dollar amount as in 1970.

The mix of building types will change, Christie observed, reflecting the special needs of the business sector in 1971's different economic environment. He expects an upturn in contracts for industrial construction in the spring of 1971 — one year after its decline. Next year's value is estimated at 5 per cent less than 1970's $4 billion.

The recovery of the housing market, longest depressed of all the construction markets, began in 1970 with single-family building where newly available money could be put to work fastest. The upswing will carry into 1971, and beyond.

"Under the pressure of a large backlog of demand, gains should come rapidly — on the strength of the change in credit conditions alone, housing starts — already on the upswing — should be averaging close to 1.7 million units by the middle of next year," Christie stated. Continued expansion will depend on federal support through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The McGraw-Hill economist said there is a good chance for an increase in apartment construction. For 1971 he anticipates an increase in one-and two-family units to 925,000 units from this year's 810,000, and an increase in apartment units to 750,000 from 615,000 in 1970.

Real Estate Computer Bank

Investors in commercial, industrial and multi-family residential property have a new listing service blossoming in the Bay Area. Operated by 10 boards of realtors, it creates a central, computerized bank of properties for sale or exchange.

Any subscribing member of those real estate boards participating may phone the computer and learn in seconds what properties are available to fit a client's needs.

The operation, under contract to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is already providing residential multiple listing services nationwide to the local boards. It also provides an instant investment analysis to subscribing realtors, who set data questions in a portable phone cradle. The instrument relays them over any phone into the computer and receives answers back in seconds.

As of Sept. 1, there were 912 cooperating brokerage offices listing 1669 properties with a total value of $164,312,730 among the 10 boards.

Those participating are the Berkeley, Oakland, Marin County, Southern Alameda County, Contra Costa County, West Contra Costa, and Eastern Contra Costa boards of realtors, and the San Francisco, San Jose and Palo Alto real estate boards.

The Redwood City-San Carlos-Belmont Board of Realtors and the San Mateo-Burlingame Board of Realtors are also joining the group, known as the Industrial, Commercial and Exchange Multiple of Northern California. It is also developing a book of listings to be published weekly and will have detailed information in standard form, a computerized index, and photographs of each property.

The Northern California operation had its beginning in the Palo Alto Board of Realtors in 1966, when it began a multiple listing service for industrial and commercial property. It expanded the service through cooperation with most of the surrounding boards, late that year becoming known as the Peninsula Industrial ICM (Industrial Commercial Multiple).

A similar MLS was begun by the San Jose Real Estate Board at about the same time. The two arranged an open reciprocal agreement in early 1969 to cooperate in finding buyers for each other's listings.

Another blossomed among six boards in the East Bay area using the same concept under the name Bay Area Industrial Realtors Service (BAIRS). Others were begun by the San Francisco and Marin County boards.

Problem Room? Bay Window May Be Answer

A modern bay window often is the right choice to spark a problem room. It can help dispel the cramped feeling of a small room, make a large room seem brighter and make an attractive outdoor scene seem part of the room.

Adding a bay window needn't be an expensive custom alteration, since a variety of factory-made wood units in durable ponderosa pine are available. They are precision-made and ready to be installed with a minimum of labor.

Since a bay window projects from the house, it also can serve to break the line of an uninteresting wall — both inside and outside. In addition, it adds usable space when combined with a window seat, which opens for storage.
